MARTINDALE SHORT $300,000 AS HEAD OF CHEMICAL BANK

BEGAN SIXTEEN YEARS AGO

Depositor's Account Found to Have Been Falsified by Charity Gifts.

ENTIRE LOSS IS MADE GOOD

Discovery Came When Martindale Was In Hospital During His Last Illness.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—The office of the Controller of the Currency tonight announced that J. B. Martindale, President of the Chemical National Bank of New York, who died in July, was a defaulter to the amount of $300,000 or more. It was stated that the defalcation ran over a period of sixteen years while Mr. Martindale was Vice President and President of the bank.

The discovery of the crime was made at the end of June, when Martindale was in a hospital. He had usually been present at the bank at the end of each month, manifestly to attend to the balancing of the deposit account from which, according to the Controller of the Currency, he had systematically taken funds. On Martindale's first absence Vice President Twitchell found that a practice existed by which, under Martindale's orders, the teller would bring to him the statements of the account. This aroused suspicion at once, and resulted in an investigation which determined finally the fact of the defalcation and its extent.

The Chemical National Bank arranged immediately to make good every dollar that had been stolen. Under the direction of W. H. Malburn, Chief Bank Examiner, formerly Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, the regular examination of the condition of the bank had been made with great care, and it has now progressed so far that Mr. Malburn was able today to telegraph to Controller Williams that the Chemical National was in fine condition.

The discovery that the head of such a strong financial institution—which is rated as one of the one hundred largest banks in the United States, with resources amounting to $49,945,000—could be guilty of the crime of defalcation made it of the highest importance that the most drastic steps should be taken to prove the good name of the institution, and weeks were spent in going over the books and approving the history of every transaction occurring in the period during which Martindale was connected with the bank.

With deposits amounting last year to $38,000,000, and aggregating billions in the long period of Martindale's responsible services, this was a task of great magnitude.

Used a Friend's Account.

It was found that the defalcation occurred in a single account which was made by a personal friend of Martindale. The way he did it was to inform the teller that his friend wanted to make a contribution to a hospital, but did not want his name known in the matter, and so he would check out the amount and take care of the transaction himself. Then he would take care to have the depositor's stamp brought to him, and he would falsify it, according to the Controller, and pass it on to his friend the depositor.

This unusual course was followed in making the announcement of the defalcation from Washington and by the Controller of the Currency. The Controller seems not to have had knowledge of the affair until within a few days ago. The supposition is that the officials of the Chemical National desired to make good the amount taken by their former President before any publicity was given to the scandal. Controller Williams declined to discuss this phase of the matter. He would not comment on the alleged crime of the President of the Chemical Bank and simply stated that he could only say what was necessary in the performance of his official duties.

Embezzled $300,000.

The Controller issued the following statement:

"Investigations recently made show that J. B. Martindale, the late President of the Chemical National Bank of New York City, who died in July, 1917, was an embezzler and forger to the extent of about $300,000. He had been President of the bank since December, 1910, and prior to that had been for a number of years its Vice President.

"The loss will not impair in the slightest degree the capital and surplus of the Chemical Bank, which amounts at this time to $10,000,000, but will be charged out of its 'undivided profits,' which at the present time amount to over $1,500,000 after charging off the $300,000.

"The suspicions of the bank's officers were aroused while Martindale was absent from the bank, ill in a hospital, shortly before his death, and the embezzlement was discovered as a result of an inquiry instituted by Vice President Twitchell, who was recently elected President of the bank to succeed Martindale. The money was not stolen directly from the bank, but was obtained

Dr. von Sandt Is Dismissed From His Post in Belgium

LONDON, Sept. 11.—Dr. von Sandt, the civilian Governor of Belgium, has been dismissed, says an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Amsterdam today.

"The dismissal is incomprehensible," adds the dispatch, "as the Government had trusted him to write the history of the occupation of Belgium. He was the only German official in Belgium who ever gave any evidence of humanity in treatment of the people."

TAGEBLATT RAID DISCLOSES PLOT

FUNDS SENT FROM MEXICO

Received from Supposed German Agent — Two More Editors Appear in Court.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 11.—Evidence seized by the Government agents in their raid on the Philadelphia Tageblatt office at 107 North Sixth Street on Monday evening is alleged to show a nation-wide conspiracy against the United States.

In the books and records of the Tageblatt is evidence that it received regular money contributions from a person in Mexico, supposed to have been a German agent. The books also show that the Tageblatt was not supported by the German labor organizations, for which it professed to be the official organ, but had entirel different sources of income.

At the same time, the Tageblatt employed a man who came to this country after the war began, whose whole family is in Germany, and who got an important position in the editorial department as a sort of German censor to see that the paper was kept in the right German and anti-American tone.

In the correspondence of the paper letters were found from several prominent Congressmen, including Senator La Follette.

While the Tageblatt editors were drawing on their imagination to manufacture German victories and American distress, food scarcity, military impotence and disaster, the official information sent to the paper by the United States Government departments was thrown into the wastepaper baskets. The Tageblatt editors didn't even take the trouble of opening the envelope containing true information sent out by the United States Government to all newspapers. This kind of news was found in sealed envelopes, just as it was received, in the wastepaper bales recovered in the raid.

The records seized in the Tageblatt raid also indicated that it was in constant communication with Germans throughout the country, and that its serial stories were syndicated German propaganda assembled and sent out in matrix form from the office of the New York Staats-Zeitung. These long syndicate stories were all part of national German propaganda and contained rarely anything except arguments in favor of Germany and twisted historical reviews attacking England, France and Italy, and blaming them for the war, in which Germany was the innocent, inoffensive victim of brutal attack and unscrupulous intrigue.

Besides the two editors arrested at the time of the raid, Herman Lemke, the business manager, and Dr. Martin Darkow, the managing editor; two other editors surrendered today, and their bail was fixed at $10,000 each. The men held today were Louis Werner, editor in chief, and Waldemar Alfredo, an editorial writer. Peter Schaefer, President of the company which publishes the Tageblatt, and Paul Vogel, Treasurer, the other men wanted, were in Cincinnati, it was said, and their counsel promised they would be here Thursday.

SCOUTS SCHEIDEMANN'S VIEW OF WILSON PLAN

Anglo-American Domination Over Europe Is Sought, Says Vossische Zeitung.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Sept. 11.—The Berlin Vossische Zeitung today denounces Philipp Scheidemann's assertion to an American interviewer that the peace resolution of the Reichstag majority amounts to much the same as President Wilson's proposals.

The paper says that the Wilson "peace terms" mean the supremacy of the Anglo-Saxon powers over "defenseless Europe," while the Reichstag resolution means that the continental European powers should come to an agreement so as to be able together to resist an future Anglo-American interference. This, it says, would establish a balance of power in the world to replace the British system of a balance of power in Europe.

The Vossische Zeitung denies that the Reichstag attitude on domestic reforms has the remotest resemblance to the "Russian democracy" with which President Wilson would endow Germany. "It is entirely false and clearly contrary to the intentions of most of the supporters of the liberal evolution in Germany," it says, "to read the slightest connection between this attitude and Wilson's dubious demands."

Vorwärts, which recently asserted that Chancellor Michaelis in no wise possesses the complete confidence of the Kaiser, who had never dreamed of making him Chancellor until three hours before the appointment was signed, draws out on this point the Vossische Zeitung, which says the reason for Michaelis's sudden and unexpected appointment was the fact that the Socialists opposed the candidacy of the man who, up to the last moment, had been the most probable Chancellor.

The opinion is growing, says Vorwärts, that Michaelis hopes presently to use the support of the Pan Germans, Agrarians, and other opponents of the Reichstag resolution. It calls Michaelis the "darling of all enemies of the Reichstag plan of peace by agreement and of political progress."

TALES OF U-BOATS SUNK IN BATTLES BY OUR FLEETS

Letter from an American Boy Which Reaches The Times Says Nine Were Destroyed.

"BODIES OF 47 HUNS" IN SEA

Writer Says Five Transports, Six Destroyers, and Two Airplanes Attacked the Enemy.

ERROR IN NAVY BULLETIN

Department Reports "All" U-Boats Lost In Recent Fight When "One" Was the Fleet's Toll.

Two reports of attacks on American transports by German submarines became current here yesterday. One was a dispatch from Washington given out by Secretary Daniels, which first contained the information that six U-boats had been sunk in the encounter, and later corrected by the Secretary to state that only one submarine had been destroyed; the other, a report in the form of a letter which reached THE TIMES from an American boy now serving at the front.

According to the corrected statement given out by Secretary Daniels from Washington, the American steamer Westwego reported to Paris that on Sept. 5 several American ships were attacked "while cruising" by a massed force of six submarines. One of the submarines was probably sent to the bottom.

The American boy's letter, dated Aug. 25, told of the sinking of four U-boats on one day after an attack on transports, and the finding of the bodies of forty-seven drowned Teuton seamen. Then, the letter continued, the next day a fleet of destroyers sank five more submarines. His letter follows:

On Active Field Service With the American Expeditionary Forces.
Aug. 25, 1917.

Dear Dad: This is deep stuff. This is the positively last letter you will get except censored field postcards. One of the garbs (sailors) on a returning transport will get it to you.

The news I have is big. We came over on the ——, a —— Line tub. But we had a very good passage, only two days' rain. On the last morning, when twenty miles from land, we were attacked by twelve submarines. There were five of us transports, six destroyers, and two airplanes. We got four subs—forty-seven dead Huns floated in next morning—and we didn't lose a ship or man. Yesterday the destroyers went out and surprised the subs at their base, getting five more while they were up for air. The prisoners are just coming in. Kids about 16-17 years old and old men. Some army.

But we have lost some freight steamers lately. Result our army Y. M. C. A. is short of candy, cigars, &c. We have been buying very good cheese, bread, and white wine, however, so don't worry about our insides.

We are in —— now, in a camp of infantry, cavalry, artillery, &c. Our section goes first again, next Thursday to ——, and then —— miles from the front. Some class to us.

We do not get our salary for two months. That's the overseas system. Pay every second month. And, believe me, things are high. The French storekeepers tell us frankly they have no desire to cheat us, but are charging double so they can live through the Winter. Believe me, they need it. So you send along some dough, and it will go for a good cause.

I am in excellent health as are all the boys. We might be in Plattsburg if it were not for the different language. Conditions are almost identical. Seacoast, bathing, (this was once a swell watering place—French cafés open on the boulevard—all that sort of thing.)

I shan't write any more now. You know everything there is to know. I'm taking no chances. I have just enough sense to keep clean all around so you need not worry on that score. Or for that matter you need not worry on any score. This is a safe place, believe me.

I am not writing to mother —— —— or any of the boys. This will have to be a sort of circular letter because I can only get one through. But you pass the news, dad.

Give my dearest mother all the love in the world. I can't express my feelings, as you know. All my emotions get clogged up and choke when I try to write them. But I know ma is being brave and not worrying. And as for my fat kid vampire sister, dad, well, if she doesn't stay healthy and send me lots of candy I'm going to tell O'l Jemimah. Give my love to ——. Tell her she will hear from me soon. Write to —— or somebody in the frat. Their addresses are all in the ——. Tell them all to send tobacco and cigarettes. If I don't use them, some of the poor fellows will.

That's about all, pa, except for love and kisses and all those pretty things for my relations, friends, enemies, &c. Your loving son,

It must be understood that the writer of the above letter might have been reporting mere fleet rumor, as he had no facilities for investigation.

Officials of the steamship company that owns the transport said last night the Captain reported upon his arrival a week ago at an Atlantic port that he had not sighted anything on the second

Says Germany Keeps Coal From Holland to Force Loan

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 11.—Germany has stopped her export of coal to Holland. No coal trains have arrived here since Saturday, and the supply available in this country is so small that the sudden stoppage is making itself severely felt already.

It is stated on good authority that Germany is employing this method with a view to exerting pressure in order to induce Holland to fall in with the German desire to raise a loan here. It will be recalled that Germany put similar pressure on Switzerland a short time ago.

A German financial syndicate has been in Holland for some time endeavoring to raise money. So far its efforts have been in vain.

By The Associated Press.

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 11.—The Telegraaf says it learns that England is prepared to deliver to Holland 180,000 tons of coal monthly, provided Holland places 180,000 tons of shipping at the disposal of the Belgian Relief Commission.

LONDON, Sept. 11.—An official dispatch from Berlin denies that Germany has prohibited the export of coal to Holland, according to the Reuter Amsterdam correspondent.

7TH MARCHES OFF AS CITY CHEERS

VETERANS LEAD THE WAY

Major Gen. Appleton, on Foot, Escorts Col. Fisk and His 1,800 Fighting Men.

The Seventh Regiment has gone. It matters little that its members, speeding to the camp at Spartanburg, S. C., are still in this country. So far as New York's heart is concerned the Seventh has gone to France, and the one dominant note that throbbed all through the great farewell of yesterday afternoon was the unspoken question in every mind, "Will they come back—and when—and how?"

Led on foot by Colonel Willard Clinton Fisk, the soldiers of the Seventh marched out of their armory at Sixty-sixth Street and Park Avenue with the alert and eager step of men who had a duty to perform and knew how to perform it. As they swung into Park Avenue and later into Fifth, they were greeted by a rolling wave of cheers, which brought a flush of pride to the face of their Colonel and made every man feel as though he were living through the greatest moment of his life.

Promptly at 2 o'clock the regiment left the armory, preceded by an honorary escort of some 200 veterans led by Major Gen. Daniel Appleton. Never was a leader prouder of his men than was this tall, erect, gray-haired soldier with two stars on his shoulders, as he marched down Fifth Avenue afoot for the first time since he was Captain of Company F—"Big Six"—twenty-eight years ago. Behind him was Samuel W. Fairchild, prominent in the Union League, who marched with the step of one ready to march right on to France. Following the veterans came the Police Band, then Colonel Fisk and his staff, and then the men of the regiment, 1,850 of them, with full heavy service equipment.

Reviewed by Mayor.

There was a halt of nearly five minutes just before the procession reached the Union League Club. The bugle call "Forward, March!" was followed by the police band bursting into Cappa's old "Seventh Regiment March," and it seemed as if at least twenty years rolled from the shoulders of every veteran in the ranks and the hundreds watching and cheering from sidewalks and windows.

Mayor Mitchel, surrounded by officers and prominent men of the city, reviewed the regiment from a grand stand in front of the Union League Club. As the regiment passed the club every company in its turn was given an ovation by the spectators on the grand stand. Mayor Mitchel, admiring the appearance and marching order of the men, invariably led the others in the applause. With the Mayor were Colonel J. W. Vrooman, Captain Andrew Mills, August Belmont, General Rush C. Hawkins, Lieutenant W. L. Rich, Colonel W. B. Kip, the Rev. Dr. William T. Manning, General James Lester, Cornelius N. Bliss, Captain Paul T. Thebaud, Richard Delafield, Joseph H. Emery, George F. Kunz, Colonel John H. Foote, Frank H. Norton, and many other members of the club.

When the regiment turned into Twenty-third Street it found the veterans lined up on either side, and as the men in khaki marched between the police band played "Auld Lang Syne." That was the last official word of farewell.

The entire regiment was transported to the Jersey shore on the big West Shore ferryboat, the Cincinnati. As the men stepped on the boat the regimental band broke into "Auld Lang Syne." Colonel

SWEDEN DECIDES NOT TO RECALL ARGENTINE ENVOY

IN GOOD FAITH, HE ASSERTS

"POSTBOX FOR GERMANY"

Branting Denounces "Unpardonable Scandal"—Panic Averted on Stock Exchange.

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 11.—Baron Lowen, the Swedish Minister to Argentina, will not be recalled, according to a statement made to the press tonight by Admiral Lindman, Minister of Foreign Affairs.

The Foreign Minister told the newspapermen that Baron Lowen was not blamable for the tenor of the messages which passed through the Swedish Legation, sent by the German Chargé to the Berlin Foreign Office, and as he had acted in good faith and did not know the contents or the dispatches he would not be recalled.

Foreign Minister Lindman told newspaper editors also that he would not be astonished if Secretary of State Lansing had more documents of a similar nature in store, emanating from the European side and in good faith and with the consent of Great Britain forwarded to German official representatives in South America.

The public showed great interest in the statement of the Foreign Office regarding the Swedish-Argentine revelations. The statement was made public late this afternoon and was eagerly awaited by the populace, which purchased special editions of the evening papers publishing it or read it from the bulletin boards in front of the telegraph offices.

During the day no officials of the Foreign Office were available for expressions of opinion on the situation. The Cabinet was in session from 2 o'clock in the afternoon until 5 o'clock, after which the Foreign Office communication was made public.

Public Opinion Stirred.

It is the general impression, even among the strongly opposed political parties, that Sweden acted in good faith in the matter of the German telegrams, but public opinion, nevertheless, is stirred by the fact that code telegrams of German origin were permitted to be forwarded without giving the Swedish officials the key to the code, so that they might control the contents of the dispatch.

The incident is expected to place the late Cabinet in an unfavorable light and also to have a great bearing on the general elections now in progress. In these elections the Conservatives already have lost seven seats and the Socialists and Liberals are gaining steadily.

All the newspapers print long editorials on the situation arising from the telegrams sent by Count Luxburg.

"We deeply lament the fact that our neutrality seems to have been infringed by Germany through misuse of our facilities," the Dagbladet says. "The lack of caution displayed by our Foreign Office casts doubts upon our impartiality, which, though they are perfectly justified, must damage and humiliate us. One cannot, however, help feeling that the manner in which the charge has been made points more in the direction of seeking to influence public opinion than to any desire to state the matter for fair consideration. And one wonders whether there is any connection between this and Lord Robert Cecil's interview prophesying that the whole of Europe would arm against Germany."

The Liberal Dagens Nyheter and the Tidningen both assert that they are certain the Swedish authorities knew nothing of the manner in which their facilities were being used and emphasize the point that the revelations afford fresh evidence of the ruthless and scandalous German war methods. The Dagens Nyheter adds that public opinion in the United States and Great Britain is ready to believe the worst about Germany's remaining friend among the neutrals, and that this doubtless will increase the difficulties in the way of Swedish imports from America.

Attack on London by 500 Air Raiders Predicted by American Officer

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 11.—London contemplates the great event in Russia and the crisis in France with less concentration of attention, perhaps, than they deserve. She has troubles of her own. The average citizen of the English metropolis goes to bed wondering at what hour he will be hauled out by German air raiders.

The people are not alarmed, but they suspect the Germans are specializing on London, and that before the raiding season is over they will make an effort on a very large scale to inflict damage.

Nor are they alone in this opinion. I talked today with an American aviation officer who expressed the opinion that some time within the next few months a fleet of 500 Gothas would come to London. "And the irony of it," he continued, "is that they stole the idea of their Goths from England."

"How can they afford such a diversion of material and men as raiding on a large scale would require?" I asked.

"They can use their regular pilots from the Flanders front without serious inconvenience. These men are put on Gothas when their services are not required in regular war work. Whether the raiding is militarily sound or not the Germans are evidently determined to spoil London's comfort and symmetry. They are probably convinced that they can produce enough demoralization to make it worth while."

KORNILOFF'S ARMY BEGINS ATTACK; KERENSKY SAYS ADVANCE IS HALTED AND HE HOPES TO AVOID CIVIL WAR

Premier Kerensky Sends Message to America Expressing Confidence Government Will Win

PETROGRAD, Monday, Sept. 10.—In answer to a request, Premier Kerensky has made the following statement to The Associated Press for transmission to the American people:

In view of the fact that the Cabinet is sitting uninterruptedly, discussing measures, the premature announcement of which is impossible, I am obliged to withhold a general statement until later, when conditions and prospects may be clearer than now. You may, nevertheless, announce the following:

The situation with respect to the conflict between the Provisional Government and the revolting Commander in Chief is more serious than we earlier contemplated, and it is impossible to predict what developments may ensue in the next few hours. But as regards the fundamental position there is no doubt. The fundamental position is that the Petrograd Supreme Government is absolutely unanimous in favor of all decisive measures which we have prepared and are preparing against the present attempts by a military rebel, in alliance with the reactionary elements of the country, to exploit the fatherland's internal troubles in order to effect a counter-revolution, with the design of robbing the Russian peoples of their hard-won liberties.

So much for the Government. Regarding the nation, I declare that I have no doubt whatever that the mass of the population is behind the Government in its new fight for freedom, and, that being so, I have no doubt whatever about the triumph of our cause. In that triumph I have absolute and unqualified faith.

Kaiser Confers on Peace; Said to Have Severe Chill

LONDON, Sept. 11.—A dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph from Amsterdam says:

"Emperor William returned to Potsdam today to receive Dr. Georg Michaelis, the Imperial Chancellor, and Foreign Minister von Kühlmann, when the final decision will be reached regarding the answer to the Pope's peace proposal and the status of Poland.

"The Emperor is said to be suffering from a severe chill contracted on the Riga battlefields."

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 11.—The Bayerische Kurier says it has good grounds for stating that Germany's reply to the Pope was considered finally at yesterday's meeting of Chancellor Michaelis's recently created special committee of the Reichstag and Bundesrat. It will contain important declarations regarding Germany's attitude toward Belgium.

The Weser Zeitung's Berlin correspondent, in a dispatch printed in that paper this morning, says that in political circles in the capital it is stated that the Centre or Roman Catholic Party is striving to obtain from the Government a definite statement of renunciation of annexationist claims on Belgium. The Cologne Volkszeitung today says that Belgium is the cardinal point of the whole war position.

It is interesting to recall in this connection that the Augsberg Postzeitung has declared, on behalf of the Bavarian Centre Party, for the abandonment of all thoughts of the annexation of Belgium. For some time now the Socialist Vorwärts, the radical Berliner Tageblatt, and the National Liberal Frankfurter Zeitung, three of the greatest and most influential papers in all Germany, have been insisting strongly on the vital need for a statement from the Government that Belgium will be fully restored. Many other minor journals have followed this lead.

Meanwhile, throughout Germany every description of Pan German association is passing protests against President Wilson's reply to the Pope and declaring in favor of a peace by German victory only. All this noise is being indulged in with a view to making the Chancellor believe, or strengthening him in the belief, that the Pan Germans are a much greater force in the country than their slight numbers in the Reichstag would suggest, and that he must rule in accordance with the policy of the annexationists or go.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—In spite of ironical statements by German officials and in the German press, the German Government is fully aware of the extensive preparations that are being made by the United States for participation in the war. BRITISH TURNING TO GEN. KORNILOFF

PLACE HOPE IN COSSACKS

Future of Democracy Regarded as Unavoidably Adjourned Until After the War.

By CHARLES H. GRASTY.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 11.—I have talked with a good many people today about conditions in Russia, and I have not found anybody without a certain goodwill toward Korniloff and his movement. Academically, England is sincerely democratic, but recent experiences in Russia have convinced most people that the country can be got up solidly against Germany only by the strong hand of a military dictator. Korniloff commands confidence in military circles, not only on his record as an officer, but because he is a Cossack.

This is the tribe around which intelligent opinion in Western Europe has been clustering hopefully for several months past. The Cossacks are stable and they are fighters. The Cossack leader would have a strong, compact military organization to begin with. Actually there are about twenty divisions of Cossack fighting men who do not need death penalties to keep them in the trenches. It is said by those fresh from Russia that the Cossacks constitute the only one among fifteen or twenty factions that can be tied to in such uncertain conditions as now exist. More than once I have heard Russia likened to the Mexico of a year ago on a magnified scale—a shapeless whole composed of heterogenous parts.

With Riga in German hands and Germans headed toward Petrograd, the discussion of Kerensky's leadership and the future of the democracy are regarded by many as unavoidably adjourned until after the war. The spectacle in Russia during the past few months has not added to the prestige of democracy in the world, and the military ring in Germany has pointed to it constantly as an object lesson to discourage democratic aspirations.

The crisis in France is not regarded as serious. On the contrary, it is hoped that stronger government and better conditions generally will supervene. Within three months there has been steady improvement in public feeling in France, largely growing out of the appearance there of the American advance guard. Pétain's victorious strokes at the Germans have put new spirit into the French Army, and nowhere on the French front are there any conditions that might give aid and comfort to the sinister forces active in politics.

Armies Reported Fighting; Korniloff Using Big Guns

PETROGRAD, Sept. 11, (10 A. M.)—General Korniloff's march toward Petrograd continues, according to a statement circulated at the Winter Palace this morning and which is repeated in today's newspapers, but which has not been officially confirmed or denied.

The first collision between the troops and the Government forces already has taken place, the followers of Korniloff having begun the hostilities by bombarding Government positions with heavy guns.

A further report is that at 10 o'clock last night two columns of Korniloff's troops entered Gatchina, thirty-five miles from Petrograd, without opposition, and that other forces are moving on Tosno with the aim of cutting the Petrograd Railroad.

The army of General Korniloff operating against the capital is believed to consist of the following: Several Cossack regiments, the First Cavalry Corps, "The Savage Division," Tekke-Turcoman horsemen, a so-called "Striking Battalion" of picked men organized to fight against Germany, so-called Korniloff battalions, railroad and sapper units, heavy artillery of four divisions, and some batteries of light artillery. All the troops are under command of General Klimoff.

PETROGRAD, Wednesday, Sept. 12, (British Admiralty per Wireless Press.)—An official announcement issued here says:

The superior officers everywhere are acting in agreement with the revolutionary Commissionaries of the Government and the committees at the front. General Denikine, (commander on the southwestern front) and the whole of his headquarters staff have been arrested. General Erdelli, (former Military Governor of Petrograd,) who disobeyed army commands, has also been arrested, together with several members of his staff.

The Baltic fleet, with its officers, has unanimously placed itself on the side of the Provisional Government.

Only small detachments of troops have been moved toward Petrograd by Korniloff. Through deception they have remained deluded regarding their position. The further advance of these echelons has been arrested and the bonds between them broken. Individual units of them have sent delegates to Petrograd with the request that they be furnished with orders to arrest those commanders who have betrayed the Provisional Government.

The Government has taken measures to put Petrograd in a state of defense against attacks, and the hope is entertained that all bloodshed or civil war will be avoided.

Evidence of the loyalty of the troops and people to the Provisional Government is being received from all the provinces, while all public organizations have announced their determination to support the revolutionary Government by every possible means.

It is essential to the safety of the fatherland that complete unity of action be preserved. The Government enjoins absolute calm and urges complete submission to the Government and its representatives.

(Signed.) KERENSKY.

Approach of Korniloff's Army.

PETROGRAD, Sept. 11.—General Korniloff's forces supporting the revolt of the Conservative element against the Provisional Government and the conditions of anarchy in the army are rapidly nearing Petrograd, and the Government infantry is pouring out of the capital to oppose them.

The besieging troops appear to be advancing from several directions.

Korniloff's "Sikaya" division, which was formerly stationed at Pskov, and consists of Georgians and other Caucasus tribesmen, is reported to have already occupied Vritza, or Little Vyrayn, on the Petrograd-Rybinsk Railway, fifty-four versts (about thirty-five miles) from Petrograd. Twelve versts nearer the capital the Government officials

...tearing up the railroad tracks to impede their progress.

Kerensky is in hourly communication with his Commissionaries at the front, who are instructed firmly to oppose the pro-Korniloff agitation among the soldiery, and in particular to prevent the infection spreading among regiments which are known to be on the side of the Government.

M. Nekrasoff, Minister of Finance, today told The Associated Press that the towns of Pskoff and Duga and the railroad station at Dno were all in the hands of the Government troops.

At the chancellery of the Council of Ministers the correspondent was informed unofficially that at the front the troops loyal to the Government have in many cases arrested their Korniloff commanders, and that therefore there are indications that the revolt will fail.

The Government has suppressed the Novoe Vremya, a prominent Petrograd newspaper, as punishment for printing prominently M. Korniloff's proclamations, while publishing those of M. Kerensky in contracted form.

General Klembovsky, the commander of the Riga front, has not yet been commissioned chief of all the armies of Russia, on account of the impossibility of reaching Grand Headquarters," according to the explanation given.

Conservatives Quit Cabinet.

The Constitutional Democratic Ministers having relinquished their portfolios on the ground that the crisis was one for decision by the entire Cabinet and not a directorate, the Socialist members also resigned, in order to give the Premier full liberty of action, but will remain at the head of their departments for the time being, subject to his orders. These Ministers today discussed as an alternative or complement to a directory the formation of a permanent national assembly on the lines of the Moscow conference, to be summoned immediately.

Aside from the defection of the Conservatives in the Cabinet, various prominent politicians and Generals are going over to the Korniloff movement. Alexander Guchkoff, the Octobrist leader, who formerly held the portfolios of President of the Duma, Chief of the Munitions Bureau and Minister of War and Navy ad interim, left Petrograd on Saturday to join the General at Field Headquarters.

General Korniloff in his second proclamation declared that he was the son of a simple Cossack; that he could not tolerate Russia's shame and preferred death. The Socialists charged the Government of acting in the interests of the German General Staff. Thereupon, it is said, General Kaledines, Ataman of the Cossacks, telegraphed to Premier Kerensky threatening that if he did not accede to General Korniloff's demands the Cossacks would cut the Moscow railway, thus isolating Petrograd.

General Denikine, commander of the Russian armies on the southwestern front, has also telegraphed to Premier Kerensky that he intends to support General Korniloff.

General Vasilkovsky, Military Governor of Petrograd, has resigned and has been succeeded by General Savonkoff, who has issued a proclamation urging the people to be calm, and declaring that every person caught acting against the revolution will be treated as a traitor.

Lieut. Gen. Dmitri Stcherbatcheff, commander of the Russian forces on the Rumanian front, is said to have ordered his armies and also the Odessa military district not to take part in the conflict, at the same time remaining true to the Provisional Government.

Premier Kerensky, it is further declared, has received a telegram from the commander of the Baltic Fleet promising support.

The Isvestia says that, contrary to expectations, the influential Union of the Cavaliers of St. George, the members of which demonstrated against the Government at the Moscow conference, will support Premier Kerensky, and that yesterday at their congress they passed a resolution in this sense.

Meanwhile it is stated officially that detachments of the rival armies have met near Luga, and communicated with each other without hostilities breaking out. The bulk of Korniloff's army is understood to have reached Dno, the junction point of the Petrograd-Vitebsk railroad, eighty miles east of Pskov. General Korniloff's headquarters are 120 miles from the capital. It was here that the deposed Czar Nicholas was halted while on his way to Petrograd during the revolution.

According to the Bourse Gazette, when the advance guards of cavalry reached Dno they were met by emissaries of the military section of the Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates sent from Petrograd to give the council's version of the movement to the officers. The delegates delivered Premier Kerensky's Order of the Day and the advance was halted to await further orders.

At the Premier's request, a deputation of Petrograd Moslems proceeded on a locomotive to meet the Savage Division of Caucasian Tartar horsemen, who are mostly their coreligionists, and implored them to abandon Korniloff, whom they look upon as the enemy of the revolution. The spokesman of the division answered that they would obey only General Korniloff's behests and declared that they were against the revolution, adding that the real enemies of the revolution were the Petrograd Bolsheviki and the Council of Deputies, who must be suppressed.

Premier Kerensky has sent instructions by wireless telegraphy to all railroad organizations requiring the officials to refuse to obey any order from General Korniloff. In conversations with The Associated Press today leaders of the Petrograd Council of Deputies declared that the Provisional Government's trump card was that the railroad employes were entirely on its side and that conspiracy by General Korniloff would result in a general strike, depriving Korniloff of all supplies and of all means of imposing his will on the rest of Russia.

It is declared that Korniloff's emissary, Vladimir Lvoff, is one of the chief organizers of the revolt. It is added that Korniloff acted under his influence and that, in order to make a breach irreparable, he exaggerated to Premier Kerensky Korniloff's demands.

Early Developments of Revolt.

Following, as far as is ascertainable, appear to have been the early developments of the counter-revolution:

After the exchange of telegrams between Premier Kerensky and General Korniloff, on Saturday night, in which the Commander in Chief confirmed his demands made through his envoy, the Duma Deputy Vladimir N. Lvoff, the Provisional Government was unable to get further news from headquarters, but early Sunday morning some telegrams were received. The most important among them was from the Supreme Commissary, Filpanko, who reiterated temporarily that the higher command of the army had determined to seize all power and that a sanguinary conflict probably would result.

Another message came from the Chief of the General Staff at the front, General Lukomsky. According to statements made to The Associated Press, General Lukomsky is the real brains and soul of the revolt. His telegram declared that if the Government refused to accede to General Korniloff's demand the results would be serious.

The Cabinet then discussed measures necessary for the security of Petrograd, deciding to declare martial law and to appoint a new commander of the Petrograd military district in place of General Vasilkovsky. Next the Cabinet debated a series of measures necessary for the protection of the Petrograd Government buildings and the defense of the city in case General Korniloff sent against it part of his army.

Besides arresting the envoy Lvoff the Government took eighty other persons into custody.

On the afternoon of Sunday Premier Kerensky again was in communication with the headquarters in the field, speaking with both Generals Korniloff and Lukomsky and reiterating his demands that Korniloff surrender his post as Commander in Chief to General Klembovsky.

On General Korniloff giving an evasive answer, Premier Kerensky categorically ordered him to conie to Petrograd. To this Korniloff gave an emphatic refusal. He declared in general that he would not accept orders from the Premier.

Premier Kerensky then made to the Cabinet a prolonged report on the situation, repeating his proposal to form a directory composed of a small number of persons. Here the Premier met his first opposition from the Constitutional Democratic Ministers, who declared they were unable to accept the dictatorship of the directory and would consent to remain in the Cabinet only if all the material concerning the revolt and all the plans for the liquidation thereof were submitted to the Cabinet in full.

After a heated debate, during which Kerensky and the Socialist Ministers spoke to the concentration scheme, the Constitutional Democratic Ministers announced that they would resign. Among the Socialists at the Winter Palace their action was commented upon as indicating their dubious attitude, which was said to be natural in view of the fact that a majority of their party emphatically supported General Korniloff during the Moscow Conference.

When the Cabinet Ministers discussed, as an alternative to or a complement to a directory, the formation of a permanent national assembly on the lines of the Moscow Conference, the Socialists insisted that representatives of the bourgeois interests, which were assumed to be in sympathy with General Korniloff, should be excluded from the national assembly. They also demanded that members of the Duma and representatives of St. George and other organizations suspected of counter-revolutionary leanings be barred. The Provisional Government declared that if the assembly was convoked it would consider itself responsible to that body.

While the Cabinet was debating the form the new Government should assume, the Central Executive Committee of the All-Russian Councils of Deputies held an excited session, at which their opinion was unanimously expressed to support the Kerensky Government. Speeches were delivered in behalf of all the parties represented and resolutions as to necessary measures were passed.

A social revolutionary speaker proposed to send a delegation to Kerensky, advising him to retain the system of Government in its present form and to replace the Constitutional Democratic Ministers who had resigned with nominees of his own.

A Minsheviki speaker proposed the creation of a special committee representing the different parties in the Councils of Deputies with the object of fighting the counter-revolution by every possible means, and added that so long as the Provisional Government stood fast on the revolutionary platform of June 21 it would have the unanimous support of the revolutionary democracy.

M. Bolshiviki speaker M. Sokolnikoff declared his faction solid with the Government in suppressing the revolution. He reproached the Government, however, for not sooner heeding the party's warnings and for not taking measures against General Korniloff long ago, when first it had certain knowledge of his conspiracy.

The leader of the Labor Party appealed to all the democracy to rally in the life and death struggle around the Government, but emphatically opposed the plan to create a directory, as it was considered dictatorial. Government by a directory, he said, would only feed the counter-revolutionary flame. The Government must, instead, rely on independent action by the masses of the people. The Labor Party approved the plan to create a democratic assembly, from which all reactionaries were excluded, the sessions of the assembly to be the Councils of the Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates.

After further debate, the committee accepted unanimously the proposal of the Social Revolutionaries to retain the present form of government, replacing the Constitutional Democrats with more democratic elements. The plan to create a directory was then vetoed by a large majority.

M. Tcheidse, President of the Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates, thereupon went to the Winter Palace and reported the resolutions to Premier Kerensky.

A council of all Ambassadors, including those representing neutral countries, was held late in the afternoon at which the situation was discussed. All information concerning the meeting was refused. Following the meeting the Ambassadors from the Entente nations held a separate conference.

Korniloff's Military Precautions.

Regarding the military prospects of the revolt, it was stated today that weeks ago General Korniloff began under various pretexts to take tactical administrative measures in order to concentrate troops for action against Petrograd. Declaring that he desired to prevent military congestion, he withdrew from the capital and its environs troops devoted to the Provisional Government, but at the same time sent to Petrograd various units, particularly cavalry, which he considered certain to support himself.

General Korniloff, however, had not had time to remove all the Governmental troops, it appears from this account, and though there are believed to be pro-Korniloff troops in and around the city, and particularly on the railroad between Pskov and Dno, the superiority of the forces in Petrograd is believed to be on the side of the Provisional Government.

It is stated also that the pro-Korniloff troops in Petrograd had no prior knowledge of the plot. They have so far been quiet, but among them is proceeding a dangerous ferment, primarily directed against the Bolshiviki majority of the garrison. The Government party declares that no troops at the rear will support the revolt.

In this connection the Council of Deputies declares that General Verkhovsky was recently summoned to headquarters at Mohilev by General Korniloff, who expounded the details of the plot and invited the General to join. On his giving a categorical refusal, General Korniloff threatened to arrest him, to which threat General Verkhovsky responded:

"If I am not allowed to return immediately all the railroad officials on the lines connecting Mohilev with Moscow will declare a strike, thus cutting you off from the rest of Russia."

Thereupon, the account states, General Verkhovsky was allowed to leave.

FILLS WINTER PALACE WITH ARMED FORCES

PETROGRAD, Sept. 11.—The interior of the Winter Palace was a remarkable sight, owing to the extraordinary precautions first taken early yesterday, when hope of a compromise was lost finally. Inside the newly erected partition in the grand corridor and outside M. Kerensky's offic were poted two hundred sailors of the Second Baltic corps. During the afternoon students of the School of Marines were brought into the palace, as well as parts of the Preobrashensky and Litovski regiments, while in the courtyard were armed motor cars.

Elsewhere in the city there was little military show, but all through the night posts of five and six infantrymen paraded the streets and occupied the courtyards. The city so far has been quiet.

Generals Denikine and Valuveff, commanding the Southwest and Western fronts respectively, have joined General Korniloff, according to announcement in the Petrograd newspapers given out by the semi-official news agency. An earlier report said that General Denikine had been placed under arrest.

All through the night M. Kerensky received resolutions from army and navy units promising to support him. The Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates sent telegrams to the Telegraph Operators' Unions declaring that the operators by refusing to work for Korniloff could help to crush the revolt.

Premier Kerensky issued an order to the Petrograd garrison denouncing General Korniloff for opening the front to the Germans and for sending a division of Asiatics against the capital, while professing to defend liberty.

General Komnin, now commanding the Petrograd city garrison, declared before the meeting in the Winter Palace of the representatives of the different organizations: "No negotiations are possible with traitors. Our only future conversation will be carried on through cannon."

"Only bayonets can now decide the conflict," was the declaration of Vice Premier Nekrasoff.

Ninety arrests were made in Petrograd last night. General Micheveff was arrested at Moscow.

Premier Kerensky has ordered the Procuror of the Petrograd Court to put General Korniloff on trial under the historic one hundred and fifth statute for "conspiring to overthrow the existing order."

During the night Premier Kerensky held a conference with the Procuror and dictated a lengthy description of the details of the conspiracy.

Moscow Remains Loyal.

MOSCOW, Sept. 10.—The Municipal Council of Moscow has issued a proclamation intimating that the inhabitants of the ancient Capital of Russia ought to rise as one in defense of the revolution and prevent civil war. The proclamation appeals to all cities of Russia to support the Provisional Government.

The Moscow garrison, the associations of workers of professional classes, and the railroad workmen have passed resolutions of loyalty to the Provisional Government.

PETROGRAD CURBED BY MARTIAL LAW

PREPARATIONS TO RESIST

PETROGRAD, Sept. 11, (via London.)—A division sent from the front to Petrograd has been stopped by the Government at Dno, 150 miles south of the city.

Several persons, including three members of the Duma Right, were arrested here last night. Petrograd was declared to be under martial law, and a Governor General has been appointed. All possible measures have been taken in the event of disorders.

The Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates, the Cadets and the Constitutional Democrats support the Government. General Alexieff, former generalissimo, has been appointed commander in chief.

It is reported that General Korniloff has arrested the commander at Moscow and several commissaries who happened to be at headquarters. The Government is assured of support from Moscow and considers it has force enough at its disposal to quell any possible disorder in the capital. The latest step on Korniloff's part was wholly unexpected and does not comport with what has been hitherto known of his character.

Exodus from City Ceases.

The panic which led to the hurried departure of several thousands of people from Petrograd is now dying down. The rush for railway tickets slackened yesterday. In view of the food scarcity and also of possible emergencies the Government is taking steps to facilitate passengers from Petrograd by rail and water, and has recommended that persons leaving the city make for the Eastern and Southern Governments and Siberia, where food is still plentiful.

This method of sending people to food instead of continuing the almost hopeless struggle of bringing food to enfeebled transport system to an enormous population in a remote northwestern corner of Russia is one of those unexpected and startling solutions of difficult problems of which the revolutionary period is so full.

HEARD KERENSKY WAS SLAIN.

Russian Embassy in London Got Unconfirmed Rumor from Sweden.

LONDON, Sept. 11.—The Swedish Aftobladet, says the correspondent at Copenhagen of the Exchange Telegraph Company, publishes a rumor emanating from persons who have arrived at the Danish capital from Petrograd, that Premier Kerensky has been killed by a member of the Bolshiviki. The rumor could not be confirmed.

At the Russian Embassy this evening it was stated that no cable messages had been received there from Petrograd since Monday morning.

"We are absolutely in the dark concerning what is taking place and are now dependent upon the press for information," said one of the Secretaries.

Asked whether the report that Premier Kerensky had been murdered could be confirmed, he replied:

"We have received the report from Sweden, but we know nothing about it."

A Russian message received this afternoon with the name of the Russian Prime Minister appended states that the entire Baltic fleet, together with its staff officers, has unanimously placed itself on the side of the Provisional Government. In an Order of the Day, the Commander of the Baltic Station urges the fleet to watch the enemy, to avoid discussion, and to submit to the orders of the Provisional Government.

A dispatch emanating from the Russian Official News Agency says that the Central Committee of the Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates and the Committee of Peasants have addressed an appeal to the army, railway men, and telegraph operators, urging them not to obey orders issued by General Korniloff and to accept only the orders of the Provisional Government. The dispatch says Premier Kerensky has addressed a similar appeal to the railway men.

The Fourth Cossack Regiment of the Petrograd garrison, it is asserted, has announced its loyalty to the Government. The Union of Wounded Soldiers and the Kronstadt Council of the Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates have declared themselves on the side of the Government.

RUSSIANS ATTACK TEUTONS IN SOUTH

Begin New Offensive in Bukowina—Sharp Fighting on the Riga Front.

BERLIN, Sept. 11, (via London.)—Russian forces have begun an offensive against the Austro-German forces in the southeast section of the Austrian crownland of Bukowina. The German General Staff reports that the Russians obtained only local advantages near Solka. The text of the statement reads:

Eastern War Theatre—Front of Prince Leopold: Between the Russian positions and our own, from the sea to the Dvina, there were numerous encounters between advanced troops. The enemy lost a number of prisoners. Advances by Russian raiding parties in the forest region north of Huslaiyn and on the lower Zbrocz were repulsed.

Front of Archduke Joseph: In the southeastern corner of Bukowina the Russians have begun an attack, but they have only obtained local advantages near Solka.

Between the Trotus and Oltus Valleys the enemy has not repeated his fruitless attacks up to the present.

PETROGRAD, Sept. 11, (British Admiralty per Wireless Press.)—The official communication issued today says:

On the Gulf of Riga coast our advance detachments moved to the line of the River Indupelolsapauska, meeting with slight opposition. Between the Pskov Road and the Dvina there were encounters between advance units, most of which ended favorably for us. On the remainder of the front there have been artillery duels and fusillades.

Rumanian Front—In the region south of Radautz the enemy undertook an offensive on a sector of our positions near the village of Solko. The attack was repulsed. In the region east of Kimpolung our troops captured a height east of the village of Buitoura. In some sectors in the region west of Okna there were violent bombardments. An enemy offensive northwest of the village of Slonik has been repulsed.

Caucasus Front—At Kocha Bongonon and in the region east of Wanne there have been encounters between our scouts and strong masses of Kurds. Our scouts recaptured 87 head of small cattle and 500 head of horned cattle. On the remainder of the front there is nothing to report.

Aviation—A squadron of our airplanes consisting of five machines has bombarded enemy depots and huts in the region of Dobrova, southeast of Kovel. Ten loads of bombs were dropped. In the same region an airship dropped bombs on enemy convoys. On the Rumanian front four aerial combats tok place on Sunday, as a result of which four enemy machines were forced to descend within their lines. Enemy airplanes have dropped bombs on the stations at Zamirie and Radsilylov.

General Von Wenninger Killed.

LONDON, Sept. 11.—A dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph from Amsterdam says the Bavarian General, von Wenninger, former Bavarian Military Plenipotentiary at Berlin, was killed Sept. 8 on the battlefront along the Dvina.

COSSACKS PROTESTED SHIFTING OF COMMANDS

Served No Purpose, They Said, But to Help Bring Victory to Germans.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept 11.—A Petrograd dispatch to The Morning Post filed before Saturday's developments says:

"The Kuban Cossacks at the front have sent back orders to their organizations to put a stop to the wearisome changes of higher commands, saying: We have had enough of these kaleidoscopic changes. The results are as plain as are the wishes of those who bring about the changes, which serve nothing but the triumph of Germany.

"This is a frank warning to the Ministers and is a reply to the attempts made to remove General Korniloff by means of political intrigues within the ranks of the Government and of its supporters, and also by more violent methods. While the higher military command is energetically trying to remake the Russian Army into what it was until six months ago, it is only too plain that there is a heavy brake put on all these enlightended efforts.

"Promptitude is of the very essence of success, as the high military command has made plain, yet anxiety lest the power brought by restoration of discipline in the fighting line should rob the triumphant proletariet of their victory of unlimited license, which is called freedom in Russia, continues to prolong the fatal delay.

"Government agents at the front have named Commissionaries, whose object is to watch the military commanders, and the ubiquitous and multiplied committees—company committees, regimental committees, army committees, and committees of fronts—entangle political strife with endless speechifying into the stern business of war. As if this were not enough, they have now ordered the formation among the troops of a new s teof organizations, namely, 'Unions of Peasantry in the Army,' on much the same lines as those on which the previously mentioned committees have been established. As nine-tenths of Russia's armies consist of peasants, it is possibly hoped that these new organizations will eventually overpower the pernicious committees, whose leading has been largely in the hands of German hirelings from Petrograd.

"Meantime class divisions are openly fostered inside the army and the demands of the higher command that the army should be set free from politics are flouted. A guard officer of ten years' service said to me: 'Perhaps twenty per cent. of our men have some glimmerings of what all this speechifying is about, but eighty per cent. know no more of it than dumb oeasts of the field, before this sort of thing was sprung upon a people like ours, we ought to have had a couple of generations of elementary education with the introduction of political rights piecemeal, and very gradual in any case.'

"One may add that midway in a world war is not a suitable time for socialistic experiments. The net result is that 90 per cent. of the population of all Russia is wishing itself again in the days of firm rule, of security of life and property and of the square meal. The remainder is made up of working classes who do not work, hooligans, and the riffraff of towns, who are celebrating a grand harvest of crime, similar elements in villages, and several millions of the Jewish proletariat—for the superior classes of Jews are believed to be already washing their hands of the movement—the whole led and driven by dupes and hirelings of Germany."

WASHINGTON'S VIEW OF KORNILOFF'S CHANCES

Probable Elements of Support Both the General and Kerensky Can Muster.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—Whether Russia faces anarchy and a reign of terror as the fruit of General Korniloff's revolt against Premier Kerensky's Provisional Government depends largely, in the opinion of officials and diplomats here, on the speed with which the situation develops.

If the deposed Commander in Chief, now reported marching on Petrograd with troops personally loyal to him, makes a spectacular show of strength within the next few days, it is believed that, and initial victory over such military opposition as Kerensky refers to in his proclamations would bring to Korniloff's support most, if not all, of the counter-revolutionary forces which still exist in Russia.

"Among those who know most about Korniloff here there is little disposition to believe that he was influenced by reactionary motives and the Scandinavian reports relative to the disappearance of Grand Duke Nicholas are not connected with Korniloff's move. That Korniloff's demand should have been preferred through M. Lvoff, a member of the Duma, which remains the only constitutional representative body in Russia, is taken to be an indication that Korniloff has no ambitions to restore the monarchy."

LONDON, Sept. 11.—Commenting on the Russian crisis, The Morning Post says:

"Germany may enjoy the satisfaction of knowing," says The Post, "that her sinister intrigues have produced a cataclysm in the revolution, which, in whatever its other results may consist, must, as we continue to believe, ultimately destroy and eradicate German predominance in Russia. Germany may now perceive that her advance in the Riga district, which affords the German Emperor such excessive gratification, has hastened another crisis in which, troubled as the prospect is at present, we can discern hope for Russia but none for Germany."

The Times says that the outlook is very dark and that it affects the war on every front, "for the Allies begin to realize that even in the most favorable circumstances the revival of the Russians' military efficiency is bound to be remote." It declares that General Korniloff is not a traitor, and says that his ultimatum to the Petrograd authorities on Saturday was tantamount to dictatorship, it was evidently because he felt there was no alternative left. The Times adds:

"Kerensky has failed to restore order and stability in the army because he long had been in a false position. His Provisional Government has been at the beck and call of the Soldiers' and Workmen's Delegates, whose pernicious influence almost brought Russia to ruin. Committees will never save Russia, but in a very short time they will wreck the revolution if they are no deprived of the power to interfere."

The Daily News says: "Whatever is the outcome of the present collision, it can hardly fail to leave chaos more chaotic and confusion more confounded. * * * The miracle that will rescue the unhappy country from its fate may yet happen, but we cannot see from whence it can come."

The Graphic thinks that the prompt measures taken by Premier Kerensky will do much to avert disaster, adding that "it was through a worse ordeal that France had to pass, during and after the revolution, but she came forth purified and strengthened, and Russia can do the same, as it is a land with mighty possibilities."

Says The Manchester Guardian, which still sees in Kerensky the man of the hour: "If the army will not fight for the revolution, then not only will the Western Allies probably have to reckon with the loss of their ally, but the cause of freedom will have suffered one of the gravest of disasters. We of the West will mourn it not only because of the heavier burden that will be imposed on us, but because the democracies of the West have quite sincerely seen in the emancipation of the Russian people the greatest and most fruitful event of this terrible war."

LONDON OPINION KIND TO KORNILOFF

is little chance. It is thought here, that civil war has not already begun. London opinion on the Russian happenings is as yet unformed, but there exists a strong feeling that Korniloff probably has in his hands material resources sufficient to enable him to attain the immediate ends he has in view.

"What were General Korniloff's motives and what are his intentions?" is asked by The Chronicle. "Regarding the latter," it continues, "it is obvious that Korniloff would scarcely have put the pistol at the Government's head last Saturday unless he believed he could use it. The immediate future should show whether he can—whether, that is, the decisive physical force in Russia is under his control or under Kerensky's.

"In the present state of the Russian army no prudent outsider can venture to answer the question in advance, nor is it easier to be sure why he acted. Is he, as Kerensky says, a counter-revolutionary traitor, or is he a national patriot who has finally despaired of the present Government's taking the necessary steps to restore discipline and save the country? Events in Russia follow such topsy-turvy courses that no man's past is a sure guide to his future; but Korniloff's past is all to his credit. At the time of the revolution it was he who personally arrested the Czarina, and he had acted ever since down to last Saturday as a loyal citizen and patriotic soldier.

Events Justify His Demand.

"Events in Galicia, in Bukowina, in Rumania, and on the Riga front seem to have fully justified his demand for restoration of the death penalty and of effective military discipline both on and behind the front. Its necessity was admitted by Kerensky, though with extreme and publicly expressed reluctance. But in the fortnight which had elapsed since the Moscow conference nothing had been done by the Government in this direction. A measure was drafted, but it remains a draft.

"Meanwhile, after a conference and on the very day before the Riga disaster, the Soviet at Petrograd passed a resolution protesting against the introduction of capital punishment in any form whatever. It has since been engaged in asserting the view that what happened at Riga was in no way due to military misconduct, but resulted solely from German artillery superiority—a view which is not only in conflict with the military communiqués, but seems difficult to reconcile with the rapidity of the enemy's fifty-mile advance through and beyond a position of great natural strength.

"Recent arrivals in London from Petrograd have painted a picture of conditions there pointing to the inevitability of a military dictatorship unless Russia was to be engulfed in a maelstrom of talk and theory. Kerensky's authority was described as based on nothing more substantial than eloquence. If Korniloff has the Cossacks at his back he controls the one solid, disciplined section of the Russian nation, and initial victory over such military opposition as Kerensky refers to in his proclamations would bring to Korniloff's support most, if not all, of the counter-revolutionary forces which still exist in Russia.

"Among those who know most about Korniloff here there is little disposition to believe that he was influenced by reactionary motives and the Scandinavian reports relative to the disappearance of Grand Duke Nicholas are not connected with Korniloff's move. That Korniloff's demand should have been preferred through M. Lvoff, a member of the Duma, which remains the only constitutional representative body in Russia, is taken to be an indication that Korniloff has no ambitions to restore the monarchy."

SWEDEN WILL NOT RECALL ITS ENVOY

"The Swedish Foreign Offic has not received any account regarding the transmission of the telegrams mentioned in the statements of the Government of the United States, and the Swedish Government, therefore, is unable at present to determine what its position should be on the questions opened up by these statements.

"It is, however, accurate to say that just after the world war broke out the Swedish Foreign Minister expressed the opinion that he ought to transmit a German telegram concerning the civil population of Kiao-Chau, (the former German fortress in the Chinese peninsula of Shantung.)

"Statements to the same effect were made to the representatives of both belligerent groups without there being any question of Sweden taking over representation of any power's interests.

"As regards the United States in particular, the United States Minister here has this year in certain special cases demanded and obtained permission to transmit letters to and from Turkey and at a time when Turkey was not in a state of war with America and when Sweden had not yet taken over the protection of American interests.

"In the Summer of 1915 the wish was expressed for the British side that the transmission of telegrams between Germany and North America should cease. No formal demand was made, but notwithstanding this the Foreign Minister acceded to the wish. The Swedish Minister, who was cognizant of all the negotiations, was of the opinion that this was no bar to the continued transmission of telegrams to neutral States other than the United States and therefore to Argentina. Since then Sweden has continued to be the intermediary for communications between Germany and the Argentine.

"The telegram mentioned in the American statement was written in code and in transmitting it the Swedish Minister was by that reason unable to decipher it. Whether its contents were as reported is a point which the first duty of the Swedish Government must be to confirm, and its next action must be to get an explanation from Germany, if it be found that any misuse has taken place. Sweden will also, without regard to any reference made to her, take measures to prevent any repetition of the incident.

"No application as to the cessation of the transmission of telegrams from Germany to the Argentine Republic has yet been made either by the British or American Government, even now or at any earlier period.

"The whole affair has only become known to the public through the press, but in spite of this the wishes officially and semi-officially expressed by the interested parties would immediately have been acceded to."

Prevented Stockholm Panic.

A dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph from Copenhagen says:

"The first statements from the United States concerning the use of the Swedish Legation in Buenos Aires by the German Chargé d'Affaires caused some disturbance on the Stockholm Exchange, but the Government's expected declaration prevented a panic.

"The Stockholm Dagbladt, a copy of which has been received here, says former Foreign Minister Wallenberg evidently never got satisfactory guarantees against the misuse of legation facilities, and that once he introduced the system it continued automatically.

"The newspaper adds that Foreign Minister Lindman had quite casually heard of the exchange of telegrams permitted by Minister Wallenberg, and had no reason to suspect the doubtful nature of the traffic.

"The Copenhagen Politiken says it supposes the scandal will be largely employed in the election campaign in Sweden, as the democratic parties there has constantly reproached both the present and the former Government of partiality in their foreign policy."

"Did Service as a Lackey."

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 11.—The Christianla Morgenbladet expresses deep regret that "Swedish diplomacy is so lacking in understanding of the duties of a neutral that it did service as a lackey, which directly furthered the German submarine warfare against neutral ships, even if it did not clearly understand the contents of the German dispatches."

"In the last ministerial conference at Stockholm," the paper continues, "nothing was said about the submarine war, probably owing to the Swedish Cabinet. On the whole, Sweden until now has played such a commanding part in Scandinavian co-operation that the other Scandinavian countries have been unable to maintain their own interests to a degree desirable. Neither Norway nor Denmark would in the future like to leave Sweden in the leading position if she sticks to a system which not only is to be condemned on moral grounds, but endangers Sweden's neutrality and might greatly risk that of the two other Scandinavian countries.

"If Sweden cannot weaken the impression made by Secretary Lansing's revelations she is hopelessly disgraced in International opinion for a long time. The idea of an international conference under Swedish Chairmanship is destroyed forever, and we regret to say that we are afraid that Scandinavian co-operation, which was so successfully renewed, will retrograde and will have the greatest difficulties to combat."

ARGENTINE CONGRESS DEMANDS THE FACTS

Foreign Office to Call on Berlin and Stockholm for Explanation of Disclosures.

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 11.—The Argentine Congress has asked an explanation from the Foreign Minister of all negotiations with Berlin regarding the freedom of the seas and Argentine ships. It also asks for a full explanation of the disclosures made by the State Department at Washington.

It is reported at the Foreign Office that the Argentine Government tomorrow will ask Berlin and Stockholm for explanations, and that if these Governments disavow the action of their respective legations the matter will be considered personal and the two diplomatic representatives in question, Luxburg and Lowen, will receive their passports.

In a brief explanation today of its part in the transmission of dispatches from the German Charge to Berlin, the Swedish Legation declared that German telegrams had been accepted in the same manner as the Swedish Government had forwarded dispatches for the British and American governments. It was added by the legation that the dispatches were in code and the contents were unknown to the members of the legation. The charges, if any, it declared, must be made against the sender.

It was stated at the British Legation that the Swedish Legation at Buenos Aires had never forwarded any dispatches on British account.

Hundreds of students took part in a great demonstration tonight. They marched through the streets waving flags and shouting: "Passports! Passports!" The demonstration was anti-Swedish as well as anti-German. Mounted patrols are guarding the city tonight. Squads of police are protecting the German and Swedish Legations and the German newspaper offices.

The long delayed dispatches from Ambassador Naon, at Washington, were received by the Foreign Minister late this afternoon. The Ambassador sent these dispatches relating to the revelations regarding the Swedish Legation here on Friday, but they had been stalled along the road. They did not contain all the information the Foreign Minister desired, and the Argentine Ambassador was instructed to ask Secretary Lansing immediately, presumably for the purpose of obtaining more details.

All documents relating to questions between Argentina and Germany have been published, the Foreign Minister declared, adding that nothing had been held in reserve and that there is not now, and never had been, a compact, written or oral, with Germany, limiting in any way the freedom of Argentine shipping.

Further doubt concerning Argentina's faith and truthfulness after this declaration must be considered a national offense," the Foreign Minister declared. He added that the best proof of the inexactness of Count Luxburg's Nov. 19 dispatch is that eight Argentine steamers cleared for the war zone during June.

An Argentine patriotic society has issued a statement urging that Count Luxburg must not receive his passports, but be tried for criminal offense of inciting the assassination of Argentine citizens. This action is impossible, however, as diplomatic representatives are immune from court summonses.

2 COUNTS AGAINST GERMAN.

Thierichens Must Also Answer for Mailing Improper Matter.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 11.—Lieut. Capt. Max Thierichens, former commander of the German raider, Prinz Eitel Friedrich, was today held under $2,000 bail for trial by United States Commissioner Long, charged with sending improper matter through the mails to a school teacher at Saginaw, Mich.

Total Advanced to That Country Now Is $255,000,000.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—The Government advanced another credit of $55,000,000 to Italy today, bringing the total advanced that Government up to $255,000,000 and the total advanced the Allies up to $2,321,400,000.

JEWISH HOLIDAY IN ARMY.

Navy Also Recognizes New Year and Day of Atonement.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 11.—Furloughs have been granted to Jewish soldiers at the various cantonments in order that they may be able to observe the Jewish New Year and the Day of Atonement, according to word received from the War Department today by the Jewish Board for Welfare Work in the Army and Navy. Similar leave of absence has been granted by the Navy Department.

The furloughs run from noon Sept. 16 to the morning of Sept. 19, and from noon Sept. 25 to the morning of Sept. 27.

RUBLES DECLINE AGAIN.

Violent Drop on News of Gen. Korniloff's Advance on Petrograd.

The report that General Korniloff and his troops were marching to lay siege to Petrograd was the cause of a violent decline in Russian exchange and in Russian Government bonds yesterday. Rubles have been declining sharply for the last three weeks, new low records being made daily, but yesterday after opening at 15 cents quotations dropped to 13½ cents. This compares with 51¼ cents, the normal parity, and represents a depreciation of nearly 74 per cent., by far the heaviest depreciation of any foreign currency.

Russian Government internal 5½ per cent. bonds declined 17 points, selling at $143 per 1,000 rubles. The external dollar bonds declined 4 points, 5½s selling down to 85½ and the 6½s down to 74. The 6½ per cent. bonds, which went down to 74 yesterday, sold as high as 98⅜ in January of this year. They are due in June, 1919, while the 5½s are due in December, 1921.

RATIONING PLAN FOR ITALY.

To Apply to All Foods Classed as Necessities—Shoes a State Monopoly.

PARIS, Sept. 11.—The Italian Government is considering a series of measures which, it is expected, will limit the consumption of foodstuffs and raw materials, according to a Havas Agency dispatch from Rome.

The measures, which it is proposed to put into effect in the near future, include the rationing of foods classed as necessities, the monopoly of shoe production by the State, suppression after Sept. 15 of private automobiles except those used by officials and diplomats, and other measures of a like nature.

GROSS LACK OF CARE BRANTING ASSERTS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 11.—Hjalmar Branting, the Socialist leader, is the author of a leading article today in the Social Demokraten on the American revelations and the Government's defense. He acquits Swedish diplomacy of any guilty complexity, but accuses it of gross and compromising lack of care.

"The Foreign Office has spoken," says the article, "and it has certainly demonstrated, what one might have supposed beforehand, that there was not the slightest Swedish intention to lend assistance to the design of the German Minister for sending neutral ships to the bottom without leaving a trace. But what one could hardly believe in is the lack of control over subordinate officials that made possible this incredible and extreme abuse of courtesy.

"Our foreign office itself is most seriously compromised, not in the sense that it had for a moment any intention of assisting in criminal practices comparable with the German dispatch of bombs, poisons, and infernal machines to neutral Norway, but that, by an absolute and inexcusable credulity it has opened official Swedish lines of communication in favor of its mighty Southern friends, apparently without retaining the slightest control over matter thus sent."

Branting recalls the British complaint on this score in 1915 and points out that in spite of the promise then made by Sweden, the traffic has still gone on.

"Everyone must perceive," he continues, "that confidence on the side of the Entente in our loudly proclaimed, loyal neutrality cannot but be ruined by the revelation of this evasion of the promise of 1915. It is of no use to promise now that if there has been a misure of privilege any repetition will be absolutely prevented.

"The Foreign Office communiqué, instead of a plain facing of the offense, will have a repetition of the complaints of the Con

SWANN SIFTS CLUES IN KING TRAGEDY

AFTON MEANS COMES HERE

Dooling Finds Brother of Her Confidential Agent in the Park Avenue Apartment.

A lawyer representing Mrs. Mary Robinson, mother of Mrs. Maude A. King, who was killed near Concord, N. C., said after a conference at the office of District Attorney Swann yesterday that the investigation of the business affairs of Mrs. King in Chicago and this city seemed to indicate that most of the estate of more than $1,000,000 had disappeared.

District Attorney Swann and Assistant District Attorney Dooling began an investigation of the stock market plunges and other business transactions in which the money of Mrs. King was used in this city. It was learned that her fortune was depleted considerably by the fall in Steel in consequence of the celebrated "leak."

Mr. Dooling yesterday began an investigation of the books of Gaston B. Means, business manager for Mrs. King, which were found at the Means apartment at 1,155 Park Avenue. When he arrived at the apartment yesterday Mr. Dooling found Afton Means, a brother of Gaston, engaged in collecting his brother's books and papers. Afton Means arrived from Concord late yesterday afternoon. Afton Means spent the rest of the afternoon and most of the evening answering questions by Mr. Dooling.

Mr. Swann's investigations may become far-reaching, and there is a possibility that if any person is charged with murder the trial will take place in this county. The lawyer who arrived yesterday from Atlanta, Ga., to work with the District Attorney in gathering evidence showing the disposition of the King estate and a motive which might account for her death, said that he and lawyers who had been working with him in the South and in Chicago believed that indictments and a trial would take place here.

Suspects Conspiracy Here.

"I believe that a conspiracy to commit the murder took place here," he said. "I think that there will not be great difficulty in obtaining the evidence here. Our investigations so far show that more than one person might have had a strong reason for wishing to have Mrs. King put away. Evidence has been gathered which casts suspicion on at least four persons, one a woman.

"We have grave reason to fear that practically the whole estate has been squandered. I have today been to several banks in this city in which we know that Mrs. King at one time had accounts. Only one of those accounts now exists, and that a small one.

"It has been established that one trust fund of $150,000, into which the estate was divided, has been dissolved and squandered. This fund was created by Mrs. King to provide for her mother, Mrs. Mary Robinson, and it was broken up with the aid of an instrument to which two names were forged, according to handwriting experts. One name was that of Mrs. Mary Robinson and another that of the witness to the instrument.

"We have that the other trust funds of nearly $1,000,000 have been dissolved. George Woodruff, President of the Woodruff Trust Company of Joliet, Ill., which was in charge of these funds, is on the way to this city in a motor car and may arrive tomorrow. We expect to get complete information about this part of the case on his arrival here.

"Information which we have received regarding the stock transactions in which the money of Mrs. King was used seemed to show that the capital of the King fortune must have been broken into to finance these operations. We are now trying to find out what New York broker dealt in stocks for Mrs. King; her business manager, Mr. Means, or her sister, Mrs. Melvin."

Mrs. Mazie Melvin, the sister of Mrs. King, who has proved herself a stanch friend of Gaston B. Means since the death of Mrs. King, was interested in stock transactions, according to information furnished to the District Attorney. It was stated that Mrs. King in her speculations relied implicitly on the advice of her manager. The transactions with her money, it was stated, usually were conducted in the names of others.

District Attorney Swann and Mr. Dooling have received half a dozen telegrams from Concord since the death of Mrs. King. One of these was sent on Sept. 9 and signed by Means. Mr. Dooling said that its contents were extremely important. He refused to make public any part except the last line, which was as follows:

"Under no circumstances give any newspapers or any one else any interviews."

Mr. Dooling said he had obtained further corroboration for the statement that Mrs. King had drawn a new will a little over a year ago, and that it made Means one of the chief beneficiaries. He also obtained further information of the circumstances under which the will was made.

Subpoena for Afton Means.

After receiving information that Gaston Means had sent his brother Afton to this city to attend to certain interests Mr. Dooling went to the Pennsylvania Station to meet a train from the South, which was due at 1:28 P. M. The train was two hours late. Mr. Dooling inquired of station officials, and was informed that there was no record of any one boarding this train at Concord, N. C. The train arrived at 4 o'clock, but Mr. Dooling and a process server, who had a subpoena for Afton Means, failed to notice him among those who got off the train. After waiting a while and making further inquiries Mr. Dooling went to the apartment of Gaston Means, at 1,155 Park Avenue. There he found that Afton Means had arrived ten or fifteen minutes ahead of him, and was engrossed in searching his brother's effects.

Afton Means seemed surprised to see the Assistant District Attorney. He inquired anxiously the reason for the unexpected visit, but was reassured by Mr. Dooling. Means then offered to give every assistance that he could render. He made no objection to an inspection of his brother's affairs by Mr. Dooling, who had, however, canvassed the apartment earlier in the day.

Late in the afternoon Afton Means went to the District Attorney's office and underwent a three-hour examination. At the end of this Mr. Dooling said:

"Mr. Means gave me a full account of the shooting and answered all questions readily. Some of his statements were very interesting. He said that he and Captain Bingham had walked away together about 100 yards from Gaston Means and Mrs. King before they were going to indulge in target practice. After they heard the shot, he said, Gaston Means shouted, 'Captain Bingham, Captain Bingham, come here!'

"He was sure that Means had called to Captain Bingham and had not called to his brother. Captain Bingham, as I understand it, is a man of considerable standing, and his testimony, if he were impressed with the accidental nature of the tragedy, might be of great importance in convincing others that it was an accident.

Found the Fatal Wound.

"Afton Means said he ran hastily to the spot and found his brother on his knees beside Mrs. King searching for the wound. While Gaston was looking for the wound Afton was the first to see that it was on the back of the head and that blood was flowing.

"His account of other circumstances about the killing agreed with dispatches from Concord. One interesting thing which he added to the story was that Mrs. Robinson, the mother of Mrs. King, had not been notified that night, although she was then only a short distance away at Asheville, N. C. When I asked him why she was not notified he said:

"'Because the telegraph office had closed.'"

Mr. Dooling was asked whether there was any telephone communication between Concord and Asheville. He said:

"There was easy telephone communication between the two places. Mrs. Robinson was at the Oak Grove Hotel, one of the largest hotels at Asheville. There was no reason why they could not have telephoned had they been anxious to notify her."

Mr. Dooling was asked if Afton Means had explained why they did not telephone to Mrs. Robinson. He said:

"For certain reasons, I did not care to ask any questions on that subject."

Her Mother Horrified.

It was learned that earlier in the day the District Attorney's office here had received word from Asheville, N. C., of the delay in notifying the mother. This was accompanied, Mr. Dooling said, by documentary proof of the failure to notify the mother. Mr. Dooling continued:

"Afton Means told me that, when Gaston Means, Mrs. Melvin, and others went to Chicago shortly after the Coroner's verdict that the killing was accidental, he had gone to stay at the Oak Grove Inn and comfort the mother. He said, however, that she conceived a horror of him and would have as little to do with him as possible. He said that she finally complained to Manager Seeley of the hotel that he was watching her and that as a result he moved out of the hotel.

"He told me that Prosecutor Clement seemed to be satisfied with the Coroner's verdict that the shooting was accidental and self-inflicted, and that he was not inclined to reopen the case. He said, however, that his brother Gaston insisted that the fullest inquiry should be made into the case.

"While we were talking he drew a bullet from his pocket and began fumbling with it. Later he gave it to me. He said that Mrs. King had bought the pistol with which she was killed at Concord, and that it was a 25-calibre blue steel Colt automatic."

Afton Means has lived in this city and assisted his brother in handling accounts. He had a room in the apartment at 1,155 Park Avenue, which was fitted up as a business office. He married Miss Gertrude Dietsch, who was a stenographer in the employ of Gaston Means.

It was reported at the District Attorney's office that a subpoena had been issued for Gaston Means, and that he would be invited to come to New York to answer questions by District Attorney Swann. When Mr. Dooling was asked if this subpoena had been issued he said:

"Well, I can say that we would be very glad to see Mr. Gaston Means. I won't go any further than that."

After his examination was at an end at 7:30 o'clock last night Afton Means, who is tall and burly, with a tendency to corpulence, stepped out into the corridors of the Criminal Courts Building and posed with unconcern for several flashlight photographs. When he stepped out of the elevator with Mr. Dooling on the first floor a good-looking young woman rushed up to the Assistant District Attorney and whispered in his ear rather excitedly. Means looked on with great interest. After Mr. Dooling turned to him he said:

"Isn't that a young woman who sued my brother Gaston a couple of years ago?"

Mr. Dooling said that he knew nothing of it. Means said she looked very familiar to him. Later the young woman, who refused to give her name, said that she had given the District Attorney's office information about the King mystery. She talked bitterly about Gaston Means, with whom she said she had been on terms of close friendship a year or two ago.

When he was asked if he had anything to say about the death of Mrs. King, Afton Means said:

"I think everything has been said in connection with it. I don't know what could possibly be added."

When he was asked if his brother was likely to come to this city, he said:

"I don't think he will leave Concord until this affair has been entirely cleared up. I don't know how long I will be here myself."

May Re-enact Tragedy.

At the request of District Attorney Swann, Police Captain Jones, firearms expert of the Police Department, will conduct experiments to ascertain whether it would be possible for death to be inflicted accidentally in the manner in which it is alleged that Mrs. King was killed. District Attorney Swann has telegraphed to the authorities at Concord offering every assistance.

District Attorney Swann said:

"Except for the fact that a revolver was used in the King case instead of poison, I find several remarkable similarities between it and the Waite case.

Mr. Swann was particularly interested in statements that a man, frequently with Mrs. King, had declared a few months ago that H. C. Beatty, Jr., had bungled in the manner in which he killed his wife. This speaker then, according to a story told by persons who said they were present, proceeded to describe how a murder might be committed so scientifically as to leave no doubt that it was an accident, and the description he gave of his plan foretold accurately the circumstances in which Mrs. King was murdered.

Mr. Swann gave out a typewritten statement yesterday in which he said:

"In 1912 or 1913, Gaston B. Means met with an accident in a Pullman car, claiming that a chain broke and injured the side of his head. The side of his head was actually injured, and he went to Miss Alston's sanitarium, 26 West Sixty-first Street, where he was attended by his own physician and a specialist on behalf of the Pullman company. He asserted that this caused loss of memory, and he went down to Concord and finally settled with the insurance company for $4,000. Later he regained his normal mental equilibrium."

At midnight last night Mr. Dooling was examining papers and interrogating persons at the Means apartment. Others at the apartment were Afton Means, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Dietsch, and a man who arrived from Philadelphia shortly before 11 P. M.

Tells of Second King Will.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 11.—Revelations in the affairs of Mrs. Maude A. King, who was shot near Concord, N. C., Aug. 29, included the discoverey that she made an affidavit declaring Byron L. Smith, late President of the Northern Trust Company, had told her that a second will by her husband had been destroyed.

The affidavit, together with more than 200 pages of type written matter, purporting to demonstrate the genuineness of the "second will," is in the hands of Attorney Jacob Newman. It had been placed in his possession by Gaston B. Means, Mrs King's business adviser, who is alleged to have discovered the document about eight or nine months ago.

"The day after Mr. King's death in November, 1916, Byron L. Smith told Mrs. King that he had seen Mr. King destroy the second will, according to the affidavit bearing Mrs. King's signature," said Mr. Newman. "I first heard of the second will eight or nine months ago when I was in New York. I was there on other business, but Mrs. King learned of my visit, and she called me for a conference at her hotel. Mr. Means has discovered a new will, she said.

"I did not see the paper until July, when Means gave it to me with evidence to show it was authentic. I took the matter up with the Northern Trust Company, and told them I would do nothing until I was convinced the second will was genuine. Handwriting experts declared it bona fide, but even if I am asked to file it for probate I would take no action until I had made further and more exhaustive investigations."

Mr. Newman was informed that the alleged signature of Dr. Addison S. Melvin of Oak Park, on the second King will had been declared a forgery today by Attorney William Miller of the Northern Trust Company. Attorney Miller asserted they had proof that the only signature on the document which was genuine was that of Mrs. M. C. Melvin.

"When you were investigating the second will, why did you not go to see Mrs. Melvin, who was in Chicago?" Mr. Newman was asked.

"I didn't know she was stopping there," he replied. "Mr. Means never told me or ever suggested they were in Chicago."

BRITISH GAIN 400 YARDS ON SOMME

Carry a German Trench Near Villeret and Then Repulse Counterattacks.

ENGLISH AIRMAN'S EXPLOIT

He Hovers 50 Feet Over a Fallen German Machine and Sets Fire to It.

LONDON, Sept. 11.—Heavy fighting of a local nature has occurred between the British and the Germans on the Somme front, the British capturing a German trench and advancing their line nearly a quarter of a mile. There were artillery duels in the neighborhood of Ypres also, according to the official report from British Headquarters in France issued tonight. The text of the statement reads:

As a result of local fighting in the neighborhood of Villeret, reported this morning, the Northumberland troops engaged extended their gains southward a further 400 yards, occupying a German trench. Several prisoners were taken by us; our casualties were light.

This morning the enemy attacked our new positions, advancing in close formation, but was driven off by our fire. Later in the day two bombing attacks were made by the enemy from the south against our right flank, but were also repulsed, our troops consolidating the captured trenches.

Artillery activity continues on both sides in the Ypres sector. The enemy's artillery activity was particularly marked during the day southeast of Ypres and in the Nieuport sector.

On Monday a thick haze again prevailed and made work difficult. In spite of this, observation was carried out for our artillery both by airplanes and balloons. During the day our machines bombed two enemy airplanes near Cambrai and rest billets near Douai. During the night they dropped bombs on airdrome searchlights near Courtrai.

In the air fighting yesterday three German airplanes were brought down, seven others were driven down out of control, two of which were brought down or driven down by one pilot. In one case this pilot descended within fifty feet of the ground and set fire to a machine he had brought down. He then regained our side of the line, still flying at fifty feet, although attacked by three hostile machines. Three of our machines are missing.

The text of the afternoon statement follows:

We captured a few prisoners last night in the course of local fighting in the neighborhood of Villeret, southeast of Hargicourt.

The hostile artillery activity continued to the east of Ypres during the early part of the night.

BERLIN, Sept. 11, (via London.)—General Headquarters reports intense artillery action on the Belgian coast and in the Ypres salient, as well as the checking of British attempts to advance in the latter region. Fresh fighting on the Somme front, northwest of St. Quentin, ended favorably for the Germans, according to the official statement, which follows:

Front of Crown Prince Rupprecht.—The artillery battle in Flanders increased temporarily to great intensity on the coast and in the Ypres salient. Advances by the English southeast of Langemarck and north of Frezenberg were repulsed.

Near Villieret, to the northwest of St. Quentin, fresh fighting developed early this morning, which ended in our favor."

BRITISH ATTRITION WAR ACHIEVING ITS PURPOSE

German Losses in Flanders Heavier Than in Any Previous Period.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WAR CORRESPONDENTS' HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, Sept. 11.—All remains fairly quiet on the western battle front, although I have no doubt many of the lads in the trenches find it difficult to acquiesce in this summary of the situation. But it has become such a habit of thought these days to deal in big events that mere earth-shaking gun duels or earsplitting air raids are dismissed as commonplaces of the situation.

That the war becomes more and more deadly as it progresses is beyond question. On the Flanders ridges the British are killing more blond boys than in any previous period of the struggle; nor is this due so much to any accentuation of the sanguinary spirit as to the present conditions of the conflict.

On the Somme the Germans fought in packed formations, and had the shelter of deep dugouts, from which the British gathered a very large bag of prisoners. In Flanders they are resisting in a scattered defensive of considerable depth, and shallow concrete blockhouses, often countersunk to the level of the ground, take the place of dugouts. Many of these are so skilfully camouflaged that it is only when the surrounding ground has been torn and tossed by a heavy bombardment that they are revealed at all, although machine guns may have been squirting bullets from their loopholed cupolas for days past.

Then again, the manner in which the Germans are pressing home their heavy counterattacks these days, in the teeth of our great superiority of artillery, is another terrible factor of loss, whether the attacks are successful or not.

Taking it for granted that this war will be won not by the recovery of the occupied territory due to the ejection of the Germans, but by the wearing down of the enemy man-power to a point of incapacity for further resistance, I think the present phase of the struggle may be regarded with equanimity.

True, there is nothing particularly spectacular about it in comparison with various past epochs in the art of war; but as a process of attrition it is unquestionably achieving its purpose at a rate which we know from incontrovertible evidence is causing the gravest anxiety to the German high command; and, after all, that is what mainly matters.

FRENCH RAID TRENCHES ON CHAMPAGNE FRONT

Destroy German Supplies—Berlin Reports Strong French Attacks Checked Near Verdun.

PARIS, Sept. 11.—French raiding parties last night penetrated the German lines in the region southeast of Vauxaillon and north of the Casque in the Champagne, the French War Department announced today. German supplies were destroyed, and the French made a number of prisoners.

German aviators in the course of the night dropped bombs in the region of Dunkirk. Some of the missiles struck a hospital and wounded five women.

The text of the afternoon statement follows:

Enemy surprise attacks north of Jouy and northeast of Cerny were repulsed by our fire. We effected raids into the German lines in the region southeast of Vauxaillon and in the Champagne to the north of the Casque. We destroyed supplies and made prisoners.

Our batteries took under fire enemy troops south of Justincourt.

"On both banks of the Meuse (Verdun region) there was intermittent artillery fighting.

The night was calm on the rest of the front.

Last night German aviators bombarded the region of Dunkirk. Bombs fell on a hospital, where five women were wounded.

The official communication issued tonight says:

There was quite pronounced artillery activity in Belgium, in the sector of Casemates Plateau, and on both banks of the Meuse.

On Sept. 10 three German airplanes were brought down in engagements with our pilots. A fourth enemy machine was destroyed by our special guns.

Following is the text of the Belgian communication:

In the last forty-eight hours, in retaliation for the bombardment of our rear zone, our batteries have carried out numerous attacks, both day and night, on enemy cantonments, depots and stations, and destroyed or silenced several batteries.

Our trench artillery rapidly took the upper hand. In bomb fighting before Dixmude an enemy patrol was dispersed by one of ours.

Our airplanes have carried out in the last two days seventy-five flights, taken numerous photographs, made reconnoissances, and engaged in several combats. In addition, an enemy airplane was brought down this morning inside our lines, and a second airplane was brought down in the enemy lines near Schoorbakke.

BERLIN, Sept. 11, (via London.)—Strong French attacks on the eastern bank of the Meuse, north of Verdun, were checked yesterday morning after a temporary success south of Wavrille Wood.

The statement from German General Headquarters follows:

Front of the German Crown Prince—Enterprises by French reconnoitring detachments, most of which were preceded by violent artillery preparations, were frustrated to the northwest of Rheims and in several sectors of the Champagne.

On the eastern bank of the Meuse strong French forces attacked yesterday morning from the Fosses Wood to the Chaume Wood. Enemy forces which had penetrated into our fighting zone to the south of the Wavrille Wood were repulsed by a counterattack.

On the remainder of the front French storming waves were broken down, with heavy losses, under our defensive fire.

During the day repeated attempts of the enemy to attack failed every time. We pushed our lines forward at some points.

BRITISH CASUALTIES 26,626.

4,367 Killed, 22,259 Wounded or Missing, in Past Week.

LONDON, Sept. 11.—Casualties in the British ranks reported during the week ending today show a total of 26,626 officers and men, as follows:

British casualties for the week ending Sept. 4 were 15,614. For the month of August, in which were fought the two battles of Flanders, they were reported as 58,811 "on all fronts."

GIVES PROBABLE LIST OF NEW MINISTERS

Ribot Down for Portfolio of Foreign Affairs in Tentative French Cabinet.

PARIS, Sept. 11.—Late this evening, after a lengthy meeting with statesmen whose support he had obtained, M. Painleve, who is endeavoring to organize a cabinet, issued the following list as the probable make-up of the new ministry to succeed that of M. Ribot:

Premier and Minister of War—M. PAINLEVE.
Minister of Justice—JOSEPH THIERRY.
Minister of Foreign Affairs—M. RIBOT.
Minister of the Interior—M. STEEG.
Minister of the Navy—M. CHAUTEMPS.
Minister of Munitions—ALBERT THOMAS.
Minister of Finance—M. KLOTZ.
Minister of Colonies—RENE BESNARD.
Minister of Public Instruction—M. VARENNE.
Minister of Labor—DANIEL VINCENT.
Minister of Commerce—M. CLEMENTEL.
Minister of Agriculture—JEAN DUPUY.
Minister of Provisions—M. LOUCHEUR.
Minister of Propaganda—HENRY FRANKLIN-BOUILLON.
Ministers of State—M. BARTHAU, M. BOURGEOIS, RENE RENOULT, and M. DOUMER.

The Socialist delegates were received by M. Painleve and there was an exchange of views lasting an hour, at the conclusion of which the delegates assured the Minister that he could count on their support, reserving, however, definite approbation until they had an opportunity to study his choice of his Cabinet members.

The Radical and Radical Socialist Parties met and decided to facilitate M. Painleve's task. Later the Minister announced that the Socialists had agreed to his program and expressed confidence that he would be able speedily to form his Cabinet.

SAYS BERLIN PLANNED WAR ON LATIN AMERICA

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—In a formal statement issued here today through official channels the assertion is made by Dr. Cecilio Baez, former President of Paraguay and Paraguayan Minister in Washington, that Germany was on the point of provoking a war of conquest in Latin America "in order to be better prepared to fight the United States and England."

"The reception given to the American fleet by the Governments of Brazil, Argentina, and Uruguay," said the statement of Dr. Baez, "with enthusiastic popular manifestations, shows plainly enough that there exists a union of interests, both moral and material, between the grand Republic of the North and the countries of South America.

"I believe that I do not fall short of the truth when I say that men in public life in Paraguay think as follows:

"1. That were it not for the power and benevolence of the United States toward her sister Republics they would have been oppressed or subjected to anarchy by foreign powers.

"2. That among the Republics themselves peace would not be assured but for the respect that they owe to the United States.

"3. That there is no reason to mistrust the United States so long as our Republics respect themselves and each other as civilized countries respect the rights of others.

"And, being Americans, we congratulate the people and Government of Argentina for the cordial reception which they have just given to the United States fleet."

NEW ENGLANDERS GIVE OVATION TO PRESIDENT

SANDWICH, Mass., Sept. 11.—President and Mrs. Wilson, who are cruising on the Presidential yacht Mayflower, received an ovation on their way through the Cape Cod Canal today. Word of their presence spread quickly as soon as the yacht entered the canal and at Bournedale and Sagamore, school children stood on the banks waving flags and singing, while crowds lined the waterway, cheering.

The President waved his greetings and appeared to enjoy the trip keenly. At Bournedale a reception committee sent a basket of flowers on board the Mayflower for Mrs. Wilson.

MARTINDALE, BANK HEAD, $300,000 SHORT

by manipulating the deposit account of a wealthy depositor, for whom Martindale acted as financial advisor and trusted agent. Under President Martindale's instructions, the statements of the depositor's account were rendered by the bank periodically to Martindale, instead of direct to the depositor, and Martindale then manipulated and changed them before submitting them to the depositor.

"The method by which Martindale obtained most of the money was by withdrawing money from this depositor's account, either through a forged check or by a 'debit slip' signed by himself as President. He would present these checks for $5,000 or $10,000 or whatever the amount might be, to the bank teller personally, explaining that the depositor had asked him to draw this money from the account for a donation to some hospital, so that the name of the donor might not be known, or that the depositor desired the matter handled in this manner for some other plausible reason; and he would then appropriate the cash so withdrawn to his own uses.

Used Forged Pass Books.

"In explaining to the depositor at the end of each month these withdrawals, Martindale's plan was to inform the unsuspecting depositor that he had placed the sums so withdrawn from the Chemical Bank to the depositor's credit in a certain trust company in New York City, one of whose depositor pass books he had obtained, and in which book he would enter up in his own handwriting as deposits with the trust company the amounts of money which he had withdrawn from the Chemical National Bank, through the means of the forged checks or debit slips.

"He also forged the depositor's name to certain demand notes to the extent of about $80,000, which amount he also got from the Chemical Bank and personally appropriated.

"The aggregate amount of the forged notes placed in the Chemical Bank and the false credits shown on the deposit or pass book of the trust company was about $300,000.

"Such embezzlements and forgeries would have been practically impossible had they not been perpetrated by an officer of the bank in whom the Directors and junior officers reposed implicit confidence. The Chemical National Bank has arranged to make good to the depositor the entire amount thus embezzled.

"The National Bank Examiner at New York has practically completed his regular semi-annual examination of the Chemical National Bank and has reported to the Controller's office that the bank is in fine condition. The amount involved is small as compared with the bank's capital and surplus. The examiner also states that he finds no indications whatsoever of further misappropriations. Martindale's forgeries and embezzlements, as far as have been ascertained, were confined to the accounts of this one depositor.

A Warning to Bankers.

"This experience should serve as a warning to national banks that no irregularities, liberties, or unbusinesslike methods or practices should be countenanced or permitted on the part of any officer or employe of a bank, however high his official position, and should serve as a warning also against laxity in the use of cashier's checks or charge slips.

"It appears that Martindale's embezzlements began about sixteen years ago; and that for years past he has made it a practice to be on hand at the bank at the close of each month in order that he might personally look after and manipulate the statements rendered this particular depositor.

"More than a year ago the Controller's office, in calling upon national banks to furnish a list of employes who had been allowed no vacations in five years, said:

Because most men are physically and mentally in shape to perform their duties most efficiently when they have the benefit of a yearly vacation, and because of other obvious advantages, including the better opportunity afforded of having an impartial check made of the books and accounts of all employes while on vacation, besides the training given understudies and assistants, the Controller commends the granting of a vacation period to all bank employes each year.

"The experience of the Chemical National Bank lends fresh emphasis to this recommendation, and it is hoped it will be heeded by the banks."

Innocence of the Teller.

The situation was the subject of a conference tonight in the office of Controller Williams. Asked tonight if he would recommend that Congress add legislation to the Banking act to provide a means of preventing a recurrence of such acts, Mr. Williams said he could not speak advisedly on that phase of the affair now.

The question of the responsibility of the teller in the Chemical National, who followed the directions of Mr. Martindale in taking to him the statement of the depositor's account and trusting to Martindale's word as to informing the depositor of the condition of his account, is under consideration at the Treasury Department. In this case, it was said, the teller's explanation was such as to command the confidence of the officials of the bank in his entire innocence and truthfulness. He simply obeyed his superior official and made no question of his faithfulness. The fact that the teller is usually an employe with moderate pay, and the bank President a high official with a large salary, has been taken into account in the present case, and it is understood that no steps will be taken to prosecute the teller.

The case, however, will lead to amendments of regulations controlling the conduct of national banks. It is likely that a requirement will be made that in no instance shall information as to a deposit account be withheld from the party in interest. In such a case as that in the experience of the Chemical National it would be required that the teller, besides taking the statement of account to President Martindale, should also mail a copy of the statement to the actual owner of the account. Had this been done concealment of the defalcation, it was said, would have been impossible without the collusion of the teller or some employe of the bank with the President.

DISCLOSURE SHOCKS MARTINDALE'S FRIENDS

The disclosure made by Controller Williams of the late Joseph B. Martindale's embezzlement of a depositor's funds from the Chemical National Bank shocked the banking community as nothing has done since the series of bank failures which accompanied the panic of 1907. Colleagues of the banker, who had looked up to him for years as representing the epitome of a conservative, trustworthy guardian of the public's money, were dumfounded when told the of the news from Washington. Mr. Williams's statement reached the Street after business hours, and the first that many friends of Martindale knew of his theft of $300,000 was contained in messages over the telephone last night.

In all quarters Mr. Williams's assurance that the resources of the Chemical National would not be affected was echoed. Although Martindale's name and the Chemical had been practically synonymous in banking circles since he became President in 1910, it was said last night wherever comment was made that the position of the institution could not be impaired. A recent statement showed that the surplus and profits amounted to $7,697,000, while the Controller made it clear that the undivided profits alone which were left after the embezzlements were made good were in excess of $1,500,000.

The genuine grief expressed by associates of the banker were heightened by the complete surprise which the news brought. Men who had advanced in the banking field shoulder to shoulder with Martindale said they had considered him, boy and man, as the soul of honor. A. D. Juilliard, a Director of the bank and a life-long friend of Martindale, summed up the expressions made everywhere.

"It is a terrible surprise," he said. "There was never any indication of anything like this in Mr. Martindale's business life."

Mr. Juilliard was a co-receiver with Martindale of the H. B. Claflin Company four years ago, and for many years had been closely associated with him in the bank's affairs. He declined to discuss the matter, except to say that the facts had been given to the Controller of the Currency some time ago.

Shocks an Old Comrade.

Another leading banker and business man who had worked with Martindale since they were young men said:

"It is almost unbelievable. Mr. Martindale was always considered the highest type of banker. He made friends easily because of his fine personality, and in all his dealings he was thought perfectly square."

Few of the bank's directors could be reached last night, owing largely to the fact that they were on vacations, and those who spoke of the scandal declined to name the depositor whose account was juggled by Martindale. Gossip of the Street has considered the Chemical National as the depository for the funds of wealthy, conservative New Yorkers whose fortunes have come down to them from ancestors who were prominent in the early days of the city. The account of any one of a dozen men and women who are believed to do their banking with the Chemical National might have been drawn upon for some years without the owner knowing about it.

Not an Extravagant Man.

One of the impressive things connected with the embezzlement was the absence of impressions among his associates last night that he had lived beyond his means. Men who had been closest to him could not recall any suspicion of undue participation in the speculative markets; none knew of any expensive habits which would absorb more money than his salary and personal income could have supplied. While of a convivial nature, it was said, he did not go to extremes. It was known after his death that he had left a smaller estate than had been expected from one in his position as head of a leading metropolitan bank, but no breath of irregularities was attached to the findings of the executor.

Martindale was considered a banker first and last. His chief value to the bank was his knowledge of credits. The Chemical is strictly a commercial bank. It accepts no brokerage accounts and lends no money in the call loan market. Until a few months ago it refused to pay interest on deposits, and by so doing was unable for years to receive deposits of Government funds. In the credit field Martindale had no superior, and his contemporaries conceded him the place without begrudging him the honor.

Martindale grew up in the Chemical National, going there as a boy and passing through practically every department. It is possible that his familiarity with all the ends of the bank's affairs led to his undoing, for he learned how clients' money could be spent as well as conserved without drawing suspicion to himself. He elected to devote himself so closely to the bank that he declined to serve as a Director of corporations except for limited periods when his advice was especially sought. He even retired early from the board of the Bankers Trust Company, which was made up almost entirely of leading bankers.

While Mastindale built up friendships quickly, he never sought publicity. He kept out of the limelight as much as possible, as was befitting the President of the Chemical National with its history of conservatism, running back to 1824. Herein lay one of the most puzzling features of the Washington exposure, according to the banker's friends last night. They could not conceive of Martindale's need of money for matters which could not be satisfied from the funds which came to him honestly. There was not a banker of the first grade in Wall Street of whom the public knew less than Martindale, although bankers knew him, or of him, in every city of the land.

The traditions of the Chemical National were well upheld by Martindale. When he became President, in 1910, he succeeded William H. Porter, who went down into Wall Street to be a partner in J. P. Morgan & Co. The Chemical had seen other and younger banks grow faster than itself. The management had long aspired to be known more broadly as a business keeper than a business getter. Martindale, a careful, painstaking banker, who knew the Chemical from the lowest job upward, was considered exactly the type to succeed Mr. Porter. There was never any complaint from the Directors about his way of running the bank. The Chemical continued as rock-ribbed as before.

In the Claflin Crash.

In the Claflin failure, and later in the difficulties which befell the firm of Mills & Gibbs, Martindale displayed special ability as a strong credit man and a doctor for sick corporations. There was a deal of work connected with the reorganizations of these concerns, and with Mr. Juilliard in the first and Henry W. Poor in the second he labored many weeks. His friends thought he devoted too much time to work and not enough to play. There were few days in recent years when he could not be found at his desk.

These business qualities, crowding out opportunities for the usual activities expected of an embezzler, were what puzzled the dead banker's friends most last night. More than one colleague of Martindale's said in the first flush of amazement, "It cannot be true."

Several years ago Martindale became estranged from his wife. Last Spring he went to the Adirondacks to recuperate from illness, and returned early in July, expecting to renew his work at the bank in August. A few days after his return an old heart ailment recurred and he was taken to the German Hospital, where a reconciliation with his family took place shortly before his death on July 7. He was 55 years old and had been employed by the Chemical National since he reached his sixteenth birthday.

Herbert K. Twitchell, Vice President, who succeeded Marcindale as President, declined to discuss the Controller's statement yesterday. It is expected that later developments will throw more light on the situation than exist at present. While it might be considered extraordinary that the President of a national bank whose affairs were watched over by a strong Board of Directors and the Federal Bank Examiner could continue for years to loot a depositor's account, bankers said last night that it might easily have been done. Martindale, it was explained, followed a novel method of getting money.

It was thought that the depositor whose account was involved always kept a heavy balance at the Chemical, and as the checks and notes forged by the banker did not run in large amounts, the records could be juggled successfully for a long period. Besides this, the business of a bank President naturally would not come under so close scrutiny from others employes as the business of any other man in the institution. It was assumed by other bankers, in the absence of details, that Mr. Twichell had come across the trail of irregularities by chance and worked them out when Martindale's absence gave opportunity.

While the Chemical is a commercial bank, its directors consist mostly of men of wealth, members of old, landed families. They are Robert Walton Goelet, W. Emlen Roosevelt, Frederic W. Stevens, A. D. Juilliard, Art ur Iselin, William H. Porter, Charles Cheney and Mr. Twitchell. It has long been rumored in banking quarters that John Wanamaker was a large depositor with the Chemical and was numbered by Martindale as a close friend. Other big wholesale and retail concerns are on the bank's list of clients.

In the recollection of old-time bankers, the Chemical is remembered as the bank which was strong enough to go ahead doing business as usual during the panic of 1873. At that time the story goes, the Chemical refused to follow other institutions in declining to pay out specie. The consequence was a run on the Clearing House Association when the other banks sought to force the Chemical into line, which disturbed the Chemical management not at all and added to the bank's prestige.

ALLIES STILL SEE PERIL IN U-BOATS

Regard Submarines as Their Gravest Menace, but Are Confident They Will Meet It.

MAY HINDER OUR ARMIES

London Regards This Contingency as the Gravest, Involving Final Triumph Over Germany.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 11.—The submarine situation is still causing grave concern, not for fear of starvation of the Allies, but of hampering their efforts seriously. England needs iron, France and Italy want coal and wheat, and, above all, the American Army, to which the Allies look each day more anxiously for the final turning of the scale toward victory, is likely to be hindered by scanty supplies.

On the other hand, it was pointed out by a high authority today, there is no reason whatever to despair of the situation. Neither England nor America has yet put forth its full strength with regard to the submarine war. Other questions equally grave already have been answered satisfactorily, and the shipping problem can be solved quite as well with equal effort. For example, during the first year of the war England was confronted with the necessity of raising an enormous army. With stupendous effort she raised it. In the second year of the war England realized the need of an unlimited supply of munitions. She revolutionized her industries and produced it.

Now, there is an equal need for a tremendous effort to increase her shipping, and it is impossible to believe that American and British shipyards are incapable of launching all the shipping needed to overcome the submarine peril if their full vigor is put into the task.

The sea pirates have changed their methods recently. The Atlantic routes are now comparatively safe. The convoy system is working satisfactorily, but there still are scattered sinkings. This is reckoned as a tribute to the efficiency of the American and British methods of protecting the well-recognized trade routes, but it also shows the impossibility of guarding the entire ocean. Recently the Germans have been building more submarines than the Allies are destroying, and with their increased size the U-boats are able to go far afield.

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, Friday, Sept. 7.—(Delayed by the Censor.)—It is learned here that the Entente Governments are agreed that the shipping situation is the most serious problem of all those facing the Entente at the beginning of the fourth Winter of the war, and every effort will be made during the coming months to impress the people of England and America with the fact that the greatest effort of the whole war will be necessary to solve it. A Government official informed The Associated Press today:

"As Britain's great effort of the first year of the war was to create a huge army, as her great effort for the second and third years was to create an inexhaustible supply of munitions, so the great effort of the fourth year must be, not only in Great Britain, but also in America, to create a merchant navy to replace the submarine losses and supply the constantly increasing demands.

"There is no disguising the fact that the shipping situation is serious. Do not misunderstand me—the shipping situation has not grown serious through any increased success of the German submarine warfare. As a matter of fact, the German submarine war is being held down very well, and the average sinkings show no increase either in number of ships or tonnage. The sinkings in the Atlantic main routes are now very low, and the greater proportion of the sinkings occur in out-of-the-way spots, indicating either that the submarines have been forced afield or that a larger number of them are operating.

"But the total available tonnage is shrinking slightly, while, on the other hand, the demands for tonnage from all directions are increasing tremendously. Where three ships were needed a year ago, four are needed now. France is very short of coal, one of the vital necessaries for Winter, Italy is short of coal and the shortage is so serious that it is causing the Italian Government the utmost concern. For all these shortages there is only one remedy, namely, tonnage.

"But a still more important demand for tonnage comes from America, whence the Entente's great reserve of men must come this Winter. The necessity for tonnage to transport the American army and keep them supplied is perhaps the most important feature of the shipping situation.

"So the Entente statesmen have arrived at the conclusion that the winning of the war may depend on the new effort which will be demanded of England and America this Winter, an effort to push quickly to completion—more quickly than ever attempted before—fleet upon fleet of ships to carry the sinews of war to the fighting nations."

THE SUSANA IS SUNK.

American Steamship of 3,613 Tons Destroyed by a U-Boat.

Reports indicating that the American steamship Susana, a vessel of 3,613 tons, which left here Aug. 7 for Genoa, has been sunk by a submarine were received in shipping circles here yesterday.

The advices stated that an American vessel for Genoa commanded by Captain Smith and controlled by Furness, Withy & Co. was destroyed. The Susana was in charge of Captain J. M. Smith and was cleared by that firm for the Italian port.

At the office of Furness, Withy & Co. it was said no word had been received of the ship. Records of the United States Shipping Commissioner here show that the vessel carried a crew of thirty-seven men, of whom nine claimed American citizenship.

AUSTRIANS PLAN GORIZIA OFFENSIVE

AT HINDENBURG'S ORDER?

Washington Thinks Him Responsible for Heavy Concentration Reported by Italian Embassy.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—Information reached the Italian Embassy today in messages from Rome that the Austrian command on the Isonzo front was preparing a new offensive and concentrating Austrian forces Northeast of Gorizia. According to the message, the Austrians have decided to make any sacrifice to wipe out the menace involved in the success of the occupation by the Italians of important Austrian positions.

While the dispatch does not so assert, it is suspected here that the hand of Von Hindenburg, who has never hesitated to sacrifice men for victories, is responsible for the Austrian concentration.

On the Carso front there is relative calm, said the message to the Embassy. "The Austrian counteroffensive has utterly failed, and the Italians are maintaining all their gains along the lines Casagnavizza-Kornie and Kornie-Selo. On the Isonzo front the action is limited to violent artillery duels. There are signs that the enemy is preparing a new offensive in order to regain his lost positions. The present Italian line on this front represents such a serious menace to the Austrians that the Austrian command has decided to make any sacrifices in order to recover what is known as the K-line.

"General Koevess, who has taken the place of General Boroevic, is directing the Austrian defense, with at least twenty-eight battalions at his disposal. This concentration of forces is simply amazing, considering the limited sector in which they are employed. Captured Austrian officers say that the Austrian command considers the conservation of the present line as essential to the salvation of the Austrian army operating in a southeasterly direction. According to the same officers, some of the Austrian battalions already have been practically annihilated in their endeavor to stem the slow but sure Italian advance. They say, also, that these enormous losses have been due chiefly to the impossibility of getting food and ammunition during the battle on account of the Italian fire. That this has been the case is proved by the capture of half a battalion, which surrendered in a state of complete exhaustion."

Italian military men in Washington say that General Cadorna has barely two months more in which to achieve his objective in the present Italian offensive, as Winter conditions prevailing in November will make it practically impossible to continue the operations along the same scale that they have been conducted. Whether the drive can be maintained until Winter depends on the amount of materials possessed by Italy. The Italian officers here believe that the Entente's best opportunity of breaking the Teutonic lines lies on the Italo-Austrian front, and that successes are in sight of the Italians that will compensate for the reverses Russia has endured in the East.

These Italian officers assert that the general military situation on all fronts emphasizes the importance and paramount value of the Italian offensive at the present time. The failure of the Italians to capture Monte San Gabriele has led some observers to believe that the offensive has spent its force or is waning. This is declared by Italian military officers to be an erroneous assumption. The attack on San Gabriele, they say, has been lacking in that element of surprise which played so important a part in the capture of Monte Santo, and the Austrians, after the continuation of the Italian successes, have hurried up all available Austrian reinforcements, as well as German and Turkish, to stem the Italian advance.

These officers say that the entire Teutonic Alliance is fully alive to the real danger of the Italian situation, as shown by the great number of German and Turkish dead found on both the Hermada and Isonzo fronts, while the Austrian official reports admit the Italian success and its importance. The Vienna War Office has reported the loss of all the fortified positions between San Marco and Santa Caterina, and also that the Italians are on the outskirts of the Hermada.

The Italian officers here admit the extreme difficulty of the action against Monte San Gabriele, but point out that the Italian troops are holding their own on the western slope of this position, and say that if they are able to force an Austrian retreat also from the eastern slope of this position before the fighting season is over this year the fate of Austria may be considered sealed. They say that after San Gabriele the only Austrian stronghold that can slow down the progress of the Italian forces is Monte San Daniele, but remark that this mountain would be entirely dominated by the heavy artillery the Italians could put on San Gabriele.

that peace is in sight. The ultimate object of this propaganda, officials believe, is to cause the United States Government to slacken the preparations it is making to send an army of 2,000,000 men to France.

It is not doubted here that a distinct and strong peace movement exists in Germany. There is too much evidence to leave any uncertainty on that score. The German Government, in the view of Washington officials, knows it cannot win, and knows also that if the war continues Germany is bound to lose.

The German Government realizes that the peace movement may assume such strength before long that the ruling militaristic group will be forced to make a real appeal to the Allies to discuss terms, which would leave Germany in a position where she could not drive the bargain for which she hopes.

It is to throw dust in the eyes of the Allies that Germany is causing her agents to put forth outlines of concessions that Germany pretends to be willing to make in the desire through this means to impress the democratic peoples in the Allied countries and cause them to influence their Governments to enter negotiations that begin with no definite assurances from the Central Powers and thus leave all questions at issue to the adjustment of the peace plenipotentiaries.

This plan of operations is well understood by President Wilson and Secretary Lansing. They have learned much of German methods in the last three years and have not been deceived by the present agitation.

There is to be no cessation of preparation for war by the United States, if anything the efforts of the Government are to be accelerated under the stimulus of the knowledge that Germany is worried over the military activity in this country and fears the participation of the United States in the war.

All this became clearly known today through statements made in an authoritative quarter brought out by inquiry as to the publication of supposed German peace terms containing suggestions of concessions which Germany was placed in a position of being willing to make.

"There is an intensified peace propaganda emanating from the Central Powers," said the authority mentioned.

It was indicated that the main seat of this propaganda was Switzerland, but the explanation was made that this statement was not to be construed as meaning that the Swiss Government or Swiss officials had any part in it. On the contrary, the evidence at hand tends to show that able German diplomats are at work in Berne and probably in Zurich, the "Mole St. Nicholas" of misinformation concerning the great war. There also appears to be a German peace propaganda headquarters in Amsterdam.

The State Department has not obtained from any official source an outline of Germany's peace terms. It will continue to ignore the alleged German peace programs emanating from mysterious sources and will continue to speed up the work of military preparation, which has now assumed such an impetus that Germany will be astonished when she learns what has been accomplished by this Government in the few months that preparations have been in progress.

VON HINDENBURG CALLS WILSON PRESUMPTUOUS

Rejects 'All Foreign Interference' —Crown Prince Thanks Hamburg for "Manly Words."

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 11.—Replying to the Württemberg Chambers of Commerce, which have recorded their rejection of "President Wilson's presumptuous attempt to interfere with Germany's domestic affairs," Field Marshal von Hindenburg, according to the German newspapers, has sent the following message:

"As an answer to the presumptuous words of President Wilson, the German Nation has placed itself unitedly and firmly behind its Emperor and his words and has rejected all foreign interference in German affairs. We must now remain united, steel hard and determined to achieve victory. Thereby we shall shorten the war. Let this be the feeling of every German."

BERLIN, Sept. 11, (via London.)—The Hamburg Chamber of Commerce has received the following message from Crown Prince Frederick William in acknowledgment of its resolution of protest against President Wilson's note in reply to Pope Benedict's peace proposal:

"I have read with pleasure and approval the text of your resolution of protest against President Wilson's note, and beg you to express to the members of the Chamber and to the merchant body of Hamburg my sincere appreciation of their manly words and the refreshing candor with which the presumption of the American President was deservedly declined."

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 11.—German children as well as German women are now being mobilized in the agitation against President Wilson's strictures on the German Government. A beginning has been made at Harburg, near Hamburg, where all the public schools on Sunday took part in a demonstration at which telegrams were sent to Emperor William, Chancellor Michaelis, and Field Marshal von Hindenburg.

The Roman Catholic mercantile associations of Germany have adopted a resolution of similar tenor.

Vorwärts says editorially today that the motive of the Conservative and Pan German "wirepullers," to whom attention has been called in recent dispatches, to utilize the American note to the Pope for exciting anew the bellicose passions of the people, and above all for delivering a mighty blow to the democratic movement—is steadily becoming more apparent.

All the resolutions were drafted on the same model, beginning with a display of strong language against President Wilson, and then proclaiming a readiness to hold out until a victorious peace is attained. They contain a more or less open attack on the Reichstag resolution, declaring it to be unrepresentative of the people's will, and conclude with a declaration of loyalty to the reigning dynasty.

Vorwärts has lost all confidence in the Chancellor's good intentions to swing around to the view held abroad. Of Dr. Michaelis, Vorwärts says indications steadily confirm the impression that he will not dissociate himself from the parties opposed to peace based on good-will because he is only waiting an opportunity to avail himself of the help they may offer against the Reichstag.

The Bremen labor unions have protested against the recent resolution adopted by the Bremen Merchant Guilds, which alleged that in wide circles in Bremen the population was opposed to the Reichstag majority attitude on peace. The resolution of the labor men indorsed the Reichstag resolution, demanded peace without unnecessary delay, and declared for democratic reforms.

GIRL'S ERROR LIFTED HOPES OF SEA VICTORY

Navy Department Clerk Made It "All" Instead of "One" Submarine Lost.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—Elation in Washington today over an official announcement that six German submarines had been sunk during a mass attack on the American steamship Westwego, while cruising with several other ships off the coast of France last Friday, was short-lived.

Four hours after it had been announced by Secretary Daniels at 10:30 o'clock this morning that six submarines had been sunk, the Secretary was obliged to issue a retraction. At 2:30 o'clock this afternoon he gave to the press a statement that one of the submarines was probably lost. Meanwhile the news had been flashed over the world that all six of the submarines had been lost and the impression was spread throughout the nation, too late for correction in most afternoon papers, that American destroyers convoying the merchant vessels had won a great victory over the tyrannay Navy.

The retraction was issued by Secretary Daniels this afternoon after he had discovered that a young woman stenographer in the Navy Department had committed the typographical error of substituting the word "all" for "one" in the original paraphrase of the official report which had been delivered to her to be copied for use in making the official announcement.

As issued at 2:30 o'clock the statement of Secretary Daniels, indicating that "one" submarine had probably been lost, read:

"My attention has just been called to a serious error made in transcribing the report of the attack made on the Westwego and other vessels. I gave the report to the press this morning exactly as it was presented to me, stating that 'probably all of the submarines were lost.' The cablegram, I find now, stated that 'one' of the submarines was probably lost."

Notified the President.

Meanwhile the information as originally given to the press had been sent by wireless to Gloucester, on the Massachusetts coast—where the naval yacht Mayflower was stationed—for delivery to the President, who had been visiting Colonel E. M. House, and had received wide circulation around the Capitol, where Senators and Representatives were congratulating the American navy on its prowess. The original announcement, as issued by Secretary Daniels at 10:30 o'clock this morning, and which had to be corrected by the later retraction, read as follows:

"The Navy Department has received a report from Paris which states that the American steamship Westwego, reported on the 8th of September, that while cruising with several other ships they were attacked by a massed force of six submarines off the coast of France on the 5th of September, the result of this attack being that two steamers were sunk and probably all of the submarines were lost."

After this statement had been given out by the Navy Department, and before the issuance of the retraction, the Committee on Public Information issued a duplicate of the morning announcement by the department to which was added these words:

"Secretary Daniels said that he had cabled for fuller details of the encounter. The vessels attacked were bound for a European port."

The true version appears to be that the merchant vessels, of which the Westwego was one, were attacked by submarines in force off the coast of France on Sept. 5, and that in the fight two of them were lost and probably one of the submarines was sunk. There is nothing in the original dispatch which came from the American Embassy at Paris to show that the vessels were convoyed, or that the submarine that "probably" was lost was sunk by war vessels, and, if so, whether the warships were American, French, or British destroyers.

If the vessels were convoyed by American destroyers at the time they were attacked, that fact would be very important, for it would mark the first sinking by submarines of any vessels convoyed by a screen of American destroyers. The information given out by the Navy Department says nothing about any destroyers figuring in the encounter. But the statement in the dispatch that the Westwego was "cruising with other ships" which were attacked created an impression in the minds of naval officers on duty at the department that the merchant vessels were convoyed. The names of the vessels other than the Westwego were not given in the department's message. But it was stated that the Westwego, which is a tank ship, was not carrying troops or acting as a transport.

The error of the Navy Department recalled the account of the "attack in force" by German submarines on American troop transports made public by Secretary Daniels and George Creel through the Committee on Public Information on the eve of the Fourth of July, and occasioned wide comment throughout official and other circles here today.

Not a Creel Bulletin.

George Creel, Chairman of the Committee on Public Information, whose connection with the preparation of the Fourth of July bulletin brought him certain unenviable criticism, had nothing personally to do with the preparation of the inaccurate account issued this morning magnifying the affair of last Wednesday off the coast of France. Careful inquiry indicates that the mistake in the nature of a multiplication of the enemy's alleged losses contained in this morning's announcement was caused by a girl stenographer in the Navy Department. When the original message from Paris was received this morning it was dictated in paraphrase for transcription by the stenographer. After she had copied the paraphrase of the message as thus dictated it was handed to Lieutenant Commander Belknap, the official censor of the Navy Department, who delivered it to Secretary Daniels.

Secretary Daniels directed that the paraphrase be immediately made public. The incorrectly copied paraphrase was then copied, with the mistakes included, for delivery to the press, and was handed to the newspaper men at 10:30 o'clock. It appears that the stenographer, one of the number taken into the service of the Navy Department under the pressure of war activities, discovered her mistake not long after she had written the word "all" in place of "one" submarine, and reported the fact to Lieut. Commander Belknap. A corrected copy of the paraphrase was then prepared under his instructions and was delivered to an agent of the Committee on Public Information stationed in the Navy Department, who placed it on Secretary Daniels's desk. The Secretary had gone out of his office for a conference, and not until his return was the supplementary statement issued retracting the most important feature of the earlier announcement.

Secretary Daniels told the newspaper men late in the afternoon he had given the statement to the public in the exact form in which it had been received by him from the office of the Chief of Naval Operations.

Gillette U.S. Service Set

It Fits the Kit or the Pocket

Something Special for Our Boys

There is little enough one can do for the brave fellows who are going to the Front—few things one can give them to take along. A soldier's kit is reduced to the bare necessities: most gifts have to be left behind.

But here is something that is a prime necessity to every man in every branch of the Service. The U. S. Regulations call for a clean shave—every man jack must have a shaving outfit.

The new Gillette U. S. Service Set represents three years' War experience, condensed into one compact little metal case—that fits the kit or slips into the breast pocket.

The solid metal case is heavily nickel-plated and embossed with the Insignia of the U. S. Army and Navy. There is a nickel-plated Gillette Safety Razor and Blade Box, with an indestructible Trench Mirror inside the lid.

No Strops or Hones. Nothing to carry but the compact little case, and new Blades can be had anywhere in France, England, Russia and Italy.

MURPHY'S DISTRICT JOINS IN REVOLT

Democratic Club of the Twelfth Goes Over to Mayor Mitchel's Support.

WIGWAM LEADERS AROUSED

Magistrate Corrigan's Campaign for District Attorney Now in Hands of Committee.

The revolt of Tammany leaders and workers against Charles F. Murphy's control of Tammany Hall spread last night to Murphy's own district, the Twelfth Assembly. At a meeting of the Democratic Club of that district at 219 East Thirty-first Street speeches were made by old-time Tammany war horses denouncing Murphy, and resolutions were adopted declaring that Murphy and "his henchman McCooey" never gave the young Democrats a chance, and that the time had come to "cleanse the Democracy of its misfit overlords." The organization went over to the City Democracy in a body, and announced its support of Mayor Mitchel and the Fusion ticket.

The club is composed of Tammany and old Democratic voters, nearly all of whom have been Tammany workers in the ranks for years. John F. McCabe, Clerk of the Supreme Court, a Tammany captain for thirty years and a member of the Tammany County Committee, presided at the meeting and made an address. Among the other prominent Tammany men who lined up against Murphy was John J. O'Neill, who was a candidate for district leader against Michael Cruise. Mr. O'Neill was a member of the Tammany Society, and has been Chairman of the Tammany District Committee of his district for twenty years. He is also a member of the Board of Trustees of the Tammany Central Club of his district. Others were Patrick Toner, William Cunningham, Frank J. Kellian, Louis Silverblatt, and William A. Larney, former chief clerk of the Fire Department and a life-long Tammanyite. Among the speakers at the meeting were Charles E. Clark, John W. Kelly and James L. Pinks, former President of the Columbia College Students Tammany Club. The following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Whereas, Charles F. Murphy and his henchman, McCooey, have again plainly shown that they have no time for decent and hard-working Democrats, and that our young and deserving Democrats need not apply for positions or even for an opportunity to be shown their worth, and

Whereas, Murphy and McCooey and the small and selfish men around Murphy proved this fact by naming an unknown to head the ticket and by dealing out big nominations to outsiders who had never done anything for Tammany organization workers—a blunder that has no excuses, and which every district worker knows destroys any chance the few young Democrats who are running for local offices may have had, because of this pitiful, hand-picked ticket, and

Whereas, Murphy has demonstrated that the old group around him is getting what little there is to be gotten, as in the case of the candidate who was sent to Congress and whose place as City Court Clerk was filled by another of the Murphy favorites, Frank Goodwin, who had been drawing a salary as Assistant City Clerk, being promoted from a $4,000 to a $6,000 job, and then further to keep the patronage within Murphy's private circle, put Michael Cruise, his personal leader of the Fourteenth Assembly District, in Goodwin's place, thereby promoting Cruise from a $3,000 job as Assistant City Clerk to a $4,000 job, and to further clinch the evidence that Murphy is playing only favorites, he puts his old crony, Patrick Whitney, in Mr. Cruise's place, thereby rejecting all the young Democrats in other sections of Manhattan who aspired to these offices and packing these jobs with old hacks in his district, and

Whereas, It is clear that young Democrats will never get a chance to show what they can do so long as Murphy and McCooey and their star chamber retains the power to selfishly give everything to a chosen few and crush the ambitions and the hopes of the young Democrats in New York; therefore, be it

Resolved, That this organization of enrolled Democrats of the Twelfth Assembly District, in open meeting, denounces the Murphy policy of jamming unknowns on the ticket, and pledges itself and its best efforts, as a means of eradicating Murphyism from New York's Democracy, to the cause of independent democracy espoused by Mayor Mitchel, and further pledges itself to work for the election of the ticket headed by Mayor Mitchel as the best means available to cleanse the Democracy of its misfit overlords.

Tammany leaders would make no comment yesterday upon the defection in the Tammany districts, due principally to the manner in which the municipal ticket was selected by Murphy, McCooey and the other members of the Fourteenth Street inner circle. Murphy and his advisers, it was said, appreciate the seriousness of the situation and are quietly doing all in their power to stem the tide of revolt.

A committee to conduct the campaign of Magistrate Joseph E. Corrigan, independent candidate for District Attorney, met at the Corrigan headquarters in the Fitzgerald Building, Forty-third Street and Broadway, yesterday, and organized. N. Joseph Sticklen, a lawyer of 41 Park Row, was made Chairman, and William A. Greer, a lawyer of 74 Broadway, was selected as Treasurer. Mr. Greer is a son of Bishop David H. Greer of the Protestant Episcopal Church. Magistrate Corrigan's headquarters were formally opened, and several hundred signatures to a petition putting him in the race were obtained during the day.

ROAD GIVES ULTIMATUM TO TELEGRAPHERS

Men Out on the Pennsylvania Have Until This Afternoon to Return to Work.

TRENTON, N. J., Sept. 11.—The situation in the strike of the railroad telegraphers on the Trenton division remains the same as it has been since Saturday, except that today trains were more on time than they have been since the strike began. It is said by the railroad that the greatest delay was only twenty minutes. This applies to passenger trains. It is said that freight is being moved on schedule, but this does not appear to be so well founded, judging by the number of trains that pass.

Supt. E. J. Cleave of the division today gave an ultimatum to the men, in which he demanded that they return to work by 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Those who do not return by that time will be considered out of the employ of the company and are called upon to turn in their passes and any railroad property they may have in their control. He gave assurance that the demands of those who returned would be considered.

The operators here say that 95 per cent. of the men who worked on the road on Friday are now on strike, and that the men who are taking their places can be ill spared from their regular duties on other divisions and in the various main offices to which they were promoted from the towers. The strikers say that it is impossible to live on the $67 a month which they receive.

There are reports that men on other divisions will quit work in sympathy with the present strike, but as yet none has been reported here.

Special to The New York Times.

BURLINGTON, N. J., Sept. 11.—Striking telegraph operators and train dispatchers of the Pennsylvania Railroad, following a meeting at their headquarters here tonight, declared they had received messages indicating that operators on every line east of Pittsburgh would be out before the week end unless the wage demands of the Jerseymen are met. An agent of the company, at a meeting at strike headquarters in Grange Hall today, said the company would refuse to meet them as individuals, but would recognize them through the Order of Operators and Dispatchers.

Every Second Spent Wearing Down These Pencils Was Wasted

Look, Mr. Treasurer! at this evidence.

Those pencils wrote dictation. Each pencil was seven inches long when new. It took hours and hours of wear to make them stubs.

Notice the tooth marks on those chewed stubs. Each mark was made by one who was waiting nervously while the dictator answered the telephone interruption, turned to a caller, signed his name to a rush paper, hunted for a missing reference, or groped for a mislaid word or phrase. Each mark means wasted time.

Keep these pencil stubs. Let them pile up in a basket. Count the tooth marks on each. Count the hours of wear that made them stubs. Compute the number of sharpenings, the number of sudden breakings.

The Dictaphone takes the pencil and note book out of letter writing and speeds up the letter production 50 per cent. Phone to The Dictaphone office for a demonstration.

SEEK INDICTMENTS IN SEASIDE DEAL

TO TAKE UP DREAMLAND

Marginal Railway Proffer Also Will Be Made Subject of Grand Jury Inquiry.

The District Attorney's office expects to complete within the next few days the case which it is now presenting to the Grand Jury regarding the sale of Seaside Park to the city by the Neponsit Realty Company, and to ask for several indictments in addition to that of ex-Senator William H. Reynolds.

If any new indictments are found in the near future, it is understood that they will be for violations of Section 1,941 of the Penal Code, making it a misdemeanor for a public official to neglect his duty. This section was read and explained to the Grand Jury by Justice Goff at the outset of the investigation. Those who are thought most likely to be indicted on this ground include officials accused of juggling with tax assessment figures in favor of the Neponsit Realty Company. Assistant District Attorney William Harman Black and those associated with him, however, are making every effort to put together a case which will result in the indictment of higher officials.

The records of all transactions by the Board of Estimate and committees of the Board of Estimate regarding the transaction with the Neponsit Company have been placed before the Grand Jury. After the present phase of the case has been completed the District Attorney's office will continue a detailed study of the financial transactions of the Neponsit Company immediately before and after the sale to the city of the 246-acre Seaside Park. Twelve members of the District Attorney's staff are at work on this now.

The Grand Jury will continue in session indefinitely and, after completing the Seaside Park inquiry, will go into the Dreamland Park and the Marginal Railway transactions.

Herman A. Metz was questioned at the District Attorney's office yesterday and said, according to Assistant District Attorneys, that he had stepped clear of attempts to sell Seaside Park property to the city, because he suspected the methods that were being used. He said that, at one time when land at Rockaway Point was offered to the city for $1,000,000, he had learned that a lawyer held a written agreement under which he was to receive $300,000 if he was able to steer the transaction through the Board of Estimate.

G. F. BRENSINGER DIES AFTER AUTO CRASH

Commissioner of Jersey City Injured Returning to Duties at Camp Dix.

City Commissioner George F. Brensinger of Jersey City, Vice Mayor and head of the Department of Revenue and Finance and a Major in the Federalized National Guard, was killed last night in an automobile accident on the Metuchen road on the outskirts of New Brunswick, N. J. He was returning from a meeting of the City Commissioners to his duty at Camp Dix, Wrightstown.

With David Patterson, his partner in an automobile business in Jersey City, Major Brensinger was riding in his own car, driven by William Mullin, his chauffeur. The automobile was coming out of a side road almost opposite Manners' Hotel when it was struck by a truck moving along the Metuchen road and thrown against a telegraph pole. Major Brensinger and Mr. Patterson were thrown from the car to the side of the road. They were both rushed to the Middlesex General Hospital, in New Brunswick, where Major Brensinger died a few moments after his arrival. His skull was fractured. Mr. Patterson was not seriously hurt. The chauffeur was uninjured.

COAL OPERATORS MAKE PROTEST TO GARFIELD

Tennessee and Kentucky Men Also Tell Trade Commission They Must Have Higher Prices.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—Representatives of the coal operators of Tennessee and Kentucky placed before the Fuel Administration and Federal Trade Commission today a statement to the effect that it might be impossible to continue the operation of many of the mines in these sections unless an increase over the prices for bituminous coal by President Wilson was granted.

The President's prices for these sections ranged from $1.90 to $2.40 at the mouth of the mine and the operators held that from $3 to $3.50 must be paid to keep them in the business. Complaints of a similar nature have come in from other sections, and all will be given consideration.

Some of the operators expressed the fear that there would be a serious shortage of coal if relief was not given at once, and that labor disputes and strikes, which in the Southern districts involved about 17,000 men, might end in disaster. Dr. Garfield, however, is confident that this situation can be handled.

A delegation from Ohio, headed by Attorney General Magee and Congressman Brumbaugh, called upon Dr. Garfield today to protest against a recent priority order by Judge Lovett giving coal shipments to Great Lake ports for transhipment to the Northwest precedence. They said it was draining Ohio and leaving their factories without coal. Dr. Garfield informed them that the order had been modified so as to release slack coal now at lake ports for the use of the manufacturing concerns and public utilities of Ohio.

The delegation also was assured that the consumer would be protected under the plans for State and local organizations.

Conferences were held today by Bernard M. Baruch, head of the Purchasing Committee of the War Industries Board, and representatives of the copper industry, and it is probable that an announcement concerning the price to be paid for the copper output will be made tomorrow. Reports concerning the price to be paid have ranged from 20 to 25 cents and rumors today were to the effect that it probably would be nearer the latter figure. Mr. Baruch, however, refused to make a definite statement at this time.

John D. Ryan, who has not taken an active part in the negotiations carried on by the Raw Materials Committee of the Council of National Defense, was one of the copper men consulted today.

HOOVER TO LICENSE SUGAR INDUSTRY

Food Administrator Takes Step to End Speculation and Stabilize the Market.

GROCERS PROMISE TO AID

Suggest the Licensing of All Retailers Who Do More Than $100,000 Business a Year.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—All manufacturers, refiners, and importers of sugar must obtain licenses from the Food Administration in order to do business after Oct. 1, according to an official announcement made tonight by Herbert C. Hoover, Food Administrator. The action was taken after Mr. Hoover had conferred with experts in the trade and gone over various phases of the retail grocery business with John H. Schaefer, President of the National Association of Retail Grocers, and other large retail dealers.

Mr. Hoover announced that both the sugar men and the retail dealers had agreed to co-operate in an effort to bring relief for the consumer at this time. A committee of the retail grocers was named, he said, to discuss ways and means to accomplish this. One suggestion made, and which is receiving serious consideration by the Food Administration, was that licenses be issued to all retail grocers doing a business of $100,000 or more a year.

Under such an arrangement, even though it must be worked out on a voluntary basis, it was believed that close supervision of prices and business could be had which would result in stabilization of price for many commodities at a level which all retailers would have to meet. In connection with the sugar industry, this announcement was made:

"The critical situation in the sugar markets, anticipated during the Fall months, makes prompt action necessary, and the proclamation of the President will require the licensing by Oct. 1 of all persons, firms, corporations, and associations engaged in the business either of importing sugar, or manufacturing sugar from sugar cane or beets, or of refining sugar or of manufacturing sugar syrups or molasses.

"The issuance of licenses, the promulgation of rules and regulations for the government of licenses, and general control of the sugar industry will rest with the Food Administration and has been already generally discussed and approved by the leading men in the industry. General licensing of the industry will serve as a step toward the regulation of prices by the prevention of speculation and the securing of equitable distribution. The sugar problem being one of distribution as much as of supply, the solution is to be brought about by voluntary agreement with the trades, the essential principles of which have been already settled."

As far as could be learned tonight, the determination to place the sugar industry under license with as little delay as practicable was not caused by protests from sugar producers and refiners which threatened to disrupt the voluntary agreements which have been made. The plan was decided upon, it was said, in order to place the industry on a stable basis and, so far as possible, control prices to the public.

DENIES ROCKEFELLER CONTROLS THE SCHOOLS

William G. Willcox, President of the Board of Education, issued a statement last night answering the attack made by Judge John F. Hylan, Tammany candidate for Mayor, upon the Gary system as applied to the public schools. Mr. Willcox called absurd the Hylan charge that the public schools here had been surrendered to the influence of the Rockefeller Foundation. This report, he said, was presumably based upon the appointment of Dr. Abraham Flexner and Raymond Fosdick as members of the Board of Education.

According to President Willcox, Dr. Flexner, who is one of the Secretaries of the General Education Board, was appointed a member of the board by Mayor Kline in 1913, and had never even met Mayor Mitchel until after his appointment. He said Dr. Flexner resigned in 1917 because his other engagements and frequent absences from New York made it impossible for him to give the necessary attention to the Board of Education.

THROUGH the perspective of fifty years we see a Lincoln staggering under a burden of responsibility almost too great to bear.

Years and history bring those things clear to us now, as they were not clear to many Americans of the early sixties.

Today another President, struggling with as mighty a task as the devoted Lincoln, calls upon the people to save wheat that our soldier sons and allies may have food to sustain them in their fight for liberty.

Shall we hesitate or falter in the smaller things while our leaders engage in greater and more arduous duties?

You Are Asked to Eat Corn Instead of Wheat.

When you eat

Post Toasties

you are eating

the best of selected corn—a food perfected to a deliciousness far surpassing many of the best wheat products. These bubbled flakes have a substance that gets them away from the usual conception of old style corn flakes—thin and wispy. They are a substantial all-year food, not a soggy confection.

And when you eat Post Toasties you have the satisfaction not only of doing full duty to your appetite but the higher satisfaction of helping the men who guide the nation.

SCANDAL

By

COSMO HAMILTON

Because she had wealth, beauty and position and the power they brought, Beatrix Vanderdyke scoffed at conventions and parental control. She ordered her comings and goings to suit her own will, until she ran her head into the noose of a hazardous situation.

Faced with a scandal she boldly announced a secret marriage, and then asked the surprised man to "play up" to her statement. To teach her a lesson he did and Mr. Hamilton's tale of the doing makes a story to satisfy the most exacting reader.

"SCANDAL" is a vivid, human story; a story of people who live and do as hundreds of others are doing around us daily. You probably know just such an independent, well-meaning, but spoiled girl as Beatrix Vanderdyke, around whom Mr. Hamilton has woven his enjoyable story.

ASSAILS CONTRACT FOR MILLION RIFLES

GOOD BARGAIN, SAYS SCOTT

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11. — Contracts for the manufacture of 1,000,000 rifles for the United States Army have been under the scrutiny of members of the House Committee on Appropriations, and from information gained in the executive hearings of that committee it may develop that criticism of the terms of the contracts will be made on the floor of the House.

The contracts were made with the Remington Arms Company, the Remington Arms Union Metallic Cartridge Company, and the Winchester Repeating Arms Company. The papers were signed for the United States by General Crozier, Chief of the Army Bureau of Ordnance, and were examined and approved by the War Industries Board, of which Frank A. Scott is Chairman.

The United States ran into a situation on rifle making which arose from the contracts between the companies and the British Government. The companies made a contract which they felt they could not live up to, and in the general rearrangement the British Government bought the rifle-making machinery and then turned it over again to the companies to make the rifles. Later the United States paid the British Government for half the cost of the same machinery. The United States has about $9,000,000 worth of machinery in the plants.

When this was up for discussion before the Appropriations Committee, Chairman Fitzgerald said:

"The companies get a profit of 10 per cent. on what it costs them to do their work, and in that cost they get a guaranteed return of 6 per cent. on every dollar they have invested, and no manufacturing concern in the world can start with the assumption that no matter what happens it will get 6 per cent. return on every dollar invested."

General Crozier told the committee that the Government had to get the rifles, that the contract seemed to be an equitable one from both sides, and that it would surely produce the guns asked for.

"This contract represents a 10 per cent profit upon the output," said Representative Sherley of Kentucky, "and the cost of the output has figured in it as one of the elements interest upon the investment as well as the working capital of the companies turning out the rifles. If the output is such that it represents a value many times the capital invested, 10 per cent. upon that output will represent many times more than 10 per cent. upon the capital. That raises the question as to whether the Government is warranted in paying 10 per cent. which should represent actually, over a period of fourteen months, perhaps 30 or 40 or 50 per cent. increment upon the capital involved."

General Crozier explained that all those phases of the contract had been debated at sittings at which were present officials of the three companies, officials of the War Department, and members of the Council of National Defense. He said that the 6 per cent. upon the capital invested was in reality a fee for the services of the organization, plant, personnel, and experience.

When Chairman Scott of the War Industries Board appeared before the committee, Representative Fitzgerald asked him how it had been determined that 10 per cent. was a reasonable profit.

"It was the best bargain that could be made under the circumstances," answered Mr. Scott.

"And because it was the best bargain was the contract made regardless of the reasonableness of the price to the Government?" asked Representative Fitzgerald.

"No, Sir," answered Mr. Scott, "this contract will produce rifles at a lower cost than the rifles required by any other Government in the war."

Mr. Scott said that even if the Government did own part of the machinery the most valuable asset of the companies was their organization, and without that the machinery would be of no use.

INTERBORO GETTING IN COAL

Notifies Service Board the Reserve Bunkers Are Nearly Full.

The order of the Public Service Commission that a reserve of 5,000 tons of coal should be kept at the power house of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company in West Fifty-ninth Street and 4,000 tons in the plant in East Seventy-fourth Street, is being complied with as rapidly as possible. Yesterday the company notified the commission that nearly the entire amount was in the bunkers of the plants and that another misadventure like that causing the suspension on the subway for lack of coal was not likely to be repeated.

On Sept. 28 the commission expects to receive from its engineers a report concerning the practicability of connecting the two power houses with a tie line, so that an interchange of power would be possible in case of an accident happening to one of them. Engineers of the company are co-operating with those of the commission in an endeavor to agree upon a report so that both organizations might be able to work together in the matter.

WAR CONDITIONS and the Franklin Car

A PROMINENT man has said that the things that will not stand the test of war conditions are not worthy to survive after the war. It is true that war needs, and the state of mind induced by the war, throw a new light on much that Americans have spent their money for. Among these things is the short-lived car.

Cars have been built and sold on features, novelties, talking points, engine stunts.

One year the whole country talks about a car and next year its users condemn it as a "one year car."

Do not put all the blame on the manufacturer; perhaps his idea of business is to supply the people what they want. It is a much slower process giving them what they ought to have.

Economy Demanded in Motor Car Operation

There has always been a public for the long-service car. Practical, hard-headed men who, even if they buy a new model every year, are shrewd enough to see the relation between long life and used car value.

The second-hand value is especially high where there is the combination of strength, lightness and flexibility, because these things mean economy of operation and long life.

This is emphasized because there is a section of the public that has always associated strength and endurance with dead-weight and rigidity—the very things that pile up operating cost and wear out a car.

It is a fact that war conditions and the National Thrift are making a bigger market for the Franklin as the fine car of the strong, light, flexible type.

The big public is waking up to the truth about gasoline waste, tire mileage, friction loss and depreciation.

People keep right on buying cars—but they are thinking more about constructive service and use.

The automobile is a tremendous factor in American life and achievement, in national health and efficiency, in conservation of human energy, in the ready contact between men and their affairs.

Automobile owners want to use their cars more freely. They are impatient of weight, rigidity, excessive upkeep—all the old and arbitrary restrictions.

What do you, as an American citizen and automobile owner, think about this matter?

Do you favor a restriction of use, or a restriction of waste?

Official Economy Tests Won by the Franklin

The Franklin has won every prominent official economy test ever conducted, and continued to win so long as the official tests were run.

Two Gallon Efficieney Test, May 15, 1906, under the official supervision of the Automobile Club of America—won by the Franklin with a record of 87 miles. The Franklin average was 75 per cent above the average record of all competing cars.

Long Island Economy Contest, February 23, 1908, under the official supervision of the Long Island Automobile Club—the Franklin won over all contestants by doing 242 miles at an operating cost of only one and one-fifth cents per mile. The costs of all other cars averaged six cents per mile—five times the Franklin operating cost.

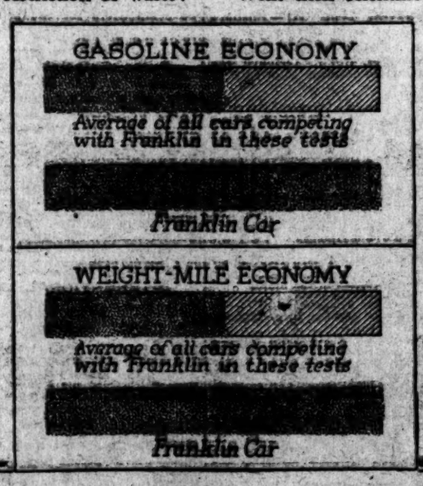
One Gallon Efficieney Test May 8, 1909, under the official supervision of the New York Automobile Trade Association, with twenty-one cars entered in competition—the Franklin Car went 36.8 miles on one gallon of gasoline and scored 105,408 weight-miles. The Franklin Car not only won the prize for the best score in its price class, but also the Willys' trophy for the best score irrespective of price class.

Buffalo One Gallon Economy Contest, July 11th, 1909, under the official supervision of the Automobile Club of Buffalo—the Franklin set a world's record for gasoline economy of 46.1 miles on one gallon; 79 per cent more than the average of the other eighteen competing cars. The Franklin scored 135,902 weight-miles as against the best competing score of 86,612 weight-miles, and the average competing score of 64,495 weight-miles.

Fuel Economy Test of Franklin Cars, June 20, 1913, under the official supervision of the Automobile Club of America—a Franklin Roadster made a new world's mileage of 83.5 miles on one gallon of gasoline.

It is remarkable how these official economy tests are confirmed by the nation-wide experience of Franklin owners. The Franklin goes a given distance on one-half the gasoline consumed by the average fine car—and for the same yearly mileage costs about one-third as much for tires.

Franklin Car Sets New National Thrift Standard of 40.3 Miles to one Gallon of Gasoline. On July 13th, 1917, 179 Franklin dealers throughout the country over roads, bad as well as good, in weather partly fair and partly rainy, again demonstrated the efficiency and thrift of the Franklin Car. The single gallon of commercial gasoline used by each Series 9 stock car participating, produced the remarkable national average of 40.3 miles. Six cars scored over 60 miles to the single gallon of gasoline; nineteen cars made between 50 and 60 miles; sixty-one cars recorded between 40 and 50 miles. All results were attested to by driver and observers before Notary Publics.



How Franklin Thrift Applies to the Enclosed Car

With their scientific light weight, resiliency and direct-air-cooling, the Franklin Enclosed Cars show within a mere fraction the same remarkable economy as the open models, and the same day-after-day mobility.

For any kind of touring the Franklin Enclosed models are ideal—affording protection from dust, glare and rain, freely ventilated, cool and restful.

This means that one car does the work of two—and the owner of a Franklin Enclosed Car gets his year-'round motor car service on practically half the initial investment of the man who has to buy one car for summer use and another for winter.

Touring Car $2050, 4 Passenger Roadster $2050, 2 Passenger Roadster $2000, Brougham $2900, Sedan $2950, Cabriolet $2850, Limousine $3200, Town Car $3200.

TWO LATE RALLIES PUT GIANTS AHEAD

BURNS DECIDES OPENER

Left Fielder Smashes Home Run for Victory—McCarty's Pinch Hit Accounts for Second.

The Giants tantalized the Dodgers out of a couple of games up at the Polo Grounds yesterday, leading them on in both pastimes until the end, when, in each case, the Giants snatched both arguments out of the furnace. The first wrangle was glued at 2 to 2 in the tenth when Georgie Burns belted the first ball Sherry Smith flipped at him to the stockade in right centre for a home run and won, 3 to 2, while in the second game Brooklyn led at 1 to 0 in the ninth, when McGraw's lads concentrated their punch on old Jack Coombs and pushed over two runs which gave them the final exertion of the waning afternoon, 2 to 1.

The future National League champions showed a little gumption and impressed the outgoing champions with the fact that they musn't monkey with the buzzsaw. From now on the Giants will merely hold daily rehearsals in preparation for a little date they have later on with the Chicago White Sox. We never believe that the Giants of yesterday were the same folks who were trimmed twice by the Dodgers on Monday. In both games Brooklyn seemed positive winners right up to the final blowup, for they did not figure on the kick that McGraw's men were saving up.

Andy Anderson got into both games at the end and proved himself a handy Andy. He is getting a lot of valuable practice finishing games for other pitchers. By the time the big series comes he ought to be good. Even Al Demaree, who pitched the tenth inning of the first rumpus, was in shape.

Herzog Leaves for Farm.

Captain Charley Herzog has gone to his farm in Maryland for a much-needed vacation. He is under the care of a specialist, and will get back into proper condition before he plays again. It wouldn't be surprising if Herzog lays off for a couple of weeks. By that time his physician believes that his strained back will be O. K.

In victory McGraw used his reserve players with great success, and slipped pinch-hitters and runners into the games with faultless judgment. The New York players behaved with a snap and dash which marked their playing against the Phillies last week. They were on their toes all the time and never lost confidence, even when the outlook was decidedly foggy.

In the first game, the Dodgers pried open Sallee's pitching for their runs. Johnston started off with a double to left and Hickman hoisted a fly to Robertson. Cutshaw slapped a single to centre, scoring Johnston, and went to second on Kauff's throw to the plate. Krueger poked a single to right and Cutshaw chased home, the trip being simplified because Robertson fumbled the ball.

It was an easy 2 to 0 game for the Robins until the eighth, when, with one out, Wilhoit was inserted to bat for Sallee and responded with a two-base smash off the right field wall. Burns jammed a single to centre, which scored Wilhoit.

Burns Breaks Up Game.

Burns was the first man to face Smith in the tenth and he gave the first ball pitched a terrific lacing to the fence, romping around the bases as if the Germans were after him. That's the way the Giants won that ball game and now here comes another.

Perritt was a trifle unsteady in the first inning of this second affair and after Olson popped out, Daubert rolled a hopper through second. Jimmy Smith sort of waved his hand at it, but it was nothing more than a flirtation, and Daubert got another one of his lucky hits. Ivy Myers slammed a single to centre, sending Daubert to third, and Jake went home when Casey Stengel hoisted a sacrifice fly to Burns. Perritt settled down after that and gave the Robins only two hits.

Coombs exercised his slow ball magic over the Giants for eight innings, but in the ninth the secrets of his pitching were an open book. Benny Kauff started the fun in the ninth with a two-base whack to left and went to third when Zim died at first. Fletcher was hit by a pitched ball, but as Coombs was pitching, of course it didn't hurt. Baird had succeeded Smith at second and it was young Baird's turn at bat, but McGraw sent Lew McCarty to the plate and Lew delivered with a single to left which sent Benny home with the tying run.

Holke was walked intentionally and there was a capacity audience on the bases. Bill Rariden jammed a grasser down to Cutshaw, who had an easy force out at the plate, but his toss was high and Fletcher slid in with the winning run.

YANKEES MAKE BID FOR FIRST DIVISION

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 11.—The Yankees moved to within two games of the first division today, when they again took both ends of a double-header with the Mackmen while the Tigers were falling before the Indians. High-class pitching and errorless fielding featured the work of the Donovan men in both games. The Athletics were able to pick up only one run in eighteen innings. In the opener Nick Cullop pitched shutout ball and got the verdict over Joe Bush, 1 to 0. In the second game Urban Shocker won, 4 to 1.

The Yanks hit Bush hard in the opening game, but he had the habit of putting on full speed with runners on bases. He retired the side in the fourth when, with a run in and one out, the bases were loaded. In the fifth inning the first three New Yorkers to face Bush got on the sacks, yet there was no scoring.

New York's only run was scored on a wild pitch by Bush. With one out in the fourth inning Miller walked, Gedeon bunted safely, and Baker beat out a single to deep short, filling the bases. While Pipp was at the plate Bush made his wild pitch, and Miller raced in.

In the second section Shocker struck out ten men. In the first inning he fanned McInnis with second and third occupied, and in the seventh he turned the trick again under similar conditions when Mack sent up Griffin as pinch hitter for Noyes.

Pipp's batting featured this victory. The big first baseman got a double and two singles in four times at bat. Pipp's hits figured in all the run getting.

The Mackmen did all their scoring in the first inning. With the first two batsmen retired in order, Strunk, Bodie, and Bates singled in succession, the first named scoring on the third hit.

The Yanks went ahead in the second. Baker singled to right. Pipp got a single to left, and both counted on Nunamaker's double to the right-field fence. In the seventh Pipp doubled, reached third on an out, and scored on the squeeze play, with Shocker laying down the bunt. Passes to Gedeon and Baker, a poor throw by Meyer, and Pipp's single added a run in the ninth.

PLAN TO REORGANIZE 27TH ARMY DIVISION

Several Regiments Will Be Consolidated and Many Officers Dropped as the Result.

WILL HAVE ONLY 2 BRIGADES

Surplus of Over 3,600 Infantrymen Will Be Made Into French Mortar Artillerists.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMP WADSWORTH, Spartanburg, S. C., Sept. 11.—Abolition of several famous New York regiments through consolidation, and the transfer to other divisions or to the inactive list of many officers, ranking from Colonels down, are provided for in the plans of reorganization of the Twenty-seventh Division, which have been approved by the War Department. It is impossible to announce at present what officers or organizations are to be dropped.

In order to rush troops into camp so that the work of reconstruction may be started without loss of time, orders will be issued tomorrow for the southward movement of the Second Infantry of Troy, Third Infantry of Buffalo, and the First Squadron of the First Cavalry, stationed at Brooklyn.

While Major Gen. O'Ryan and his staff are silent on the reorganization scheme, an outline of it has been obtained from a substantial source. According to this information, there will be a surplus rather than a shortage of officers, and in view of this the opinion is that the 200 reserve officers originally assigned to duty with the Guard will be turned back, probably to the national army, at the end of the training here.

It was said that among the officers to be dropped would be five Colonels, five Lieutenant Colonels, fifteen Majors, seventy-six Captains, seventy-six First Lieutenants and seventy-six Second Lieutenants. As the Guard now is constituted the infantry table of organization is:

Regiments, totaling 18,018 men, nine Colonels, nine Lieutenant Colonels, twenty-seven Majors, 108 Captains, 108 First Lieutenants and 108 Second Lieutenants.

This old organization is apportioned in three brigades, one brigade Generalship being vacant since the withdrawal of Brig. Gen. Hamilton's nomination. The two others are commanded by Brig. Gens. James W. Lester and C. L. Mitchie. The new table makes divisional infantry strength approximately 14,400 men and officers, provides for two brigades of two regiments, each of the latter of 3,600 men, and allows posts for the following ranks: Four Colonels, 4 Lieutenant Colonels, 12 Majors, 32 Captains, 32 First Lieutenants, and 32 Second Lieutenants.

As the present regimental infantry complement is 2,002 men and the new strength is set at 3,600, the reorganization will leave a surplus of 3,618 infantrymen. These men, it is understood, will be made into trench mortar artillerists.

One brigade of artillery is provided for in the new Twenty-seventh. This is to be under command of Brig. Gen. C. E. Phillips, U. S. A., and is to be composed of the First and Second Field Artillery and the Third Heavy Artillery. The Third is equipped with 4.7 guns, while the other units carry three-inch guns similar to the famous French "75s." A slight increase in the enlisted personnel is planned for each of the regiments, with an extra Lieutenant detailed to each battery.

As has already been announced, the First Cavalry and Squadron A are to be converted into machine-gun companies, and in order to provide sufficient units to permit three companies to be assigned to the artillery and two to each infantry organization, any surplus of infantry that may result will be turned into the machine-gun branch.

Whether any changes are contemplated for the Twenty-second Engineers could not be ascertained, but it was learned that there would be no alteration made in the following units: Headquarters troop and train, military police, supply train, ammunition train, First, Second, Third, and Fourth Field Hospitals, First Field Bakery, and the First, Second, Third, Fourth, and Headquarters Ambulance Companies.

Major Gen. O'Ryan formally was sworn into the national army this morning by Major J. Leslie Kincaid, Judge Advocate. The taking of the oath was witnessed by the division staff, and occurred in the General's temporary headquarters—one of the mess halls to be used by the Seventh Infantry upon its arrival.

After the ceremony General O'Ryan again addressed the reserve officers, elaborating upon his topic of yesterday, and warned the new officers against trying to exert influence to obtain appointment to the division. He declared that any letters of recommendation which he received would be attached to the officers' efficiency record, and if too many of the laudatory missives were sent in, the unfortunate candidate probably would be overlooked when the time arrived for assignment and promotion. The General made it very clear that only ability would count.

BAKER MAKES SURPRISE VISIT TO ARMY CAMP

Officers Who Intended to Invite Him Fail to Recognize Secretary as He Walks by Them.

CHILLICOTHE, Ohio, Sept. 11.—Newton D. Baker, Secretary of War, come to this city today to inspect Camp Sherman, the national army cantonment here, but through a comedy of errors he did not receive the kind of welcome usually given the head of the War Department at a military post. In fact, Secretary Baker had left his train and had started to walk to the centre of the city before officers from Camp Sherman met him with automobiles. They had not learned of his intended visit until a few minutes before the train arrived.

The Secretary of War was not recognized at the railroad station. Neither was he recognized as he walked down the street, although he passed many officers and enlisted men. The camp officers who met him learned of his visit through press dispatches to a local newspaper. They made a wild dash by automobile to the station, three miles distant, but when they arrived he had left. They found him walking along the street.

Secretary Baker came to Ohio to address a convention of bankers at Columbus. Major Gen. E. F. Glenn left in his automobile for Columbus this morning to invite Mr. Baker to inspect the camp. In the meantime Secretary Baker decided to come without invitation and was en route here while General Glenn was en route to Columbus.

A telephone message stopped General Glenn and he hurried back to camp, where he officially welcomed the Secretary, who immediately got to the business in hand and began a rapid-fire battery of questions about the camp, equipment, supplies, and conditions generally. He then made a tour of the camp, leaving for Columbus on a special train at 1 o'clock with General Glenn.

"I am very well pleased with Camp Sherman," said Secretary Baker as he left for his train.

NEW ARMY BEGINS DRILL AT YAPHANK

Special to The New York Times.

CAMP UPTON, Yaphank, L. I., Sept. 11.—Showing a willingness to learn that exceeded the most optimistic hopes of their officers, the first contingent of the national army lost no time today in getting down to work. One whole day spent in the open air, with simple but ample camp food, already has made the thin city man loosen his belt, while his more portly companion has drawn a buckle a notch tighter.

The First Sergeant's whistle blew at 5:45 this morning, and the men lined up fifteen minutes later for reveille formation. This was followed by brisk setting-up exercises which increased the appetite for oatmeal, bacon, bread and coffee. The next on the program, the men were told, was police duty, and they had visions of being armed with nightsticks and sent to oversee the $30-a-week laborers completing the building of the camp. But the recruits soon found that the military term for police duty means housecleaning in civil life, and they set to work putting the barracks in order.

Details of a hundred men each from every barracks were sent to the temporary hospitals for physical examinations, where they were thoroughly gone over by army surgeons. A small number were held for more searching examinations tomorrow. Although today was scheduled as being devoted to medical examinations, preliminary drills were begun.

As one company marched along a road north of its barracks it passed a platoon of officers divided into squads, practicing the very things that are taught to recruits. Although the incident was unusual, and the officers needed no such teaching, it is an indication of the thoroughness of the instruction planned for the national army in which even the elementals are standardized before officers begin to train new men.

English Language Only Spoken.

Another instance of the benefit many will receive from the national army was shown by the bulletin board in a barracks where men from the vicinity of Mott Street are quartered. Captain James Sproule, the officer in charge, has many nationalities under him, and he posted a notice to the effect that none but the English language will be spoken in the building. The men are keen to learn. One group of east siders viewed the time waiting to noon mess to volunteer drill, and many asked the regular army Sergeants to show them the wig-wag signals that they saw the men from the Fifteenth Colored Infantry practicing.

Every officer at Camp Union who saw the recruits drill was enthusiastic over the splendid spirit shown and the high quality of the men obtained for the national army. The summary of present occupations of the recruits show that the new armies will be made up of men of almost every trade. In the contingent that reported yesterday there are 26 machinists, 26 cooks, 48 plumbers, 111 who know gas engines or who can operate either automobiles or motor trucks, 22 electricians, 9 horseshoers, 7 druggists, 48 pipe-fitters, 3 miners, 17 engineer graduates, 22 draftsmen, 8 surveyors, 16 accountants, 40 bookkeepers, and 5 blacksmiths. In all, 88 occupations are represented, including 2 actors, 14 bandsmen and 12 policemen.

Of the 2,200 recruits now at Yaphank, 71 are college graduates and 95 have had previous military experience. Twenty-seven speak French, while 116 can call upon a German to surrender in his own language.

The men had the opportunity to state which branch of the service they preferred to enter, but it was said these preferences would not be followed in all cases, owing to the fact that some attractive branches might be oversubscribed. The fact that 722 men gave infantry as their first choice was looked upon by camp officers as a remarkable number. For the Quartermaster's Corps there were 561 applicants. Four hundred and thirteen wanted to enter the field artillery, while only 14 care for the heavy artillery. Only 5 chose cavalry; other preferences were engineers, 183; Signal Corps, 71; aviation, 52; Medical Corps, 53; coast artillery, 52; Ordnance Corps, 17; machine gun units, 7; wagon trains, 4, and Veterinarian Corps, 1.

Captain J. S. S. Richardson, U. S. R., has been appointed the Camp Intelligence Officer. Captain Richardson, who is a graduate of Edinburgh University, and fought in the Boer War, was formerly a newspaper man and was also a correspondent at Vera Cruz. He also accompanied General Pershing's expedition into Mexico.

With only fifty officers in charge of the recruits, the remainder of the 1,000 reserve officers at Camp Upton not attached to the Quartermaster Corps or construction work are attending officers' schools, continuing their Plattsburg instruction.

Song Festival for Soldiers.

Major Gen. J. Franklin Bell sent a message to those of the enrolled quotas who are still in New York asking them to go to the singing festival to be held in Central Park tomorrow and Friday by the Community Chorus and to meet its leader, who will soon take charge of some of the recreation features at the army camps.

"I hope to attend the festival," General Bell said, "and will be delighted if this invitation meets with a ready response on the part of these men."

Those in charge of the Song and Light Festival met at luncheon at the City Club yesterday, when Mr. Barnhart, with Secretary Barnett Braslow and M. Morgenthau, Jr., Chairman of the Finance Committee, announced the program for Thursday and Friday nights in the Park. Last evening the Community Chorus held a final rehearsal, as the orchestra had previously, and today Mr. Barnhart was to put the soldiers of the Twenty-third and Seventy-first Regiments through their song drills.

The Twenty-third Regiment men will sing Thursday night, and the Seventy-first Regiment on Friday evening, marching into the Park from the West Seventy-second Street gate. With a fanfare of trumpets, the lights will go on and an orchestra of seventy pieces will play Wagner's "Fire Music," followed by the chorus in Gounod's "Send Out Thy Light."

Mayor Mitchel is to speak, and the entire crowd on the shores of the lake will be asked to sing the "Hymn of New Russia," Farwell's "March, March," and Griffith's "These Things Shall Be."

The Community Chorus will perform Gaul's "The Holy City," with a chorus of 1,000 children joining in the responses of "Holy, Holy." Then the people will have their turn at the old stephen foster songs, and the soldiers will close with Handel's "Hallelujah" Chorus, "America," and "The Star-Spangled Banner."

Fisk before going aboard was asked to make a farewell statement.

"My men are fit and ready," he said. "Of course, we all have a lot to learn about this business of war, but we intend to learn, and learn quickly."

General Appleton followed with his tribute.

"This regiment is 106 years old," he said. "It has always done its duty, and it always will. It is ready, to a man."

One Fisk Stayed Behind.

The Hospital Corps was the first to enter the trains, and the regimental band followed. Practically the last to get aboard was Colonel Fisk, after bidding good-bye to his 4-year-old grandson, Clinton Fisk, the "only man in the family" to remain behind. The father of the boy is Captain of Company D in the Seventh.

The first section of the Seventh train carrying the regimental headquarters was under command of Colonel Fisk, with Major Robert Mazet of the Second Battalion in charge of the second section and Major James E. Schuyler of the Third Battalion in command of the last section. Companies A, B, C, D, E, and F were in the second section, and Companies G, H, I, K, L, and M in the third section. Each section of the train was a unit in itself so far as equipment was concerned. Each had an improvised cook car fitted with stoves set in sand and boxed with zinc. This will make it possible to keep the men constantly supplied with well-cooked meals while they travel.

The following is a roster of the commissioned officers in the regiment: Colonel, Willard Clinton Fisk; Lieutenant Colonel, Robert McLean; Majors, James E. Schuyler, Robert Mazet; and Nicholas Engel; Major William Edgar McCord, Chaplain; Captain, Douglas Connell Despard, Regimental Adjutant; First Lieutenant Charles Peter Loeser, Battalion Adjutant; First Lieutenant Edward Henry Kent, Battalion Adjutant; First Lieutenant Harry Lincoln Stratton, Battalion Adjutant; Captain Kenneth Gardner, First Lieutenant Kenneth C. Wilson, Second Lieutenant Edward Willis, and Second Lieutenant Alfred B. Harding, Machine Gun Company; Captain Arthur M. Smith and Second Lieutenant Hiram W. Taylor, Supply Company; Company A—Captain Henry B. Heylman, First Lieutenant George P. Nichols, and Second Lieutenant Fred Le Roy Sterns; Company B —First Lieutenant John Kerr, Second Lieutenant Ford M. Terry; Company C —Captain Louis C. Raecke, First Lieutenant Edwin S. Munson, Second Lieutenant Ralph W. Burroughs; Company D—Captain Clinton E. Fisk, First Lieutenant Thomas J. Brady, Second Lieutenant Arthur C. Lunley; Company E—Captain Leo F. Knust, First Lieutenant Benjamin T. Hammond, Second Lieutenant Stephen M. Schwab; Company F —Captain George P. Nichols, First Lieutenant William G. Le Compt, Second Lieutenant Beverley L. F. Burnham; Company G—Captain Maxwell B. Nesbitt, First Lieutenant Marston E. Drake, Second Lieutenant William S. Hawkins; Company H—Captain Rowland Tompkins, First Lieutenant Clarence T. Baldwin, Second Lieutenant Richard MacIntyre; Company I—Captain Wade H. Hayes, First Lieutenant Percy M. Hall, Second Lieutenant Francis L. Gould; Company K—Captain John A. Barnard, First Lieutenant Harry W. Hayward, Second Lieutenant Griswold B. Daniells; Company L—Captain Fancher Nicoll, First Lieutenant Robert A. Byrnes, Second Lieutenant Arthur J. McKenna; Company M—Captain Richard W. Colman, First Lieutenant Murray E. Cramer, Second Lieutenant Charles W. Hagen.

$10,000 FOR YAPHANK Y. M. C. A.

Woman Suffrage Party Gives Funds to Start a Branch.

The New York Woman Suffrage Party announced yesterday that it had given $10,000 for the establishment of a Y. M. C. A. branch at Camp Upton, Yaphank. Mrs. F. Louis Slade, Chairman of the War Suffrage Committee of the party, in making the announcement of the gift made public a letter of thanks from Frederick Eldridge of rten Greater New York Division of the National War Work Council of the Y. M. C. A.

This $10,000 completes a donation of $22,000 given by the New York City suffragists for the welfare of the soldiers. For a Y. M. C. A. unit at Plattsburg the suffragists gave $12,000.

KNIT FOR "RAINBOW" DIVISION.

Women's Service League to Supply Warm Garments.

The National League for Women's Service will begin today a campaign of knitting to help equip the men of the "Rainbow" division at Mineola with warm garments. The women will make sleeveless sweaters, scarfs, wristlets, and other garments. The league made public yesterday a letter from Major Gen. William A. Mann, commander of the division, in which he said: "When the winds blow and the storms beat this Winter, there will be many a man of the Rainbow huddled around a campfire in Flanders who will think of you with a grateful heart."

CAMP FUNSTON, Ft. Riley, Kan., Sept. 11.—The Eighty-ninth National Army Division is going to be distinctive in its personnel, providing Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood, commanding, can make it so. An order just issued provides:

"Officers will be required to wear service hats, with chin straps down, instead of caps, and will wear blouses when leaving the reservation. They will carry either bamboo riding crops or light canes. All enlisted men will be encouraged to carry swagger sticks."

MARY GARDEN HERE.

Thinner from War Rations, She Says—Wears Two Decorations.

Miss Mary Garden, the American operatic soprano, returned yesterday from France. She said that she had lost fifteen pounds in weight through living on war rations, and that Paris, with its war bread, was a good place in which to grow thin.

She wore a black velvet brocaded suit, with brown fur stole, a black picture hat, and carried a cane. She wore two decorations; one was the Red Cross of Serbia and the other the wreath of patriotic devotion, bestowed by the French Government in recognition of her work among the children of Paris.

Miss Garden said that she had succumbed to the attractions of the movies and would start today in the Goldwyn production of "Thais." She did not know whether she would ever sing in opera again.

"Baby" Marlow to Go on the Stage.

Albertine Marlow, who, as "Baby" Marlow, received considerable notoriety about six months ago, is to go upon the stage. In March last Miss Marlow was accused by Mrs. Robert Nolker of taking $1,000 from her handbag, but was subsequently acquitted and is now suing for damages for false arrest. Miss Marlow, who is 18, will have a part in the new revue at the Century.

KKK "Keep Kolynos in Your Kit"

From military and Red Cross Hospitals in Great Britain and France—especially base hospitals, where mouth wounds and fractures of the jaw are frequently treated, many letters have been received testifying to the great usefulness of Kolynos.

This from a brave young woman who has now returned to America:

"243 West 103rd Street, New York,
"August 9th, 1917.

"Dear Sirs:

I was an auxiliary nurse in France last year. My work was mostly in the dental department of the Hospital at Neuilly Sur Seine. I saw wonderful results from the use of Kolynos and am glad to give you my testimonial. I use it constantly myself. * * *

"Very sincerely,

Marjorie Kay."

As a soldier on land or sea, "Keep Kolynos in Your Kit." The doctors in the hospitals at Neuilly are among those who have written concerning the great use Kolynos is to them in their work. If you are making up a "Comfy Kit" for a soldier—a tube of Kolynos first—shoestrings second—and then the other things.

NEW YORK, WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 12, 1917.

WHY KORNILOFF REBELLED.

The civil war in Russia is the long-expected meeting between the forces of construction and those of disintegration. It is a short-sighted view of this great event to centre it around General KORNILOFF, to speak as if he were an ambitious soldier attempting to impose military rule upon the country for his own purposes. In a certain true sense there is no such man as KORNILOFF. He is merely the representative of those forces which, long shamably quiescent, have at last coalesced to stop the rapid deliquescence of Russia, to keep it a nation, to halt its dissolution, to save it, in a word.

Toward this event all the history of Russia for the last four or five months has been irresistibly tending. The curse of the country has been the placidity of the intelligent classes in the presence of a growing anarchy which visibly threatened utter disorganization and chaos. It was out of the question for Russia to remain as she was, merely helpless and floundering; anarchy does not remain stationary, but grows, and her visible doom was complete wreck, not merely as a state, but as a people. The intelligent classes were not wholly blameworthy for their long inaction. Being intelligent, they realized and feared what was implied in civil war. The anarchists, if they realized it, did not fear it, and their ignorant dupes did not realize it. Therefore the anarchists have had the advantage of being perfectly reckless of consequences to the Russian edifice; they could throw stones without care, while the forces of law and order hesitated to throw stones for fear of breaking windows. With an anarchic force knowing what it wanted and resolute on getting it without regard to consequences, and a conservative force afraid to strike for fear of those very consequences, of course the resolute anarchists have had all the advantage on their side, and this is why Russia has been descending to the pit with such horrifying celerity.

The fact that not merely bad government, but ruin to the nation, was the inevitable and approaching end finally stirred the conservative forces to reluctant action, and for some months the signs of their coalescence have been growing. The issue came at the Moscow Conference, when the two forces stood face to face. Some correspondents short-sightedly telegraphed that the Moscow Conference was without result. Never was there a greater mistake. It will live in history as one of the world's crises. There order and anarchy met, the challenge was thrown down and accepted, and the two armies separated to prepare for battle. There, for the first time, order was able to count its ranks. The assurance the count gave was satisfactory. Order found that it had at its command the whole force of the Cossacks, not merely as a sentiment but as an actual organization, under the leadership of General KALEDINES. This meant that a solid block of territory greater in size than Germany and Austria was not only united but ready to fight for the salvation of the nation. Order learned, too, that the peasant proprietors were enrolling themselves in organizations, that the Knights of St. George, who represented 80,000,000 acres, had formed a military association. Sure of the Cossacks and the peasants, there remained the army, and what order learned of the army was not made known; but it must have been satisfactory enough to warrant KORNILOFF's movement.

There was no conspiracy. The forces of order were open enough. They wanted KERENSKY with them, and showed him their hand. He had his choice to make, and when the test came he preferred to throw his lot in with socialism, with all its demonstrated inability to control the anarchists, rather than with those who want an ordered constitutional democracy like ours. When the conference adjourned, with his warning to the conservatives that he would permit no such movement as theirs, what was coming was plain to both sides, and both sides repaired to their tents to get their ammunition.

How foolish it is, then, to speak of KORNILOFF as an individual, or to think of him as a military usurper. He is merely the leader of the movement to carry out General KALEDINES's warning to the Socialist Government at the Moscow conference:

> We Cossacks have been free men. We are not made drunk by new-found liberties and are unblinded by party or program. We tell you plainly and categorically, remove yourselves from the place which you have neither the ability nor the courage to fill and let better men than yourselves step in, or take the consequences of your folly.

KORNILOFF, the representative of this movement to restore order, invited KERENSKY to participate in it, but the answer was his removal from office; a mere gesture, an empnatic way of replying in the negative. The offer itself was only a punctilio. Having discharged his conscience by making it, KORNILOFF proceeded to the next step, and moved on Petrograd. Something of this same peculiarly Russian punctiliousness is seen in General DENIKINE, commander of the southwestern armies, who telegraphs KERENSKY the information that he intends to support KORNILOFF. Of course it is no news to KERENSKY, for the forces of order have proceeded in broad daylight with the execution of their plan.

The centrifugal and centripetal forces in Russia have now met in battle for the mastery. The result will determine whether Russia is to remain a nation or become the football of Europe. It will decide whether the dance of death that has been going on for six months is to end in tragedy or in an ordered peace; whether the Carmagnole is to give way to the steady march of a free democracy, or whether a country which is potentially one of the greatest nations the world has ever known shall reel in drunken frenzy over the precipice of socialism into the abyss of anarchy.

THE MURPHY FOUNDATION.

Certain enrolled Tammany men of the Sixth Assembly District, following the fashion, have come out of the dwindling congregation of the faithful, joined the City Democracy, and declared their support of Mayor MITCHEL. Secession from Tammany Hall is become a habit, the frequency of which may well alarm the statisticians of East Fourteenth Street. These Sixth Assembly Districters mark their exit by a series of whereases, all of which must be painful to the admirers of calumniated virtue. For example:

> Whereas every Democrat in New York knows very well that Tammany Hall today is a private corporation conducted solely for the personal benefit of MURPHY'S ring of chosen favorites, who wax fat on favors, while the district workers of the organization who do all the work starve for want of decent recognition.

Even more painful to the Chief, because nearer home, must be the revolt in Mr. MURPHY'S own district, the Twelfth, where, after denouncing their old leader "and his henchman MCCOOEY," the Democratic Club, the Tammany organization, resolved:

> That this organization of enrolled Democrats of the Twelfth Assembly District, in open meeting, denounces the Murphy policy of jamming unknowns on the ticket, and pledges itself and its best efforts, as a means of eradicating Murphyism from New York's Democracy, to the cause of independent Democracy espoused by Mayor MITCHEL, and further pledges itself to work for the election of the ticket headed by Mayor MITCHEL as the best means available to cleanse the Democracy of its misfit overlords.

It is for Judge HYLAN to repel this regrettable assault upon the Murphy Foundation for Civic Regeneration and the Phlebotomy of Plutocracy.

"AS GOES MAINE."

Maine is the fourteenth State in which woman suffrage has been voted down at the polls since 1912. Most of the Dirigo politicians "threw their whole souls" into the campaign for emancipation. With their eloquence and their charm feminist leaders did their best to enlighten the Down Easters. Former Senator OBADIAH GARDNER led, or tried to lead, the State Grange to the assault upon chains and slavery. Former Senator JOHNSON, former State Attorney General PATTANGALL, a mighty man among the Democrats; most of the Maine members of Congress, pleaded for suffrage. Colonel ROOSEVELT sent his vigorous solicitations to a State once full of his worshippers. Mr. WILSON, constantly magnanimous, gave the benefit of his great influence, and the public regard and respect for him, beyond and aside from party lines, to the amendment.

The weather was bland. The vote was heavy for a special election. Suffrage was beaten in the cities. It was beaten in the country towns. It was beaten nearly two to one. "We are counting on the Maine soldiers," said the Chairman of the Woman Suffrage Party of New York, still nursing unconquerable hope in spite of the early election returns. Well, the regiment named after Governor MILLIKEN voted No by 340 to 151. The One Hundred and Third Regiment (Second Maine Infantry) voted No by 274 to 140. And so on. Soldier and civilian, farmer and factory operative, city and country, rejected the Cause. It was a smashing defeat.

"There will probably never be another suffrage campaign in Maine," says Mrs. CARRIE CHAPMAN CATT, "save for purposes of ratification. The Federal suffrage amendment is surely going to pass and soon. * * * More and more our work concentrates upon Washington as the immediate focal point." It is no fault of Mrs. CATT, or of the reasonable suffragists, the majority, but the "pestering" which the suffrage Extreme Left has been and is still engaged in at Washington has concentrated public attention and disgust upon that spectacle of feminine wisdom, patriotism, and political capacity. The feeling aroused by it, however unjust to the saner aspects of the suffrage agitation, is deep, strong, and universal. That feeling, in itself fatal to the extension of woman suffrage, must have counted for something, for much, in the Maine verdict, but there is a stronger reason. When the nation is fighting for its life, when the greatest and the gravest issues have stirred it to its depths, woman suffrage seems, nay is, but an impertinence and a futility. When our young men are assembling and training for battle, it is natural that the ability to fight should be exalted, that the plea of woman for the ballot should fall on deaf ears. Nevada and Montana, won three years ago, are likely to be the only popular triumphs that the suffragists can boast of for some years to come. State Legislatures remain their only hope and the most prosperous field for their blandishments.

"The defeat of the woman constitutional amendment in Maine," says Mrs. NORMAN WHITEHOUSE, "has no bearing at all on the suffrage situation in New York State. The carrying of a State amendment for suffrage is a matter of education. The Maine voters have not been sufficiently educated, that is all." In 1915 New York State gave a majority of 188,313 against woman suffrage. It was then insufficiently educated. How great will be that majority this Fall, when the State has been enlightened by the decorous and sagacious behavior of the Washington martyrs and by the sobering and stern discipline and thought which national peril brings?

When democracy itself is at stake, the "emancipation of woman" is of the smallest moment. It is the misfortune of the suffragists that the question comes up again in a year that finds the voters in no disposition for sentimentality and compliment, intent on urgent dangers and duties, military and economic, irritated by the stress laid by the suffragists on their "emancipation." Amid cruelty, starvation, death on land, death from the air and water, and while the flower of American youth is getting ready for its part in the tragedy of the world, these excellent persons are going up and down the country preaching their whimsey.

GERMANY NEED NOT SPEAK.

It will save a great deal of useless language if we all keep firmly in our minds the essential fact that Germany has nothing to explain about the murderous dispatches which Count LUXBURG sent through the Swedish Legation at Buenos Aires. Germany is not called upon to explain. It is true that LUXBURG is a German diplomat, occupying a sacred office, the scrupulously respected guest of Argentina, and that he used this hospitality to plot the murder of Argentine citizens and the destruction of Argentine property under cover of this sacred character. But, although the usages of diplomacy make it necessary for Germany to offer whatever excuse she can to Argentina, she has nothing to explain to the world. It has long ceased to be necessary for Germany to explain her treacheries. The world expects them as a matter of course from Germany, expects that a German diplomat shall plot against the country to which he is sent, and expects that the nature of his plots will be atrocious. Explanations at this stage of the game are merely fatiguing and excite neither interest nor attention.

It is Sweden which has to explain to the world as well as to Argentina. Sweden will find the Allies much more keenly interested in her explanation than the country whose hospitality she has abused. The explanation she offered yesterday is not the explanation for which the world is waiting. The world wants to know, not what was the general custom about sending telegrams from belligerents, but why the private mail of a Swedish diplomat, inviolate from inspection by international courtesy, was used to convey military information to Germany for use in making secret war upon a neutral country.

The Allies are particularly interested in knowing how far this practice extends and what the alliance between Germany and Sweden covers any other points than a friendly arrangement that Sweden shall aid Germany in the assassination of neutrals. The world wants an explanation which shall be broad enough to make it understand how far it can trust any Swedish diplomat, whether a Swede in office is necessarily a disguised agent of Germany or not. It wants particularly to know about the Swedish officials who received the murder messages, and its interest in them is even greater than in the Swedish officials who forwarded them. It wants to know how extensive and how binding were the relations between these officials and Germany, and in what other and unrevealed ways they have been aiding Germany in the prosecution of war against the Allies and the neutrals.

Argentina appears to be stunned by the discovery of the contempt and hostility with which she has been treated. Foreign Secretary [illegible] says it is necessary to "study the psychology of neutrals." He has a good subject just now in Argentina. If Argentina's astonishment at the discovery that German officials could be at once so base and so cruel, at a time when they were wearing a smiling mask, appears a little surprising to us, let us remember how short a time it is since we ourselves were trying to believe German promises, were bandying notes with German statesmen on the assumption that they were men of honor. We were deaf, then, to what was told us by other nations about Germany's cool and deliberate preference for wrong over right as a rule of conduct, and we learned only from our own experience, not from the experience of others. Argentina is going through the same school.

THE OPERA SEASON.

The opening of the Metropolitan Opera season is still two months away, but already opera-goers are expressing interest in the program of the Winter's performances. It is a bold, perhaps a daring, venture in time of war to give grand opera upon the scale which is always characteristic of the Metropolitan Opera House, but we are confident that the program of the season about to be announced will meet the expectations of the music-loving community by its breadth and its quality. The energy and the resourcefulness of Mr. GATTI-CASAZZA can be trusted to secure for the pleasure of the New York public all the artists of distinction, including most of the favorites of this public whom the war has left within his reach.

Nothing has been heard of late about the exclusion of German works from the program, and we sincerely trust that there will be no renewal this year of that unhappy suggestion, of which something was heard a year ago. This public is too broad-minded and intelligent to listen to any proposal that the spirit of war shall be allowed to invade the domain of art to that regrettable extent. The compositions of WAGNER, of BEETHOVEN, and of MOZART, it ought not to be necessary to say, were written many years before the outbreak of this war. They have nothing to do with it, and their merits are in nowise related to the controversies out of which the war grew. We might as well talk of excluding the great classics of German literature from the public libraries; we might as well ask the owners of public libraries to listen approvingly to the suggestion that they burn their copies of the works of GOETHE and SCHILLER as to expect the patrons of the Metropolitan Opera House to approve the exclusion of German operas.

In common humanity, some thought should be given to the plight of a manager who should suddenly be confronted by such a material abridgment of his resources. The works of the German composers are important, they have been received with great interest and favor by the public in the past, their quality remains unchanged, what is to take their place? If we should have no German operas, the Winter's program would necessarily be one of many repetitions, of which subscribers to the opera might grow weary. There is, we believe, no evidence whatever that the public which supports the opera desires the exclusion of German works.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A Quarrel Ended Reasonably.

No better termination of the lamentable quarrel between the Secretary of the Navy and the Navy League could have been devised than the one outlined yesterday in the published correspondence between Secretary DANIELS and HENRY P. DAVISON, Chairman of the Red Cross War Council. There has been a strong feeling all over the country that the existing situation, with the interposition of a barrier between the bluejackets and the innumerable friends eager to do what they could to make life on the ships more comfortable and safe, was an intolerable one and that personal feelings over offenses given and received should not longer be allowed to stand in the way of full resumption of much-needed work.

Whatever the rights and wrongs of the controversy over the Mare Island explosion, the men of the navy were not to blame, and yet they alone were the sufferers while they were forbidden to have any dealings with, or to accept any services from, the only organization of nation-wide extent that had their interests particularly at heart. By creating, under the supervision of the Red Cross, auxiliary bodies especially devoted to providing for the minor, but still highly important, needs of the sailors, and by having one of these auxiliaries, so far as possible, wherever a Red Cross chapter exists, an explicit settlement of that controversy is made unnecessary and it can be forgotten.

The Red Cross is quite competent, with its enormous resources and its recognition as a governmental agency, to undertake this added task, and though, presumably, there will be talk, for a time, in criticism of this further monopolization of power by the already greatest of relief societies, there cannot fail soon to come general appreciation of the fact that results, not methods, are what count, and that if the Red Cross is absorbing and taking into its own hands one after the other of the lesser relief activities, it is because in this way alone the largest attainable degree of efficiency can be secured. And, after all, the Red Cross does not demand that the other groups shall lose their identities, and it does not endeavor either to restrict or to direct their efforts. Their beneficence can still go to its chosen objects, without interference of any sort, and they will be helped, not hindered, in whatever work may most appeal to personal preferences.

For the householder whose coal bin is still empty or with so much less in it than his usual Fall supply that he knows it will be empty long before warm weather returns next Spring, the announcement that Commissioner GARFIELD hopes to have his coal price-fixing boards in operation all over the country by Oct. 1 is neither very encouraging nor very satisfactory. Of course it is something—it is even a good deal—to be told that after that date representatives of the householder's highly esteemed Government will see to it both that there is coal for him to buy and that he will not be forced to pay for it an unreasonable price. But Oct. 1 is still more than a fortnight away, and he simply can't help worrying about the unwonted state of his coal bin. Besides, with all his patriotism, he cannot ignore the existence, deep in his mind, of a troublesome little doubt about the smooth and effective working of these local boards, and about their power to control a class of merchandisers to whom interference of any sort will be a resented novelty.

As a result, the majority of householders fear to wait for a good time the coming of which they are not entirely sure of, and those of them that can get coal now are getting it and paying the mysteriously high prices demanded by the dealers purveying to the domestic trade. Therefore by the time that Oct. 1 comes around price-fixing will be, if not exactly an empty form, at least irrelevant to the interests of all the householders who have been too little courageous or too little confident longer to put off the inevitable pain of buying their Winter's stock of coal.

The dealers are well aware of the situation in all its details, and, knowing the impelling strength of the present anxiety among their customers, they are making them pay well indeed for their timidity. Some of these dealers even hint darkly that not much, if anything, is to be expected from the proposed price-fixers, and they are promulgating the kind suggestion that the truly wise citizen gets in his coal while the getting, if not to be called good, is possible.

So, if Commissioner GARFIELD expects to decrease expenditures for domestic coal this Fall, he will put his scheme into active operation just as soon as he can. Every day of delay decreases whatever value the scheme possesses.

Even at present prices, declares Mr. HOOVER, there is twice as much nutriment in a dollar's worth of corn meal as can be obtained by a like expenditure for wheat flour, and he also says that as food the one is as good as the other. He speaks from so much knowledge and experience that of course his statements must be accepted with respect. Still, it might have been as well if he had contented himself with emphasizing the absolute, rather than the comparative, merits of corn as human food, for as it is his words run counter to the conviction, innumerable centuries old and nearly worldwide, that, of all grains that grow, wheat is the best, everything considered, and that of the others, while some, like the one we insist on calling corn, have high excellencies as variants and supplements of diet, none equals for continuous use the crowned King of all the grasses.

The reasons why we should eat more corn and less wheat while the war is on are many and sufficient, and they need only to be presented to be heeded by all good citizens.

Mr. HOOVER, too, scolds us gently because we do not eat as much fish, per capita, as do the inhabitants of other lands, for so could we aid him in keeping down the price of meat and having more of it to send to friends abroad who have little or none of their own.

The comparison probably would not be so much against us in this respect if he did not compare us with countries no parts of which are many miles from the sea. In large areas of the United States fish have to be carried such long distances that when they arrive they are neither fresh nor cheap, and it is little wonder that they are not a favored article of food where those conditions exist.

BULGARIAN MESSAGES.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your Washington correspondent, in his special communication of Sept. 8, which appeared in your issue of Sept. 9, refers to the big chances that the United States Government is taking "in permitting the Bulgarian Government to maintain a diplomatic representative and consular officers in this country." He does not state what these "big chances" are, but evidently implies them in the assertion that the Bulgarian diplomatic representative "has the privilege of sending information to his Government under the seal of that secrecy afforded by a cipher code."

Allow me to tell you that, aside from its Legation in Washington, Bulgaria has no consuls or consular officers anywhere in this country, and that since the entrance of Bulgaria into the war about two years ago I have sent and can send nothing to my Government in any cipher code, owing to the regulations in force of the United States Government.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Perhaps the matter of finding an appropriate and pleasing name for the American soldiers who will soon be engaging with their spiritual brothers of the allied nations of Europe in wresting autocracy in its last stand on the earth is somewhat trivial, but here is a suggestion along that line. The camp where the members of the national army from this section are to get their preliminary training is at Yaphank, L. I. Now Yaphank has an onomatopoetic relation to the nickname by which Americans in general have for years been known throughout the world, namely, Yankee. Now why not combine these two words and obtain the rather descriptive cognomen of Yanker, Yankers being those of us who participate actively on the field of battle in yanking the Kaiser and his comrades in evil from their pedestals.

Auto Owner's Disturbing Discovery.

I wonder how many automobile owners who are carrying theft insurance know that their insurance is invalid if the car is stolen by a chauffeur or any other person in their employ. I did not know it until car and chauffeur disappeared together. I am told that all insurance policies carry this clause.

OUR BOYS.

We come, we come, to do our bit
For ravaged Belgium, gallant France!
Our flag with England's trusty lance,
We fight, we fight for Freedom!

Our Captain held us from the fray
But now we're in—we're in to stay,
To fight, to fight for Freedom!

So come what may and come what will,
Our cause is just, our hearts are true.
And 'neath the old Red, White, and Blue
We'll fight, we'll fight for Freedom!

MORE TACT NEEDED IN FRANCE.

By GERTRUDE ATHERTON.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I received this morning a letter from an American woman married for many years to a distinguished Frenchman, and during all her long residence in France more or less in touch with its public life. No one knows the French better; and, I may add, she has always remained an American at heart. Here is the extract which induces this communication:

> Paris is filled with Americans, soldiers, officers, nurses, Young Men's Christian Association, and Red Cross officials. It really is, as the paper says, "an American season." They lack tact, however, and have antagonized various French people (me among them) by their calm assumption that they have come over to end the war—and to put a little "go" into things. When one thinks of what our soldiers have done and are doing since three years, and that the Americans have arrived when the great difficulties are solved, it is a little provoking. I am sure the Red Cross mean well and they will give very efficient help in a great many ways, but they have a great deal to learn, and there have been many heartbreakings.

Are we really a hopeless race as far as tact and manners are concerned, or for at least a century to come? Germany is a boor because she does not know any better, and her brain pan is so constructed that it is incapable of accommodating anything not made in Germany. Britons are often offensive when traveling (rarely at home, and never socially) because they have dominated in the world for 400 years, and are impatient of obstacles or contradiction.

I suppose our manners are bad because we are so young, and, consequently, cocky; combined with the fact that we are an indisputably great and prosperous nation. It is notorious that the children of the rich in this country, particularly of the nouveaux riches, are far more badly spoiled than the children of those whom life has chastened; and so, no doubt, it must always be with a young and too fortunate nation. The extreme politeness of the French has led us to believe that American forces in France are of the extremest importance, whereas it is not men they want so much as what the men who remain at home can make for them, to say nothing of our embargo against neutral nations and our millions. And, of course, the sight of our splendid looking troops, full of American high spirits, is very welcome in saddened France. But that we should take ourselves so seriously as to assume that we shall be able to do one-tenth of what the British and French have done in the last three years; a superhuman resistance beginning with the battle of the Marne against the greatest foe in history, which has put him permanently upon the defensive, and made his defeat merely a matter of time, with or without our army, is unfortunate, to say the least. It may sow the seeds of a permanent antagonism, founded upon good-natured contempt, instead of furthering the permanent alliance between the two great republics, which all thinking Americans ardently hope to consummate.

There has been none of this foolish spirit among the American ambulance drivers, or the Lafayette Escadrille, both composed of high-minded young volunteers, who have learned practically all they know from the French. Otherwise, Lieutenant Layton of the Royal Flying Corps (British) never could have brought himself to write of the Americans as he does in the current number of The Chronicle:

> Of course, I think the Americans will make the "star" airmen. They have the temperament, and, as they excel in "sport," they should have success in the air. The Americans who are now with the Lafayette Escadrille need no praise from me. They are the salt of the earth. They're bound to be an example to their countrymen who follow them.

No doubt they will to the airmen. But unfortunately the greater number of men who will be sent over to fight in France are anything but "sports." They are drafted from the ranks, full of a commendable enthusiasm to lick the Germans and help France, which they have been taught these three years to admire, but, alas! in a very small measure to understand. As the war has now endured for three years, they have arrived at the conclusion that it would go on forever without their help. Even if this were true, they would, if a more disciplined race, find it the intrinsic reason for a becoming modesty, a magnanimous reticence. However—perhaps this is too much to expect.

Here is a chance for the women. Will they not write to their men and urge them to conceal their overweening sense of importance within a contracted chest? After all, it is Teutonic and, therefore, outlawed. We read in the newspapers only pleasing stories of the amenities exchanged between Pollu and "Sammy," but it is the information conveyed in private letters that counts. Every mortal knows how friendship is endangered by one of the partners being forced to say "Thank you" too often. Only the finest tact preserves friendship (even in families) where one is in a position to give constant assistance or presents. The American civilians working in France are for the most part people of middle age, with even less of the sporting instinct than the youngsters in the army. They have, however, arrived at the age of reason, and as they are, for the most part, earnest and high-minded people, with a sincere wish to give help where help is needed, perhaps a word from their friends at home would achieve the desired effect.

I find no criticism in the letters I receive every week from French people, some of them officials. They are far too polite. But criticism from Americans long resident in Paris, who know the French as they know their own people, is highly significant. They know what they are talking about, and they have been too eager from the first for the United States to enter the war to carp when they would fain be proud and enthusiastic.

PERKINS TO FIGHT BROWN ON STUMP

SPEAKS AT FAIR ON FRIDAY

Whitman to Present Perkins's Name to Senate Again on Sept. 25—Expects Confirmation.

There will be no letup in the fight of George W. Perkins on Senate Leader Elon R. Brown, who was instrumental in having the Senate defeat the nomination of Mr. Perkins as head of the new State Food Control Commission. Mr. Perkins opened fire on Senator Brown on Sunday with an open letter, in which he accused him of deliberately placing obstacles in the way of real food control.

Mr. Perkins announced yesterday that he was going up-State to meet the farmers face to face. Senators from rural districts, who voted against the confirmation of Mr. Perkins, declared that they did so in deference to the wishes of their farmer-constituents, who, they said, were deeply distrustful of Mr. Perkins's purposes. Mr. Perkins declared that if this distrust exists, it has been accelerated by middlemen and food speculators, whom he has fought and, who have misled the farmers.

Mr. Perkins will open his campaign at the State Fair in Syracuse on Friday. It is probable that he will be in a position to address at least 20,000 farmers from different parts of the State.

"I have been lied about and misrepresented by the food pirates and their spokesmen in the Legislature," said Mr. Perkins yesterday. "I am not going to let the record of the last session of the Senate stand uncontested. I never dodged a fight in my life and I am not going to dodge this one. I am going up-State to talk straight to the people up there. I am going to tell them frankly of my plans and my policies and let them judge for themselves whether I am right or those who for reasons best known to themselves fought me in the Senate."

Mr. Perkins was asked whether Brown had answered his open letter in which he accused the Senator of insincerity and challened him to tell the people of the State his real reasons for fighting the confirmation.

"No," said Mr. Perkins. "I have not yet had any reply to my letter to Senator Brown. I suppose he should be excused because he is undoubtedly busy receiving copies of the mimeographed resolution that has been planted all over the State by the food gamblers and speculators."

What Mr. Perkins referred to was a resolution praising Senator Brown, which was drafted in this city and sent for adoption to organizations of distributers throughout the State who figured in the opposition to food control legislation of any character and to the confirmation of Mr. Perkins at the time these measures were pending before the lawmaking body. In a newspaper published in Watertown, Senator Brown's home, articles were printed in parallel columns showing that the identical resolution had been adopted by the "Cheese Board" of Gouverneur, N. Y., and by the Produce Exchange in Watertown. At the Watertown meeting it appeared that the Produce Exchange had met solely for the purpose of boosting Senator Brown. In Gouverneur the "Cheese Board" took advantage of the situation to move the price of cheese up a peg.

"The next time the fool ring wants to plant resolutions all over the State I suggest that they at least use different language in different parts of the State," said Mr. Perkins when the identical language of the two resolutions was brought to his attention. "Such action would not leave their tracks so openly exposed."

The resolution read:

"We thank the Senate and particularly Senator Elon R. Brown of Watertown, who worked against the confirmation of George W. Perkins as Food Commissioner. We are satisfied that his appointment was a great mistake by Governor Whitman and that his confirmation would have been a great menace to the agricultural and producing interests in the State."

Governor Whitman will be at the State Fair and make an address tomorrow. It is expected that he will pave the way for Mr. Perkins's appearance by making an appeal to the farmer audience in his favor.

Mr. Whitman has received the consent of Mr. Perkins to present his name to the Senate again when the Legislature reconvenes on Sept. 25. Friends of Mr. Perkins believe that he will be confirmed ultimately. It was learned yesterday that the lines of the opposition were breaking, and that three additional votes for Mr. Perkins would be forthcoming from Democratic Senators representing New York City districts, while three up-State Senators who opposed his confirmation last week would support him when nominated again by Governor Whitman. The vote against his confirmation last week stood 25 to 18.

HOUSE GETS REVENUE BILL.

Members Predict That It Will Be a Law Within Ten Days.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—The War Revenue bill, passed by the Senate yesterday with amendments, was received in the House today and the prediction of the members who will form the Conference Committee that the bill will be a law within ten days.

The general feeling is that it will be enacted in substantially the form as passed by the Senate, although there will be changes in details. Speaker Clark will appoint the conferees for the House tomorrow and will select Representatives Kitchen of North Carolina, Rainey of Illinois, and Dixon of Indiana, Democrats; and Fordney of Michigan, and Moore of Pennsylvania, Republicans.

In general, the House is entirely satisfied with the Senate revisions. There is a feeling in the House that war developments have proved the necessity for more revenue than the original House bill would have provided. One of the conferees from the House said today that strong pressure would be brought to bear to increase the money to be raised by restoring to the bill some of the items approved originally by the House but stricken out in the Senate.

Chairman Kitchin of the Ways and Means Committee is satisfied to a great extent with the Senate measures but believes the war products tax could be improved. He is of the opinion that the Senate's method of computing excess profits is inequitable, but is not decided just how far to go in insisting on a change. The conferees cannot raise any of the tax rate figures over those written into the Senate bill, but can under the rules of Congress revert to House provisions.

LAFAYETTE FUND ORGANIZED

Application for Incorporation Is Filed in Supreme Court.

The first step toward organizing the French Heroes Lafayette Memorial Fund, of which Colonel Theodore Roosevelt is a founder, was taken yesterday when an application for its incorporation was filed in the Supreme Court. The petition includes among the founders Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, Mrs. William Astor Chanler, Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, Henry White, Clarence H. Mackay, James M. Beck, John G. Milburn, John Moffat, James A. Blair, Jr., and Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney.

The chief purpose of the organization is to raise funds by voluntary contributions for the purchase of General Lafayette's home, the Château Chavaniac-Lafayette, in St. Georges d'Aurac, France, and of adjoining property where the society intends to erect homes, schools, hospitals, and other institutions for the relief and care of crippled, wounded, blind, and sick soldiers and for homeless, sick, and destitute women and children in France and the countries of the Allies. The organizers also propose to establish a permanent historical museum in appreciation of the relations between the peoples of the United States and France.

SUFFRAGISTS CALM IN FACE OF DEFEAT

"Antis" Believe New York Will Follow Example of Sister State on Nov. 6.

Woman suffrage leaders in New York said yesterday they were not discouraged by the defeat of the suffrage amendment in Maine Monday; that it was their first campaign in that State, and that the men of Maine hadn't been sufficiently educated, in a Commonwealth which they declared was fifty years behind the times anyhow. They asserted that the men of New York, on the contrary, had been educated and would pass the suffrage amendment here in November. In the meantime, to make doubly sure they will turn all their forces to obtaining the passage of the Federal amendment in Congress.

The anti-suffragists were highly gratified over the Maine returns, and saw in them an augury of the result in New York on Nov. 6. They said that war times were, least of all, the times to give women the vote, because then man power was needed in governmental affairs.

Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, President of the National American Woman Suffrage Association, said yesterday:

"A good deal of suffrage education has been inculcated that will count toward future victory. We have learned to take what looks like failure as the forerunner of success. It was a good deal to expect Maine to go pro-suffrage in a first campaign. Even in the Western States it has taken several campaigns to win.

"I understand that a Maine 'anti' hopes the question is settled in Maine for a long time to come, but the suffrage question is never settled until it is settled affirmatively. It is true that there probably never will be another campaign in Maine except for the purpose of ratification. The Federal suffrage amendment is surely going to pass, and soon.

"The effect of every State's repudiation of the suffrage plank in the national platforms of all political parties can serve only to focus the efforts of the National Suffrage Association anew upon the federal route to the suffrage goal. More and more our work concentrates on Washington as the immediate focal point."

Dudley Field Malone, who has resigned the Collectorship of the Port of New York to work for woman's suffrage, said yesterday that the results in Maine showed that the just way to get the vote for the women was to obtain the passage of the Federal amendment. He issued this statement from the Customs House:

"It took the liberal and progressive elements of the men and women in Maine nearly twenty years before they were permitted to put a suffrage amendment to the voters of that State, and a similar suffrage amendment may not be submitted to the electorate there for twenty years more because of antique political methods in Maine. In a democratic republic this is a denial of justice and democracy, without which there would be no progress. The situation in Maine proves that the most just and speedy way to enfranchise all the women of the country is by the passing of the Federal suffrage amendment through Congress."

Other suffragists who professed to see encouragement in the Maine election were Mrs. Norman de R. Whitehouse, Chairman of the New York State Woman Suffrage Party; Mrs. Raymond Brown, its Vice Chairman, and Mrs. Mary Garrett Hay, Chairman of the Woman Suffrage Party of the City of New York.

Miss Alice Hill Chittenden, President of the New York State Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage, said the Maine results were an example of what would happen to the suffrage cause every time "the fight was in the open."

"Woman suffrage," Miss Chittenden said, "has not carried in a single State through popular election since 1914, when the two small States of Montana and Nevada extended suffrage to women, and since that date has been defeated in twelve States, namely, South Dakota, Ohio, North Dakota, Nebraska, Missouri, New Jersey, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, New York, Iowa, and West Virginia. Maine yesterday making the twelfth. The total majority given against suffrage in these States amounts to nearly a million. The total majority for suffrage in Nevada and Montana amounted to about 7,000.

"The results in Maine point the way to the defeat of woman suffrage in New York on Nov. 6. Most people regard the question of woman suffrage as an intrusion at this time, when the whole mind and heart of the nation is engrossed in the great war upon which we have entered. This is a time when the man power in Government is needed; that is in one power which can enforce law. I cannot believe the men of New York State will make the fatal mistake of adding to the electorate at this critical time some two million voters."

E. P. O'BRIEN WEDS MISS WEIGHTMAN

MGR. LAVELLE OFFICIATES

The marriage of Miss Mary Weightman and Esmond Paul O'Brien, son of former Justice of the Supreme Court and Mrs. Morgan J. O'Brien, was solemnized yesterday forenoon at St. Patrick's Cathedral. The ceremony was performed by Mgr. Lavelle in the presence of the immediate families, being followed by a bridal breakfast at the Ritz-Carlton.

Mrs. Orson Hoyt, a cousin of the bride, was matron of honor, and appeared in a dress of dark blue chiffon. Morgan J. G. O'Brien acted as best man for his brother.

The wedding was hastened after the announcement of the engagement on Sunday, as Mr. O'Brien has received a commission in the aviation section of the Signal Corps. The couple will spend their honeymoon in the South.

The bride comes from Des Moines, Iowa, and has made her home for the last two years with her aunt, Mrs. A. F. Richardson, 45 East Seventy-sixth Street.

MORGENTHAU HOME AGAIN.

Ex-Ambassador Tells of Visiting the Trenches During a Battle.

Among the passengers arriving yesterday at an Atlantic port from France was Henry Morgenthau, ex-United States Ambassador to Turkey, who was sent abroad last June on a special mission by President Wilson.

Mr. Morgenthau said that during his trip he had visited the trenches at Lens and Ypres when they were under shellfire from the German batteries, and had also talked with Field Marshal Haig and General Pétain, but he declined to make any comments on the war situation in Europe. Mr. Morgenthau said he was leaving at once for Washington to report to the President. Mrs. Morgenthau, who returned with her husband, wore the Legion of Honor which was bestowed by the French Government in recognition of the relief work organized by her during her stay in Constantinople.

Another passenger was Charles C. Kuraman of Fifth Avenue, who has been in Paris for several weeks on his regular business trip. He said that the situation for the coming Winter in France was serious on account of the scarcity of coal for heating purposes. When he left Paris ten days ago the price of coal was $80 a ton, and it was difficult to obtain even at that high figure. Mr. Kurzman brought with him some rare costume plates that had been presented to the Metropolitan Museum of Art by M. Aine of the French Syndicate in in Paris.

Wed to Lieut. H. H. Crommelin.

Announcement has been made of the marriage at Des Moines, Iowa, on Thursday last of Miss Mildred Valain of Denver, Col., and Lieutenant Harold H. Crommelin, U. S. R., son of Mrs. Edwin S. Crawley of Orange, N. J., who enlisted in the [illegible] four years ago. Two months ago he was commissioned a Second Lieutenant in the regular army and was transferred to Fort Russell, Cheyenne, Wyo., where a few weeks later he was commissioned First Lieutenant in the Officers' Reserve Corps.

Miss Perry Weds Paul L. Gross.

Mr. and Mrs. Orin Francis Perry of 90 Riverside Drive have announced the marriage of their daughter, Miss Antoinette Frances Perry, to Paul Livingston Gross of this city. The wedding took place quietly on Saturday at Detroit, Mich., and Mr. Gross returned immediately after the ceremony to the aviation training camp at Mount Clemens.

Engagements.

Dr. and Mrs. John G. Dorrance of 548 Riverside Drive have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Frances Dorrance, to Lieutenant James H. Preston, U. S. A., of the Officers' Reserve Corps. The wedding is to take place at an early date.

Mr. and Mrs. Huidekoper Bond of 21 East Sixtieth Street have told of the betrothal of their daughter, Miss Mary Louise Bond, to Edwin Stuart Peck, son of the late Dr. Edwin S. Peck of this city. Miss Bond made her début last Winter. Mr. Peck is an ensign in the submarine patrol at Newport.

Señora Angela de Barrios, widow of José R. de Barrios of this city and Havana, Cuba, announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Ines M. Barrios, to Walter Adam Lee, son of Mrs. Lee and the late W. H. Lee of Chicago. The wedding is to take place this Fall.

Mrs. Cora Depew Teel of 315 West Ninety-fourth Street has announced the engagement of her daughter, Miss Dorothy Elmendorf Teel, to Neal R. Andrews of this city and Waterloo, N. Y. Mr. Andrews is serving in the Naval Militia.

EXHIBIT SAFETY DEVICES.

The sixth annual conference of the National Safety Council opened yesterday with more than a thousand delegates present. The meetings are being held in the Hotel Astor and the displays in the Grand Central Palace. One of the features of the day was a conference of the fifteen safety engineers who are to look after accident prevention in Government navy yards and arsenals, led by R. M. Little, Chairman of the United States Employes' Compensation Commission.

L. R. Palmer, President of the Council and Assistant Chief of the Bureau of Labor and Industries of Pennsylvania, in his opening address said that the council was co-operating with the Council of National Defense in the safety campaign for Government plants. A loyalty resolution proposed by Ralph C. Richards of Chicago was adopted.

The danger emblem committee, headed by W. L. Chandler, recommended as the universal danger signal a black cross on a white diamond, with a red circle in the center.

A number of sessions will be held today and each day thereafter for the rest of the week. Tonight will be given the annual dinner at the Astor, with President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard University, Job E. Hedges, and John Mitchell as speakers.

TO WIDEN FRAUD INQUIRY.

Police Say Diplomas Were Sold in Many States.

Further investigation into the activities of a band of men who it is alleged have been selling fake diplomas, Regents' examination papers, and even licenses to practice medicine and other professions to persons desiring to open offices in this city, reveals the fact, according to Lieutenant Scherb and Detective Dannenberg, who have been aiding Assistant District Attorney Tompkins, that their "diploma factory," as it has been termed, operated throughout the country. Positive evidence has been obtained, it was learned yesterday, that diplomas and licenses to practice had been supplied to "customers" in the States of New Jersey, Maryland, Oklahoma, Georgia, and Massachusetts.

In addition to these activities Lieutenant Scherb said he had learned that the band furnished men to take Regents' examinations, posing as the persons whose names appeared on the papers turned in to the State Department of Education.

Acting on information given to the Grand Jury by Isaac A. Lazinsky, who was recently arrested on a charge of practicing medicine without a license, Detective Dannenberg placed under arrest yesterday a man who gave his name as Wilbur Strong, and is said to be the principal of the Westerleigh Collegiate Institute, at New Brighton, S. I. Strong was indicted on a charge of grand larceny in connection with the sale of a bogus certificate for which Lazinsky said he paid "Dr." Nicholas Clements, the alleged head of the "factory," the sum of $1,500. Clements is also under arrest charged with larceny and forgery. Strong was admitted to bail and held for trial.

INVITES JAPANESE MISSION.

Mayor Mitchel Appoints City's Committee of Welcome.

The committee appointed by Mayor Mitchel to welcome the members of the Japanese Mission to New York went to Washington last night to formally invite the Commissioners to come here. Fire Commissioner Robert Adamson will represent the Mayor and will deliver the invitation. The following are members of the committee:

Robert Adamson, Donn Barber, S. R. Bertron, John McE. Bowman, W. C. Breed, William M. Calder, Frederic R. Coudert, Thomas L. Chadbourne, Jr., William H. FRESH AID FOR ARMENIANS.

Abram I. Elkus, ex-Ambassador to Turkey, was the principal speaker yesterday at the conference on Armenian Atrocities, which is being held by the American Committee for Armenian and Syrian Relief in the Madison Avenue Building. Mr. Elkus emphasized the fact that it was to America and America alone the stricken Armenians could look for help in this crisis. The need for aid was imperative now, he said, as all the relief work established under his supervision had been abandoned since his departure.

The committee will begin an active campaign for funds next month, working in harmony with the American Red Cross. The following telegram from the American Consul in Persia was read to the conference:

"Relief Committee requests American Committee in addition to June estimate cable $500,000 needed for new relief; 30,000 destitute Kurdish refugees have returned to Soujbulak, 75 per cent. of whom are widows and orphans. Azerbaijian crops failure, famine threatens, prices rising. PADDOCK, Consul."

The conference will continue in an all-day session Wednesday and end after a conference with editors Thursday.

OUR COLORS OVER VERDUN.

PARIS, Sept. 11.—The American colors now fly over Verdun.

The flag, which was the gift of a prominent American Red Cross worker to the city, was hoisted over the ruins of the City Hall following a ceremony which was attended by the Sub-Prefect, Jean Grillon.

MacCallum, Chicago; previously reported wounded, now as not wounded, A. Labay, Arlington, S. D.; gassed, W. P. Browne, Baltimore; seriously ill, H. A. Pomroy, Calais, Me.

NEW HAVEN SHARES HIT 21½, NEW LOW RECORD

Simultaneously with a meeting of Directors of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company yesterday morning to arrange for a new issue of $47,000,000 of 7 per cent. preferrd stock, New Haven shares fell to the lowest price at which they have ever been quoted on the New York Stock Exchange, being priced at 21½. In 1902, when the New Haven was at the height of its prosperity, its shares sold at 255.

The new drop in the stock resulted in the renewal of rumors in Wall Street that serious difficulties threatened the road, but officials declared that there was absolutely no foundation for them, and that, despite the low price of stock, which one Director characterized as "purely psychological," the New Haven's position was better, on the whole, than it had been for some time.

The situation, officials admitted, hinges upon the new stock isue, which has already been authorized by the Legislatures of Connecticut and Massachusetts, but must still be approved by the Legislature of Rhode Island, and then be accepted by the stockholders at the anual meeting to be held at New Haven in October.

The proposed stock issue is to meet the road's outstanding $45,000,000 of 6 per cent. short-term notes which fall due next May. It was decided on some time ago as the best method of meeting the obligation, but its progress has been slow because of the many legal difficulties in the way. At the meeting yesterday the form of a circuiar to be sent out to all stockholders, giving full information regarding the new issue and the purpose for which the money is to be used, was arranged.

Directors expressed themselves as entirely confident of the ability of the New Haven to weather its financial difficulties, if the new stock issue was carried out as planned. The road's earning's recently, it was stated, have been ample to cover all fixed charges, and several improvements have recently been effected in the management, notably the new central distributing yard for freight, which are expected to result in considerable gains in operating efficiency. The road is closely affiliated with the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, which owns upward of $5,000,000 of its stock, and Pennsylvania officials are believed to possess ample confidence in the New Haven's position.

SCHUMANN-HEINK SAVES BOY

Special to The New York Times.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 11.—In a successful effort to save life Madam Ernestine Schumann-Heink, the famous singer, sucked poison from the arm of a 9-year-old boy at Wenden, Ariz., today after he had been bitten by a large rattlesnake.

The diva had gone to Wenden to say good-bye to her own son, Fred Schumann, who was leaving for the war. The lad she saved is Carlos Gonzales. The doctors say he will live and will owe his life to the great singer.

Madam Schumann-Heink's daughter-in-law had been bitten by a scorpion just after her son's departure. Little Carlos said that rattlesnake poison was a remedy against scorpion poison and started out to find a snake. Madam Schumann-Heink went with him.

While trying to catch the rattler he was struck in the arm. The famous singer acted at once, and the lips which had so recently kissed her own boy farewell sucked the poison from the wound.

The Rev. Dr. C. Armand Miller.

The Rev. Dr. C. Armand Miller, a prominent minister of the Lutheran Church and pastor of St. Mark's Church of Philadelphia, died at Liberty, N. Y., Monday at the age of 53. He was a native of Shepherdstown, West Va. He was pastor of the Holy Trinity Church in New York from 1896 to 1908, when he went to St. John's Church in Charlestown, S. C. He served at St. Mark's Church in Philadelphia from 1912 until his death. He was the author of many devotional books, and was a member of the Quill Club of this city. Dr. Miller is survived by his wife and four sons.

Admiral Horatio N. Dudding, R. N.

LONDON, Sept. 11.—Rear Admiral Horatio Nelson Dudding, R. N., retired, who took part in the suppression of the Nicobad pirates in 1867 and later in the supression of the East African slave trade, died yesterday at his home at Ashley Mead, St. Albans. He saw service with the Eastern Soudan Field Force. He was retired in 1905.

THE BANDBOX TO BE A BANK.

Property of the Little Playhouse Leased to Chatham and Phenix.

The little Bandbox Theatre, in Fifty-seventh Street, near Third Avenue, has ceased its career as a playhouse and will be converted into a bank. It was announced yesterday that the building has been leased by the Chatham and Phenix National Bank for the purpose of enlarging its Yorkville branch quarters, now in the building on Third Avenue adjoining the little theatre.

The theatre covers a plot fronting 60 feet at 205 to 209 East Fifty-seventh Street. It was built about four years ago by a company headed by Alfred M. Rau and Walter H. Liebmann. The lease to the bank was closed through the firm of Pease & Elliman.

Inventor's Fortune Greatly Reduced by Expiration of Patents.

The estate of Timothy J. Kieley, who invented steam appliances which brought him a fortune and then invested his money in developing a section of Rockaway Beach, was appraised yesterday at $636,297.

When Mr. Kieley died on Aug. 17, 1913, it was estimated that he left a fortune of at least $2,000,000, but the appraisal shows that his business was worth not more than a tenth of its estimated value because his patents had just expired and a reorganization of his business was necessary. His will gave his entire estate to his second wife, Margaret V. Kieley, and was contested by two nephews and a niece on the ground that he was incompetent, but Mrs. Kieley won the contest.

George Bird Left $500,000.

The will of George Bird, capitalist, who lived at 960 Park Avenue and died on Aug. 21 last at his country place, Dial House, at Dark Harbor, gives no disposes of an estate of more than $500,000. He gave the residuary and a trust fund of $200,000 to his wife, Mrs. Ruth Moorhead Metcalf Bird, who has power to dispose of the principal of the trust fund in her will. The only other bequests were trusts of $20,000 to George B. Metcalf and Robert Lansing Pruyn, grandsons of Mrs. Bird by a former marriage.

Marriage and death notices intended for insertion in The New York Times may be telephoned to 1000 Bryant.

EX-INSPECTOR SWEENEY.

Police Official Who Served a Year After Graft Conviction Dies.

Ex-Inspector Dennis Sweeney of the New York Police Department, who served a year in the penitentiary on Blackwell's Island for conspiracy, died yesterday at his home, 68 West 127th Street, in his fifty-eighth year. Death was due to diabetes. He was born in Ireland in 1860 and came to this country as a boy. In 1888 he was appointed to the Police Department, and was made an Inspector in 1905. Upon his conviction in 1913 he was dismissed from the force.

Sweeney's conviction came as the result of an investigation into police affairs by the Curran Aldermanic Committee in 1912, after George A. Sipp, a Harlem hotel keper, testified that he had been paying $100 a month for police protection. He had given this to Patrolman Eugene Fox, he said, and Fox in turn declared that the money went to Sweeney.

He was released March 9, 1914. For a short period he was assistant manager of Loew's Boulevard Theatre and later engaged in the automobile supply business.

Dr. William F. McDowell.

Dr. William F. McDowell, Chief Pharmacist of the United States Immigration Department at Ellis Island, died last night at his home, 3 West 192d Street, in his sixty-sixth year. Dr. McDowell, who had been a medical officer in the service of the Government nearly all his life, commenced as medical officer of the U. S. S. Monongahela. In 1892 he was connected with the United States Marine Hospital at Portland, Me., and in 1898 he was appointed a special disbursing officer at Havana. Since that time he has been attached to the medical division at Ellis Island.

Little Activity in Worsteds.

Worsted houses report buying in men's wear for the spring trade to have been unusually light this year. Some instances are reported of buyers placing orders for only 50 per cent. of their normal requirements. However, it is felt throughout the trade that in all such cases further buying will result in a second trip to the local market, and that when the season has finally ended it will not prove as bad a one as present figures would now indicate. The extremely light-weight "tropical" materials of around 8½ ounces have been in greater demand, comparatively, this year than ever before. The whole trend of the trade throughout the country is reported to be toward the lighter-weight fabrics.

Weather Helps Coal Demand.

The Coal Trade Journal will say today that two or three days of chilly weather, while not causing much actual increase in coal consumption, have served to focus public attention on the question of anthracite supplies. Retail offices report a marked increase in the number of new orders, and they are also receiving many urgent requests for prompt delivery on orders previously placed. The situation is becoming increasingly difficult for consumers of bituminous coal, for not only are those without contracts unable to cover their requirements in the open market, but in a great many cases contract buyers are beginning to run short of fuel because of the failure of shipments to arrive according to schedule.

He Reinstated the Order.

"As an example of the way retailers are buying suits this season," said a local suit manufacturer, "one of my out-of-town customers came in the other day to look over the Fall offerings. He hemmed and hawed and, finally, after prolonged deliberation placed a small order for about $600 worth of goods. He went home the next day, and the day after that I got a letter from him asking me to cancel the order. That was a week ago. Here is a letter I got from him this morning. He wants me not only to reinstate his order, but to include certain other items with it, bringing the bill up to about $900. His case is similar to many others. They get back home and see that there is business to be done, and that if they don't do it somebody else will."

Crude Rubber Prices Firmer.

Prices in the local crude rubber market have taken on a generally firmer tone in the last several days, due in part at least to a greater show of interest on the part of buyers. One of the features has been the increased inquiry by tire makers about upper Caucho ball, on which some nice business is told of at 42 cents a pound. While the other grades of Brazilians appear not to be so active, yesterday's quotation of up-river was 68½@69 cents, while the price asked for up-river coarse was 48½ cents. For shimment from now to the end of the year, first latex was held yesterday at 68½ cents, with smoked sheets, for the same positions, at 67¼ cents. Both grades are available for shipment through the first half of 1918 at a half cent a pound higher than the figures quoted for the remaining months of this year.

Sustained Buying in Coats.

Local manufacturers of coats for women report that the strong buying movement which has been making itself felt throughout the trade displays no signs of letting up for some time to come. Buyers in town, who are accustomed to looking far ahead into the future and to act accordingly, are said to be placing large orders for the Fall trade wherever they find a house that can promise delivery. A number of manufacturers are offering some pleasing new designs which are proving very popular with buyers. All signs are said to point to an unusually good season

Deliveries Will Be Retarded.

Some of the fruits of the recent discount squabble between the manufacturers of women's ready-to-wear garments and the retailers are about to come in the shape of delayed deliveries as a result of the approaching Jewish holidays. Monday of next week, for instance, is the celebration of the New Year, and the shops will be closed. In some cases it is expected that a full complement of workers will not be available on Tuesday, as both days are regarded as holidays by many of them. Wednesday, Sept. 26, is Yom Kippur, when work will stop again. It is said that the results of the interruptions will be felt most by buyers of coats and dresses, as the curtailed buying of suits has enabled the shops to keep deliveries pretty well up to date.

Men's Overcoats Fur Trimmed.

Makers of clothes for men report a return to popularity of the full "burly" overcoat with the raglan shoulders for Fall and Winter wear. In suits it is said the double-breasted coat is gaining in favor and in many cases a detachable belt is added, which may be used or not, according to the whim of the wearer. Fur-lined and fur-trimmed great coats, which, it is predicted, will predominate, are being made up this year in rich grays and browns instead of the conventional black, which is said to be almost disappearing. The skins most used are beaver and Hudson seal. Prices in all cases are considerably higher than last year's, but nevertheless wholesalers report their lines as practically sold out, and that retailers who are backward in placing their Fall requirements are likely to find it difficult very soon to get merchandise.

Hardware Trade Rather Quiet.

The hardware trade, according to a number of local manufacturers, is going through a period of fair demand in some lines, while in others, noticeably in builders' hardware, there is a very marked lack of any buying activity. With prices advanced anywhere from 50 to 100 per cent., a buyer whose purchasing power, for instance, is $10,000 must necessarily reduce his purchases to come within his limit. In many cases, it is said, the retailer is displaying a tendency not only to curtail his stock, but to reduce the variety of his merchandise. He keeps more to staples, and in ordering thinks only of his immediate requirements, anticipating that with Government regulation of metal prices now pending prices can certainly go no higher and that very soon they should be lower.

Says Women Will Wear Boots.

"Practically every woman of the better classes has a relative or friend who is an officer," a well-known shoe man said yesterday, "and I believe that the natty effect produced by the puttees and boots of these men will encourage many women to wear boots this Fall. War has brought out many unusual style tendencies, so I do not think I am altogether rash in saying this. The short skirts of the moment ought to help the vogue, once it is begun, and the value of natty boots or puttees in wet weather is not lightly to be regarded. Tan cordovan leather puttees easily can be made in women's sizes, though they will come high in price. The same is true of boots. A twelve-inch boot for women, for instance, will retail for about $40 a pair. These boots are about three inches shorter than the regulation riding boot for women."

Gray Goods Inquiry Broadens.

While buyers did not pay any too much attention to drills and sheetings in the local gray goods market yesterday, there was a broader inquiry for printcloths than the market has seen since late June. Large quantities of the following goods were wanted, at the prices given, for delivery during the rest of this year: Thirty-nineinch 64-60s, 9 cents; 38½-inch 64-60s, 9 cents; 64-56s, 8¾ cents, and 60-48s, 8 cents. Some business was done on all of these goods from first hands at the prices given, though the rise in cotton and the rise of the inquiries tended to stiffen the market somewhat. In more than one-quarter the belief is expressed that bottom has been touched on printcloths for the time being, and that some active trading is at hand. Mill prices at the close were:

39-inch, 56-44s	7¼	38½-inch, 60-48s	8c
38½-inch, 64-64s	9¼	27-inch, 64-60s	*7c

Disturbed by the prospect of a real civil war in Russia, by an advance in call money, and perhaps to some extent by the exaggerated account of the battle between half a dozen submarines and American merchant vessels, the stock market was uneasy throughout most of the session yesterday, and declines of considerable magnitude occurred in issues in several different classes. The most striking, from a strictly market standpoint, was the pronounced slump in General Motors, the selling carrying this 12 per cent. issue from 91 at the opening to 89½ at the low. No explanation of any change in the company's affairs was forthcoming, and for lack of better reasons the Street professed to believe that the capitalists who were active in taking control away from the old management at last month's annual meeting had fallen out among themselves, with the result that an unusually large amount of stock was pressed for sale. A recurrence of the pronounced weakness of recent days in New Haven, occurring simultaneously with a meeting of the Board of Directors to consider plans for the new issue of $45,000,000 7 per cent. preferred stock, gave impetus to the report that the management is seriously disturbed at the prospects for taking care of the company's one-year notes next Spring. The officials appear to be confident that with a contingent dividend charge substituted for the fixed interest on the notes to be retired the company can work itself out of its difficulties in time. Its motive power and tracks are said to be improving, and the decrease in earnings to date has not been alarming. Nevertheless, the stock dropped to a new low record, and closed off 3 points. Boo lost 2¼ and Delaware & Hudson 1½. The public utilities picked out yesterday for the slaughter were Detroit Edison, which sold off 7¾ on one transaction, and Montana Power, off 5%. Maxwell Motor and Chandler both declined sympathetically with General Motors, the former losing 2½ for the common and 3 for the first preferred, while Chandler lost 4 points. Sears Roebuck sold down 6%, Wells Fargo 4, Wisconsin Central 7 and Woolworth 2¼. A number of stocks made fractional gains, and a few inactive issues scored substantial advances.

Most call loans were made yesterday at 5 per cent. The contest between Kornilloff and Kerensky resulted in a further break in the price of both the Russian internal and external bonds and in exchange, the rubles dropping to 13.50 cents, off nearly 75 per cent. from their normal value. The most cheerful news of the day was supplied by the directors of the Southern Railway, who voted to restore the preferred dividend and made public an excellent earnings statement for the current year.

LONDON MARKET IS QUIET.

Russian Situation Tends to Hold Back Trading.

LONDON, Sept. 11.—The stock market today was still under the influence of the Russian situation. Traders declined fresh business pending a clearer outlook and consequently values dropped slightly all around. Explosive, rubber and shipping shares were about the only firm exceptions. Russian issues were depressed and Russian exchange soared to 555@560. Scandinavian bonds were dull. Argentine rails declined without much business and American securities were idle.

Money was in better demand and discount rates were quiet.

Trading Quiet on Paris Bourse.

PARIS, Sept. 11.—Trading was quiet on the Bourse today. Three per cent. rentes 62 francs 40 centimes for cash. Exchange on London 27 francs 18 centimes. Five per cent. loan 88 francs 5 centimes.

SMELTING CO. PROFITS GROW

Its Properties in Mexico Are Again Making Money.

The American Smelting and Refining Company announced yesterday in its report for the half year ended June 30 that for the first time in three years profits were coming in from its properties in Mexico. Partly due to income from Mexican sources the net earnings of $18,392,681, amounting to $16,081,-134 were $3,163,731 greater than in the same period in 1916. Revenue from interest, dividends, rents, &c., brought the aggregate income up to $18,757,809, from which a deduction of $8,356,779 was made by tax reservations, fixed charges, and depreciation.

The final net income amounted to $10,202,119, a decrease of $543,578. The recession was wrought chiefly by extraordinary reservations for excess profits taxes, and depletion of ore reserves. The management set aside $3,550,581 to meet all taxes, an increase of $3,776,537, while the depreciation and ore depletion account of $3,806,178 was $1,376,684 larger than in the first half of the preceding year. After meeting dividends a balance of $5,165,070 remained, which was $1,477,888 less than a year before.

In respect to the Mexican situation, President Daniel Guggenheim said:

All the mines and smelters in Mexico owned by the company are now operating, except those at or adjacent to Chihuahua, and those at Velardenena. Work is carried on under many difficulties and to a limited extent as yet. The Government of Mexico is most anxious to have the company succeed, and laborers are more than willing to work. They are suffering, however, to even a greater extent, comparatively, than in the United States on account of the high cost of living. It is estimated that the present time six times greater than during the period preceding the revolution. To meet this situation the company is importing and selling such necessities to our laborers at cost, or lower, and has largely increased the wages paid."

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Copper Market Awakens.

The copper market reawakened yesterday from the period of lethargy which had been in evidence for three months and more. Presumably news that the Government had closed a big order in behalf of European allied Governments acted as a stimulant to domestic consumers, denoting that when war buying got under full headway heavy inroads would be made into available supplies. It was reported that one selling agency, had sold 5,000,000 pounds, apportioned among several large customers, while transactions involving 100,000 pounds were said to be numerous. The result was a stiffening of quotations. Some spot metal went at prices close to 28 cents a pound. It was said in the trade, although the average appeared to be around 27½. Last quarter deliveries were quoted from 26 to 26½ cents in carload lots.

Waiting for the Copper Price.

The copper men failed to receive the news from Washington for which they had been waiting a long time, and looked for yesterday. Dispatches telling of a conference between the Purchasing Committee of the War Industries Board and copper producers from various parts of the country were received early in the day, and a decision on the price for metal for Government needs was hoped for before business hours ended, but it failed to arrive. Subsequent to the receipt of news that the meeting had been put over until this morning rumors spread that a disagreement had been the cause of the prolonged negotiations. One story, purporting to have a Washington base, was that one of the Purchasing Committee thought 22½ cents a pound was enough, while the two other members were in favor of 25 cents.

General Motors Slumps Again.

General Motors supplied a disagreeable surprise to traders who thought on Monday that the decline had gone far enough to permit of a recovery. There were bets in commission houses Monday morning when the stock moved up at one time from below 90 to 97¼, that it would go above par before the close. It failed to do this by a big margin, and yesterday slumped again more than 6 points, going under 90 and staying there. The search for reasons brought forth nothing except rumors which have become moss-grown by repetition. One was that the company would soon enter the market for a big loan as working capital. Another spoke of dissension among the "insiders" which had brought about the liquidation of a long line of stock. The corporation's business is reported far ahead of last year's, and nothing has yet appeared in gossip of the Street in respect to a change of the dividend.

September Disbursements.

Dividend and interest payments this month will aggregate $137,000,000, according to a compilation made by The Journal of Commerce. This represents a new high record for September, and compares with $140,000,000 for the corresponding month last year. Stockholders will receive $70,000,000 in dividends, and bondholders will receive $10,000,000 in interest. These figures compare with $76,500,000 and $63,500,000, respectively, with the totals of a year ago.

Banks and the Money Market.

Bankers commented favorably yesterday on the plan worked out by the Federal Reserve Bank, in co-operation with the Liberty Loan Committee, by which the large New York City banks and trust companies will furnish daily reports indicating the amount of call loans carried and the amount of cash with the balances. It is believed that with this data on hand the special committee that has been named to look after the matter will be in excellent shape to organize and maintain a general co-operative movement on the part of the banks, the sole object of which will be to steady the money market and to prevent unnecessary disturbances. No attempt, of course, will be made to regulate or control rates, but concerted action will be taken by all the banks whenever an analysis of the reports shows that there is likely to be a sudden flurry. To forestall such flurries banks will be advised to lend money freely on call, and, if necessary, to obtain rediscounts at the Reserve Bank to replenish their reserves. Bankers feel confident that under the proposed plans it will be possible to maintain money rates on an even keel.

Airplanes in War and Peace.

The effect upon the financial status of the airplane business of the Government's huge aerial program continues to form the subject of speculation, the latest opinion to find expression being that it will have virtually no effect at all—that the war business will leave the private manufacturers of airplanes very much as it found them, for the reason that the types of planes the Government is going to make in huge quantities for fighting purposes will not only be manufactured largely by other factories entirely different type from the machines which the regular manufacturers must develop to suit the future of the airplane business after the war on a stable and permanent footing. The lightand built, from motor to wing tips, for the last ounce of speed, power, and manoeuvring ability, and their builders are perfectly aware that they will rush to pieces almost as fast as they are built; while planes for permanent peace time service must be, although slower and less spectacular, thoroughly substantial and trustworthy. In other words, much of the progress in aviation since the war, which has bulked so large in popular imagination, is to a considerable extent fictitious.

Southern Business and the Administration.

There are a few men in Wall Street who still take delight in grumbling, although largely out of the corners of their mouths, about the alleged Southern leanings of the Administration. One of these recently included Herbert C. Hoover, the Food Administrator, in his denunciations on this score, Californian how Mr. Hoover who is a Californian became so quickly inoculated with this particular virus he did not explain. The return of the Southern Railway to the dividend fold after a three-year absence will probably provide those grumblers with fresh ammunition. As a matter of fact, the business brought by the new army cantonments, and the other war export shipments, and the new routing of measures of the Administration came too late in the fiscal year to have much affect upon the earnings which the management permitted the Directors to restore the Southern's dividends.

RULES FOR SHIPMENT OF GOLD ANNOUNCED

APPLICATION BLANKS READY

The Central Board in Washington Must Approve Request Before Exports Are Permitted.

The Federal Reserve Bank of New York made public yesterday the Treasury Department's regulations issued in pursuance of President Wilson's gold export embargo proclamation. The text follows very closely the wording of the Executive order. In addition, the bank let it be known that it had on hand tentative application blanks that exporters of coin, bullion, and currency were required to fill out in triplicate. The applications must be sent to the Federal Reserve Bank, which makes its recommendations and forwards the same to the Federal Reserve Board in Washington. If the board approves of the prospective shipment it so advises the Secretary of the Treasury, who will issue the license.

The New York bank has already received a great many inquiries and applications, but the time has been too short for it to take any action with respect to the requests for permits. All of the prospective shipments are said to be relatively small, and the destinations mentioned in the applications are Spain, Japan, India, and Canada. These include both gold and silver exports.

The application blank calls for the following information: 1. Description of shipment, (i.e. gold coin, silver bullion, &c.); 2. value; 3. date and place of shipment; 4. destination; 5. proposed route; 6. consignor; 7. consignee; 8. name and address of person, firm, or corporation or government for whose account shipment has been ordered; 9. name and address of person, firm or corporation or government to whose account shipment will be charged; 10. name and addresses of all other persons interested in the transaction, directly or indirectly; 11. nature of transaction which resulted in the order for shipment; 12. if shipment is made for applicant's own account, state whether the purpose is to furnish customers with exchange, names and addresses to be given, and 13. additional information indicating that the exportation "will be compatible with the public interest." The application must be sworn to before a notary. Following is the text of the Treasury regulations:

1. Any individual, firm or corporation desiring to export from the United States or any of its territorial possessions to any foreign country named in the proclamation dated Sept. 7, 1917, any coin, bullion, or currency, shall first file an application in triplicate with the Federal Reserve Bank of the district in which such individual, firm or corporation is located, such application to state under oath and in detail the nature of the transaction, the amount involved, the parties directly and indirectly interested and such other information as may be of assistance to the proper authorities in determining whether the exportation for which a license is desired, will be compatible with the public interest.

2. Each Federal Reserve Bank shall keep a record copy of each application filed with it under the provisions of this regulation and shall forward the original application and a duplicate to the Federal Reserve Board at Washington, together with such information or suggestions as it may believe proper in the circumstances, and shall, in addition, make a formal recommendation as to whether or not in its opinion the exportation should be permitted.

3. The Federal Reserve Board, subject to the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, is hereby authorized and empowered upon receipt of such application and the recommendation of the Federal Reserve Bank to make such ruling as it may deem proper in the circumstances and if, in its opinion, the exportation in question be compatible with the public interest, to permit said exportation to be made, otherwise to refuse it.

The President's proclamation on the embargo of gold exports was made public last Saturday.

GERMAN GOLD PLOTS CAUSED EXPORT BAN

Washington Had Heard That Teuton Agents Here Were Trying to Obtain Supply.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—Reported activities of German agents here and in neutral countries to obtain possession of American gold, it was learned today, were largely responsible for the recent proclamation placing gold on the list of commodities requiring export license.

With an enormously inflated paper currency and with a gold reserve that has been dwindling steadily since the war began, the demand of the German Government for gold has reached proportions where, according to reports received here, unheard-of methods apparently have been adopted to replenish the store.

One report reaching officials here is that German submarines in the area around Great Britain were instructed to remove gold from steamers transporting the precious metal from the United States to neutral European countries, torpedo the vessels, and bring back the gold to their bases. How far this program has been carried out is not known.

A plan for obtaining a part of the huge store of gold which has accumulated here since the war began, said to have been regarded with much favor by German agents, is the exportation of gold to neutrals, ostensibly to settle commercial transactions, but in reality to establish credit to German firms operating in neutral countries.

Officials have been unable to verify the accuracy of numerous reports of this nature, but the activity in gold exportations to neutrals for some months past aroused the concern of Treasury officials prior to the President's proclamation. There is little doubt in official circles that Germany has been fully advised, in many instances, of the exportation of gold through spies working in this country.

It is believed that on some occasions the Berlin Foreign Office has been advised of the sailings and destinations of vessels carrying gold to and from the United States and was thus placed in possession of exact information as to when and where these vessels could be met most advantageously by submarines.

The bulk of American gold exports during the past seven months has gone to South America, mostly to Argentina, and to Japan. A tremendous increase in the gold exports to Spain also is recorded. For several months past officials have visited carefully all gold exportations to European neutrals.

Exports to the Orient also have been observed closely. Japan's withdrawals of gold during the last fiscal year were $110,507,313, as compared with $800,048 the year previous. None of the gold for the Orient, however, has been regarded as likely to fall into German hands. Most of the Japanese withdrawals are due to trade balance accumulating for two years, and some gold withdrawn by Japan is reported to have been sent to India for British account.

Mexico has figured to some extent in reports reaching Treasury officials to the effect that German agents were straining themselves for American gold. A comprehensive investigation, however, is understood to have convinced officials that there was little likelihood of gold sent to Mexico reaching German hands, and whatever apprehension existed on that score has been dissipated.

In no case has the investigation disclosed the official knowledge of any neutral Government, it is said, of the plans of German agents in their gold campaign.

COMMODITIES MARKETS

WHEAT.

There was little new development in the wheat situation, aside from a growing fear on the part of Eastern millers lest they be forced to close down on account of inability to procure wheat to grind. The movement continues moderate, and it is thought that farmers, being now assured of a fixed price, are in no hurry to market their wheat, and are giving their attention to Fall plowing, as well as other activities. It was reported from Canada that the Government there has fixed the price at $2.20 as a maximum figure. Prices in the local market remained unchanged, at $2.27 for No. 2 red and No. 3 hard, and $2.30 for No. 1 Northern, Duluth.

CORN.

The predicted frost, which caused such a sharp upturn in the corn market on Monday, occurred over the entire northern part of the corn belt, extending from slightly west of the Mississippi River practically to the Atlantic seaboard. Aside from a slight early advance just at the start, the corn market was weak under heavy selling, closing with a partial rally, but 1¼ to 1¾c net lower. In the local cash market No. 2 yellow corn was quoted at $2.35 and No. 2 mixed at $2.31, cost, insurance, and freight, New York.

OATS.

The market for oats was easier under quite active selling, prompted by the decline in corn. Furthermore, it was said that stocks in country elevators are piling up rapidly and the movement in the near future is only a question of the ability of shippers to procure cars. Exporters were again in evidence and took about 300,000 bushels. The local cash market was easy; standard quoted at 68c; No. 2 white, 70c; No. 3 white, 65½@68c; No. 4 white, 68@68½c; fancy clipped white, 71@73c; ordinary clipped white, 70@71c, all elevator.

PROVISIONS.

The market for hog products was easier under quite active selling, prompted largely by the decline in corn. Packers were said to be against the market, and chaos were rumors that efforts were being made to bring about a lower range of values in accordance with the Government's attitude against high prices for commodities. Receipts of hogs at Chicago were 8,000; estimated for Wednesday, 15,000. Kansas City received 6,000 and Omaha 2,500.

COTTONSEED OIL.

The market for cotton seed oil was nervous, with the situation decidedly mixed and sentiment divided. Prices moved feverishly, closing with a fair rally from the lowest, although 4 to 11 points net lower. Total sales for the day were 28,100 barrels. Range of prices:

COFFEE.

Reports from Washington that the Government will not impose a consumptive tax on coffee was given a bullish interpretation in the local market, and early prices experienced an advance of 4 to 5 points. Trade interests sold quite liberally, however, and later the market experienced a partial setback, closing with only slight net gains. Cables from Brazil indicate a slightly easier tone in prices there over the holidays, although receipts were moderate. The local spot market showed no improvement, and prices were unchanged on the basis of 15c. for Rio 7s and 10c. for Santos 4s. Range of prices:

SUGAR.

The market for refined sugar was unchanged at 5.40c. to 8.50c. for fine granulated. There was a little better inquiry noted but not much new business resulted. Withdrawals on old contracts continue of fair proportion, and refiners are catching up on old orders. Raw sugar was quiet, with practically all offerings having been withdrawn from the market. The trade continues to be in a very unsettled condition owing to a lack of definite information as to just what plan will be put in operation by the Food Administration in its proposed Government control of the sugar situation. Washington advices state that the Government has called for a conference with sugar brokers and also for a conference with sugar producers. There was a little buying interest in very prompt sugar at 5¼c c. f. by Canadian and one or two local refiners, but no fresh business was reported. Spot quotations are nominally unchanged as follows: Centrifugal, 7.02c; molasses, 6.14c; cost and freight, &c.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts yesterday, 9,916 packages. Demand was fairly active and prices ½@1c higher on all grades of creamery. Buyers are paying the advanced rate without serious protest and the situation apparently is healthy. Renovated has gained a little; best marks selling at 42@42½c. Ladies firm at the recent advance. EGGS.—Receipts yesterday, 14,128 cases. There is an improved demand, and with continued strong Western advices the market shows a firmer tone. Demand is chiefly for fine to fancy qualities and for good value cheap grades. Medium grades are still in considerable accumulation, but the stock is reducing. Storage eggs meeting a better demand and slightly in sellers' favor. Nearby whites of fancy quality are firm; defective lots still drag at a wide range of prices. THE COTTON MARKET

Firm Undertone Throughout the Day, with Net Gain of 44 to 53 Points.

A generally firm undertone prevailed throughout the day in the cotton market yesterday, and at one time prices were 58 to 63 points net higher, although some of this was lost in the late afternoon because of very disquieting reports from Russia. The close, nevertheless, was steady, at a net advance of 44 to 53 points.

Stimulated by cold weather over a good part of the belt, but notably in the Southwest, the market opened 16 to 23 points higher, reaching its best level around midday, when October sold up to 20.90 and December, to 20.75. Throughout the entire session, October was relatively firmer than other months, due to an embargo on shipments from Galveston to New York and to the small stock of cotton here available for delivery on contract.

Part of the early cold weather talk was offset by the Government prediction for rising temperatures in the Southwest, but against this was a storm warning which emphasized the apprehension that has been felt here for several days regarding a low barometer in the Caribbean and a possibility, from its location, south of Jamaica, that it might work up into the Gulf and so into the belt, instead of up the Atlantic coast. Not all of the Southern spot news was bullish, although much of it was such and indicated a good demand for cotton, with not enough moving in Texas to supply the demand. Other Texas advices said there was considerable freight room available and a corresponding good demand while the spot basis had risen in the last few days half a cent. On the other hand, it was reported from the Eastern belt, that the spot demand was a temporary affair made necessary to cover September shipments, and that exporters were buying very sparingly while the movement was increasing.

According to the National Ginners' report, there was a decline in condition figures for the half month of 4½ points, which compare with a full month decline last year of 4.9 points. This accounted for part of the early buying as it seemed to confirm the unfavorable reports which have been coming in of late. In numerous instances over the Eastern belt the detailed weather reports showed minimum temperatures well below 50, which fact, considering the lateness of the crop, and the menace of a tropical storm, had a very bullish effect on sentiment around midday. It was said that middling Georgia cotton was offered yesterday, landed East, at 75 points on October, whereas last week similar cotton was offered 50 points on October. In the section around Dallas, Texas, cotton was said to be bringing big premiums, ranging around 80 points on October free on board interior.

The Liverpool market was unchanged on spots and futures, while houses with Liverpool connections were large buyers around the opening. Exports were 27,345 bales, making 457,951 so far this season.

On Being a Trustee

To most men who are qualified by success in their business to be Trustee of an estate, the trusteeship is just an added burden.

It means the care of another's property for a number of years,—constant watching of taxes, insurance, repairs, assessments, fluctuations in securities, etc. It requires organization and equipment.

This Company in its Trust Department is daily handling all the problems which come up in estate management, and its services, with all its experience, may be secured at no greater cost that those of the individual.

Its officers will be glad to explain in detail the advantages in selecting this Company as Executor and Trustee.

SOUTHERN DIVIDEND AGAIN.

The Directors of the Southern Railway Company yesterday declared a dividend of 2½ per cent. on the preferred stock of the company, payable Nov. 20 to stock of record Oct. 31 next. As the company has $60,000,000 of preferred stock outstanding, this will amount to a disbursement of $1,500,000 in cash. The Southern's preferred stock is 5 per cent., non-cumulative, and the new dividend will be the first paid on it since December, 1914, when a 4½ per cent. dividend, 2½ per cent. in cash and 2 per cent. in scrip, was paid.

The return of the Southern Railway to a dividend-paying basis was not generally expected, although there had been reports for some time that the company was enjoying an unusually prosperous season, due in considerable measure to the business brought by the location and building of the army training cantonments in its territory. The recent announcement of the plan of the Railways War Board to route a larger proportion of export shipment to South ern ports, to relieve the congestion at New York, is also counted upon to bring more business into the Southern's territory.

A preliminary report of the Southern's year, ended June 30 last, shows a surplus, after deducting all charges, of $12,360,161 an increase of $3,020,262, or more than twice the disbursement of the declared dividend. The company's gross earnings were $81,388,324, an increase of $11,390,649, which was cut down by increased expenses, taxes, &c., to a net earning of $24,331,543, an increase of $8,327,448. The Southern has a total funded debt of $279,844,500, of which $235,650,500 is in bonds, the balance two-year notes and equipment obligations.

Dividend-bearing stocks bid and offered in The Annalist every Monday by reputable firms in the Open Security Market. The stocks and bonds on sale are not listed on any Exchange. Times Square, New York.—Advt.

FINANCIAL NOTICES.

NOTICE.

To the Stockholders of the E. I. duPont de Nemours and Company:

In the suit of Philip F. duPont and others against Pierre S. duPont and others, No. 340 in Equity, in the District Court of the United States for the District of Delaware, the Court has filed a decree, a copy of which is enclosed, finding that the purchase on their own behalf from T. Coleman duPont of 63,314 shares of common stock and the 14,599 shares of preferred stock of the E. I. duPont de Nemours Powder Company, by Pierre S. duPont and his associates, Irenee duPont, Lammot duPont, A. Felix duPont, John J. Raskob, Robert Rulith Morgan Carpenter, Harry G. Haskell, Harry F. Brown, William Coyne, John F. Laffey and duPont Securities Company, some of whom participated at the time of the purchase and others became afterwards interested in the purchase, was in violation of the duties which they owed to the Powder Company, and in fraud of the rights of said corporation; that duPont Securities Company, which was organized by Pierre S. duPont and his associates for the purpose of financing the purchase of said stock, acquired the same subject to the rights of the Powder Company thereto; that the act of Pierre S. duPont and his associates in acquiring said stock on their own behalf has never been ratified or condoned in such a manner as to vitiate the rights of the E. I. duPont de Nemours Powder Company, and that as of the time of the purchase of the stock by Pierre S. duPont and his associates and at all times subsequent thereto, the Powder Company was authorized to purchase all of the said stock and had on hand funds sufficient to enable it legally to make such a purchase.

The Court also found that the stockholders of E. I. duPont de Nemours and Company have the right to determine whether the said E. I. duPont de Nemours and Company shall acquire and receive the 63,314 shares of the common stock of E. I. duPont de Nemours Powder Company purchased by the defendants from T. Coleman duPont, carrying with the same the 126,628 shares of the common stock of E. I. duPont de Nemours and Company, less such sums of money with interest as were paid by the defendants for the purchase from T. Coleman duPont of the 63,314 shares of the common stock of E. I. duPont de Nemours Powder Company and the 14,599 shares of preferred stock of said Company, after crediting on the amounts so paid by them such amounts as may have been received by defendants from a sale of said preferred stock purchased as aforesaid from T. Coleman duPont, or the proceeds thereof, with interest, the exact figures, together with the proper calculations of interest thereon to be ascertained by an accounting to be taken under the direction of the Court, and less any sums for expenses connected with said purchases which may be allowed by the Court on such accounting."

The voting shall be by ballot, and the polls will remain open to receive the votes of the stockholders from 12 o'clock noon to 6 P. M. on the said Tenth day of October, 1917.

DANIEL O. HASTINGS,
Special Master.

McADOO EXPLAINS BOND BILL.

Senate Committee Hopes to Report on the Measure Tomorrow.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—For three hours today Secretary McAdoo explained to the Senate Finance Committee the necessities for the $11,000,000,000 war credit bill passed last week by the House. He did not conclude, and tomorrow will complete his statement, previously given to the House Ways and Means Committee. The Senate committee hopes to complete the bill tomorrow and report it Thursday to the Senate, where it will be given the right of way.

Secretary McAdoo was closely questioned by committee members, but it was said no serious opposition developed. It believed the bill can be passed, after minor committee changes are made, with comparatively little debate. In the absence of Chairman Simmons, Senator Stone is presiding over the committee deliberations and will have charge of the measure in the Senate because of Senator Simmons's conference duties in connection with the war tax bill.

Secretary McAdoo told the committee today that all of the $4,000,000,000 new bonds proposed in the bill for loans to the Allies probably would not be needed, but that it was desired to make the amount ample to meet any emergency.

The new maximum interest rate of 4 per cent. authorized in the bill for the new bonds appeared to meet with general approval, but some committeemen expressed a doubt as to the wisdom of the convertibility proposal and also of the taxation authorized.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

The realty market showed considerable activity yesterday, both sales and leases being of a larger and more important volume than has been the case for several days.

In the Grand Central Station zone a sale was made on Lexington Avenue which may ultimately result in a high-class improvement. It was the plot at 416 Lexington Avenue, northeast corner of Forty-third Street, 22.4 by 90, which was purchased by Edward Baer and Leidor H. Kempner from Fanny J. and Percy Allan Kirkwood of Oyster Bay. The old building on the plot is now used as a café, being under lease to Harrigan's Corporation until 1930, but it is said negotiations are pending for a purchase of the unexpired term of the lease. Some time ago a savings bank had an option on the property for $100,000. It occupies an eligible site, being opposite the easterly side of the Grand Central Station and diagonally opposite the new Hotel Commodore now under construction.

Wertheim & Clear and Brooks & Momand were the brokers in the sale.

Wooster Street Purchase.

The seven-story commercial building at 80 and 82 Wooster Street, 50 by 100, between Broome and Spring Streets, has been purchased from the Wardour Corporation by a syndicate headed by Clarence Payne. The property was held at $85,000, and is fully rented at $10,500 a year. The Charles F. Noyes Company was the broker in the sale and Stoddard & Mark represented the sellers as attorneys.

The purchaser is negotiating a resale with an out-of-town investor. The property was acquired by the Wardour Corporation several years ago through the Charles F. Noyes Company, which has made three sales on Wooster Street in the immediate vicinity during the last thirty days, and it is understood that other deals are pending in the same neighborhood.

Small Cliff Street Corner Sold.

In the downtown section the small parcel at 52 Fulton Street, southeast corner of Cliff Street, was sold by Goodale, Perry & Dwight for the Trevor Estate to an investor. It has been in the possession of the selling family for over forty years. The frontage is 8.8 on Cliff Street, 28 on Fulton, and a rear line of 14.8.

Sells East Side Residence.

The four-story residence at 79 East Seventy-ninth Street, 16 by 102.2, between Madison and Park Avenues, has been sold by Mrs. Richard Stein. John J. Kavanagh was the broker.

Tenement Investments.

The American Savings Bank has resold the five-story tenement on lot 27 by 100.5 at 63 East 133d Street, purchased for $20,000, at auction last Thursday by Arthur C. Sheridan.

The six-story tenement 509 East 117th Street, 30 by 100.10, has been purchased by Caroline E. Belknap from Rosario Rossi.

Dyckman Apartments Bought in for $390,000.

One of the largest foreclosure sales of apartment house property in the Dyckman section that has been seen since the building activity started there some time ago was held yesterday in the Vesey Street salesroom. The properties involved six five-story houses, partially completed, on Nagle and Post Avenues, between Dyckman and Academy Streets, including all but the corner parcels. The buildings are known as 9 to 23 Post Avenue and 158 to 188 Nagle Avenue, each house covering a plot 100 by 105. They were bought in by the plaintiff, S. W. Strauss, and others for a total of $390,000.

The action was brought against the 203 Fifth Avenue Corporation, Henry and Joseph Falk, to recover mortgage liens aggregating with interest over $428,000. The property was acquired by the builders in June last year from the Empire Trust Company. S. W. Straus & Co. financed the operation with a loan of $720,000. Joseph P. Day and Arthur C. Sheridan were the auctioneers.

Bronx Sales.

The two-story dwelling on the southwest corner of Grand Avenue and Clinton Place, 25 by 100, has been sold by Charles W. Morse to Hattie W. Miller.

Brooklyn.

Walter S. Ross and C. C. Gretsinger sold for the Ovington Builders the one-family houses on the north side of Eighty-second Street, west of Fourth Avenue, to a client for occupancy.

The Jerome Property Corporation sold a plot of ground on the South Side of Seventy-ninth Street, 180 feet east of Narrows Avenue, 100 by 120 feet, for E. Jackman to George W. Averill, who intends to improve the property with detached houses. The seller took in part payment a four-story, eight-family apartment house located at 543 Fourth Street, between Eighth Avenue and Prospect Park West. The same brokers also sold 335 Ocean Parkway, near Beverly Road, a two-story and basement stone two-family house, for L. Weill to P. H. Houstelin. The purchaser gave in part payment a plot of lots on Tyndall Avenue, Bronx Borough, north of 259th Street, 140 by 120 by irregular.

F. F. Brauns sold the two-family brick dwelling, 20 by 100, 521 Seventy-fourth Street, for Sylas Terwilliger, to Augustus Ellis, who resold it to a buyer for occupancy; also the cottage, 38 by 100, with a garage at 142 Eightieth Street, for the Morrison-Alardyce Construction Company, and the two-family dwelling at 534 Seventy-fifth Street, for Emile E. Campbell.

I. Salsberg sold for G. Carr to I. Sandler No. 1615 Forty-ninth Street, a one-family dwelling on a lot 40 by 100.

Queens Borough Sales.

The Broadway Astoria Company has exchanged with the Interstate Land Corporation the property 95 by 143 on the north side of Flushing Avenue, 106 feet west of Debevoise Avenue, Long Island City, for the property 48 by 70 on the northeast side of Grand Avenue, twenty-four feet northwest of Second Avenue, Long Island City. The Broadway Astoria Company has also taken title to three plots on Grand Avenue, adjacent to the above property, with a frontage of sixty feet and a depth ranging from seventy to ninety feet. It will be developed with apartment houses.

J. F. McGuire sold to A. Nappi the plot 25 by 107 on the northeast corner of South Street and Larch Street, Jamaica.

The Royalton Realty Company sold to William H. Williams a plot 50 by 100 feet on the east side of Purdy Street 200 feet north of Potter Avenue.

Connecticut Suburban Sales.

Arthur C. Sheridan sold at auction yesterday on the premises the estate of Emil V. Bigourous at Stamford, Conn., for $6,100 to Dr. Jacob Nemsitin of Stamford.

L. Walter Lissberger has resold the eleven-acre Brookside estate at South Norwalk, Conn., on the Boston Post Road, which he purchased at auction last month conducted by Arthur C. Sheridan for $7,600.

Times Square Leases.

The International Millinery Company has leased for a term of years the store at 1,501 Broadway, in the Putnam Building, adjoining the entrance on the west side of Broadway, between Forty-third and Forty-fourth Streets. The lease was made through the Charles F. Noyes Company for Vincent Astor. The rental will aggregate $75,000.

Another lease said to have been closed in the Times Square section involves the three-story building at 121 West Forty-fifth Street, 38.4 by 82, which has been rented for ten years by William Leon from James H. Hebron for restaurant purposes. The aggregate rental will be about $100,000.

Long Island.

A plot of nine lots on the south side of Ocean Avenue, Far Rockaway, has been purchased by Martin Strauss, who owns adjoining property, giving him a frontage on the avenue of 300 feet. The sale was made by the Lewis H. May Company for Walter C. and Edwin A. Freidenberg and Minnie F. New, trustee.

Commercial Leases.

Tysse & Elliman leased for the Schulte Cigar Company to a client the store at 81 Church Street for a term of years.

Henry Hof has leased to H. Berkman the store at 621 Third Avenue for A. J. Borowsky, and the store at 696 Third Avenue to J. Bonigan for Fannie Heilbrunner.

Louis Schrag leased for Herman Younker the store in building 143 West Twenty-second Street, to the Edward B. Dickinson China Exporting and Importing Company.

Joseph P. Day has closed negotiations between the N. and W. J. Peck Company and the Forty-eighth Street Warehouse Company, which is the holding company for the Warner Sugar Refining Company, for a lease for a term of fifteen years, on the plot fronting 75 feet on the north side of East Forty-seventh Street and running through to the south side of Forty-eighth Street, with a frontage thereon of 75 feet, and being about 200 feet in depth, commencing 400 feet east of First Avenue. The plot is improved with two-story brick and frame buildings, and has access to the waterfront.

Fifth Avenue Dwelling Leased.

Douglas L. Elliman & Co. have leased, fully furnished, for the estate of Cecilia Rorg, the forty-foot residence at 855 Fifth Avenue, directly adjoining the new home of Judge Elbert H. Gary, President of the United States Steel Corporation, at the southeast corner of Sixty-sixth Street, to Nicholas C. Partos, President of the Partola Manufacturing Company. This house was held at a yearly rental of $25,000.

Leases Libby Castle.

The old Libby Castle home in upper Washington Heights, formerly part of the C. K. G. Billings estate, purchased recently by John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and offered to the city as a park, has been leased for one year by Winnifred T. Cook. William A. White & Sons were the brokers.

Gould Holding Company for Fifth Avenue Corner.

The 920 Fifth Avenue Corporation has been incorporated at Albany by Taylor, Knowles & Hack, attorneys, to take over the property at the southeast corner of Fifth Avenue and Seventy-third Street, 77.2 by 130.

It is now held in the name of the Seventy-third Street Realty Company, controlled by George J. Gould, which acquired it at foreclosure two years ago for $513,000 as the result of a suit brought by George J. Gould against his brother, Howard, and the latter's wife, Katherine Clemmons Gould. The present assessed value is $690,000.

Brokers in Indian Museum Deal.

The firm of Albert P. Ashforth acted as brokers in the purchase of the American Indian-Heye Foundation of the triangular block bounded by St. Nicholas Avenue, St. Nicholas Place, 150th and 151st Streets. Title to the property passed last week. The property was foreclosed from James K. Kennedy, Augustus Schenck, Mary G. Horton, and the Trustees of Annie Mary Avery. Five buildings cover the plot. The new museum building is nearing completion on the northwest corner of Broadway and 155th Street, the site of which was given by Archer M. Huntington.

New Factory for Newark.

The Turner Construction Company of New York, Buffalo, and Boston has received general contract from the Bristol-Myers Company for the erection of a reinforced concrete factory building at Hillside, Newark, N. J. Building to be 75 by 100, one and one-half stories high.

BAKERS PLEDGE SALE OF BREAD AT COST

1,500 Members of New York Association Declare for Patriotism Above Profit.

BIG CONCERNS OUT OF IT

Action Taken by Organization of Small Manufacturers May Cause Similar Action by Others.

The New York State Master Bakers' Association at its convention in Terrace Garden, Fifty-eighth Street and Third Avenue, resolved to sell bread at cost during the war. The association went on record, also, as opposing the members of the trade who would bargain with the Government for the last cent of profit, deferring their patriotism until their pockets were filled. This, it was said, is to be the bakers' contribution to the war-time service of the country. All this was not done, however, without discussion. The second day's session of the convention had its exciting moments.

The New York State Master Bakers' Association includes in its membership more than 1,500 retail bakers, of whom 1,000 are doing business in this city. The large manufacturing bakers are not members of the organization. Members of the association said last night that it remained to be determined just what weight could be given at cost. The action of the association will be far-reaching, it is predicted, because if the association cuts the price of bread or increases the weight of the loaf competition may cause others to follow their example.

The official action of the bakers followed a spirited discussion of the situation now confronting the makers of bread. Many of the delegates deplored the fact that there seemed to be a very general disposition on the part of the public to blame the baker for the increased cost of bread. This, they said, was not the case, and in the clamor for cheaper food the public was often led to disregard the fact that the bakor, like men in other industries, had to face increased cost of labor and materials, a greater overhead charge along with the usual depreciation of his plant. The following statement presented by Maximilian Strasser on behalf of the Executive Commiitee was adopted by the convention:

When hundreds of thousands of our fellow-citizens offer not only their services but their very lives to our country, honest, patriotic business men must forget the word profit. We do not agree with so-called leaders of our trade in bargaining with the Government for the last cent and become patriotic after their pockets are filled.

We herewith resolve to uphold the standard of good, wholesome, nutritious bread and during war time sell same at cost of production, plus administration expenses and the usual per cent. for depreciation and upkeep of our plants. The practice of charging delivery to overhead expenses shall be discontinued, and the cost of the same be made a direct charge to those demanding it. This will assure a minimum price over the counter.

We are not prepared to state at what price bread can be produced, because data on cost of flour are not as yet available. We assure the public, however, that with flour down below $11 a barrel, the customary loaf of fourteen ounces will be sold for less than 10 cents, contrary statements of large wholesale bakers notwithstanding. We approve the action of the officers of this association in directly communicating with the officers in Washington in reference to the bread question.

In introducing the resolution Mr. Strasser contended that the larger baking concerns were creating a false impression by claiming that under present conditions it was impossible to sell a pound loaf of bread for less than 10 cents.

"When the price of flour is boosted to $17, or more, the baker is powerless to reduce the price of his loaves," he said. "But the public has not taken this into consideration in the past and the small baker is accused of dishonesty and a desire to profit at the expense of the poor. The smaller bakers are willing to do their share and content themselves with the small profit they may make on pies, cakes, and other luxuries in their line of business. In the baking and sale of bread we bakers will be content with a salary sufficient to support ourselves and our families and forget the profits."

The following officers were elected: President, Adolph J. Gundermann of New York City; Vice President, F. H. Stegmeier, Buffalo; Secretary, Philip Modry, and Treasurer, Julius Zink, both of New York City.

Jewelry Workers Face Lockout.

Eight hundred union jewelry workers face a lockout as a result of a split in the Newark Manufacturing Jewelers' Association. Notices were posted in the factories of fifteen members of the association yesterday informing the men that they must resign from the union or leave their employ. These manufacturers bolted a meeting of their own association when a motion to accept the union's peace proposal was adopted, 29 to 15. The twenty firms who have signified their willingness to meet the men's demands are employing men who are on strike from one of the other faction's shops.

Wisdom In Few Words

IX.

MEND THY FAULTS.

Benjamin Franklin believed in social justice. And he didn't believe that individual thrift was a substitute for it. But he preached courage to the man with a hard row to hoe, and hard work and self-denial, in order that personal character, and strength and independence might result. These, he knew, would help a fellow to rise above an adverse environment, and thus attain larger opportunities and influence in the age-long struggle for better and juster social and political conditions. He would have men mend themselves while contending for mended laws.

He said:

"How few there are who have courage to own their faults or resolution enough to mend them."

A lot of Franklin's sayings, useful for character-building in young and old, are to be found in the little pamphlet, sent free for the asking by an institution that for 30 years has been proving to many thousands the wisdom of self-help.

Another Great Mountain Range Conquered by Electricity

The mighty Rockies, the Belts and the Bitter Roots have bowed their lofty heads before the onward progress of man. The limitless energy of their tumbling cataracts has been harnessed to furnish power for the giant electric locomotives that haul the trains of the "St. Paul Road" across their rugged slopes.

And now another great mountain range—the snow capped Cascades in Washington has felt the hand of the conqueror. The work of electrifying the 211 miles of line through this range is well under way. When completed the "St. Paul" will have 651 miles of its main transcontinental line under electrical operation.

When next you journey to Butte, Spokane, Seattle, Tacoma, Portland and other Pacific Northwest Cities travel the electric way—via the

Make sure

You can't tell anything about unproven, untried gasoline until after you have used it.

Then your knowledge, as often as not, is in terms of carbonized cylinders, tardy starts, and sluggish pick-ups.

Don't be misled. Don't take unnecessary chances—use So-CO-ny (accent on the second syllable) Motor Gasoline and be sure. Every gallon is like every other gallon. No trouble with your carburetor or your mixture.

Look for the Red, White and Blue SO-CO-NY Sign. It stands for gasoline that is absolutely pure—power in every drop. And you will have no trouble finding it because garage owners by the thousand will carry nothing but SOCONY.
